$160,000,000 CUT IN TAXES ASSED, 63-14, BYTHE SENATE

easure Reducing Private and Corporation Income Levy 1 Per Cent, Now Goes to President.

N EFFECT FOR ONE YEAR ONLY

ll Attempts to Amend Resolution Beaten — Insurgent G. O. P. Led Fight Against It.

y the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The 160,000,000 income tax reduction esolution was adopted today by e Senate. The vote was 63 to 4.

Approved in the same form that passed the House, the resolution ow goes to President Hoover, who as signified his intention to sign immediately.

The resolution reduces by 1 per ent the rates on all individual and orporation income taxes to be paid xt year on this year's income. is effective only for the year.

Democratic leaders joined the dministration forces in putting the esolution through in the form origally proposed by Secretary Mellon.

It is the first piece of legislation go to the White House from the gular session of Congress, which egan two weeks ago.

The Roll Call.

Eleven Western Republican Inependents and three Democrats oted against the resolution. The oll call:

ays 3,000,000 Are Unemployed.

The long day of debate centered incipally on business conditions d brought frequent reference to employment. Senator Couzens Rep.), Michigan, who sponsored amendment to include also a duction in the capital gains and s tax from 12½ to 11 per cent, id he had been reliably informed at the number of unemployed d advanced from 700,000 to more an 3,000,000 men recently. He pported the tax cut as a means diminishing unemployment.

Senator Wagner (Dem.), New rk, who sponsored a recent intigation into unemployment, ok the same position and deored that partisanship should ke any part in consideration of e resolution.

The Couzens amendment was rected, 53 to 22, but Chairman moot of the Finance Committee nounced that he would favor the oposal as the first point in the xt general tax revision.

ecause the tax cut applies only this year's income on which xes are to be paid next year, emocrats inquired whether a pernent revision of the revenue tes was not contemplated. Smoot dicated that as soon as business as on a normal basis and the inome of the Government could be efinitely established such a course ould be considered.

Norris Leads Attack.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, a ader of the Republican independts, again led the attack on the solution, insisting the "only jusication given for it is its psychoical effect on business." He rearked that the Government ould dismiss all its tariff, finanl and economic experts and hire chologists to take their places. "They ought even to discharge Senate chaplain," he added, d hire a psychologist to lecture Senator Discloses Whose Interpretation of G. O. P. Platform He Will Follow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Reporters interviewing Senator (exlobbyist) Grundy of Pennsylvania today remarked that he might be expected to affiliate with one of the numerous Senate blocs.

"I'm standing on the Republican platform as to the tariff," Grundy declared.

"But, Senator, whose interpretation of the platform are you standing on?" he was asked.

"I'm standing on Grundy's interpretation," was the reply.

CONGRESS LIKELY TO MAKE BYRD A REAR ADMIRAL

Proposal Receives Favorable Comment From Senator Hale of Maine.

By the Associated Press.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 14.—The Worcester Telegram will say tomorrow morning that Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., retired, who at present is on an exploration trip in the antartics, will probably be promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral of the Navy, retired list, by act of Congress shortly after his return to this country.

The telegram gives as its authority a letter from Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, chairman of Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, to Edwin M. C. French, city manager, in answering French's suggestion that such a promotion be made. The telter stated: "I understand that Senator Swanson intends to introduce such a measure, and should it come before this committee I am sure it will have full consideration."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secretary Adams, on behalf of "old associates in the navy," tonight greeted Commander Richard E. Byrd by radio, speaking over a short wave radio channel extending 9000 miles to the Antarctic. "I joyfully send warmest congratulations to you and your gallant crew," Secretary Adams said.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Dec. 14.—The fabulous Huckins money mill, whose grist was to be in golden dividends up to 53 per cent annually for investors, today was in a state bordering on collapse.

The financial superstructure reared by a former country storekeeper and his son, a poolroom operator, and thought to involve an estimated $2,000,000 of "investments," was revealed as unable to meet a note for $2100.

A little $3150 investor, who has been trying to get back part of his principal since last Sept. 18 sued Elmer S. Huckins, financial "wizard" of Hancock, Wis., for $2100 on one note and $1050 on another, alleging fraud in both cases.

Ellwood Royster, worker in a sash and door factory in whose behalf the suit was filed, alleges also that the elder Huckins, his wife Amelia, and his son were engaged in a conspiracy to defraud, and that money collected from one investor was merely used to pay "dividends" to other investors in the so-called enterprise.

Royster asked a writ of attachment against all properties of Elmer S. Huckins and of George E. Huckins, pending settlement of the suit. The Sheriff of Lynn County tonight was seeking W. J. Barngrover, attorney for the elder and younger Huckins, to learn what property, if any, is available for attachment.

Grand Jury Inquiry Promised.

Meanwhile, a bank at Hancock reported another due note, bearing the signature of Elmer S. Huckins and his wife, Amelia, which could not be paid owing to lack of funds in the Huckins account. A third note which the Huckins family has been unable to pay was in the hands of Federal authorities at Milwaukee, Wis., who said it would be the basis of a grand jury investigation in January.

Elmer S. Huckins, in the face of unpaid dividends to investors here who had turned over to him about $100,000, and unable to meet the Royster note for $2100, left his $100,000 home in Hancock, according to dispatches, and was reported to be in Chicago. George Earl Huckins, who two years ago bought the Cedar Rapids baseball club and who now maintains four automobiles, a chauffeur, and several servants in a mansion on Bever street here, has denied himself to all visitors save Barngrover. He is said to be under the care of a physician.

The $100,000 paid into the Huckins enterprise by men and women in Cedar Rapids is thought to be only a fraction of the total gathered from persons in at least four states who couldn't resist the allure of interest ranging from 26 to 53 per cent. Estimates based on the calculations of a former Huckins employe place the aggregate beyond $2,000,000.

Recalls Ponzi.

The allegation made by Royster is that the elder Huckins, aided by his wife and son, operated in identically the same fashion as the famous Ponzi. Huckins, Royster said, repeatedly solicited new loans from him.

Royster alleged that the elder Huckins asserted he had special arrangements and connections with tobacco companies which enabled him, as a wholesaler, to obtain cigars at a greatly reduced price. Huckins declared futher, according to Royster's petition that he had a particular plan for disposing of these cigars that was immensely profitable, but lacked money enough to meet the needs of the expanding business.

What the specific plan was, Huckins apparently did not specify. He talked about the 53 per cent profit and it was the profit, of course, that Royster was interested in.

In conclusion, Royster alleged that the defendants were not engaged in the wholesale cigar business, did not have special arrangements with any tobacco companies, were not engaged in a profitable business as they represented, and that the money advanced was not used in that business but was procured by false pretenses for the sole purpose of carrying on a scheme to defraud.

Last September the Federal authorities at Milwaukee failed to prove that the elder Huckins was not in the cigar business, and their charge of using the mails to defraud failed.

Later, Federal investigators sought to sue Huckins on his income tax but were unable to find notations indicating any substantial business.

George Earl Huckins, according

GEN. BUTLER AGAIN IN TROUBLE OVER TALK ON MARINES

Sinclair Lewis Wires Borah He "Confirmed Bitterest Charges" on Nicaragua and Haiti.

SECRETARY OF NAVY MAKING INQUIRIES

General Quoted as Telling Frankly How U. S. Troops Control Situation in the Caribbean.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secretary of the Navy Adams is inquiring into recent remarks credited to Major-General Smedley D. Butler of the Marine Corps in an address in Pittsburg concerning American Marines' activities on foreign soil during elections.

The assumption in official quarters is that Butler has been asked to give his own account of the speech to the Navy head.

It was explained that this was the customary procedure in such cases.

Sinclair Lewis Apprised Borah of What Butler Said in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 14.—Major-General Smedley D. Butler, whose address here on Dec. 5 is a subject for inquiry in Washington by Secretary Adams, was quoted in newspapers here as saying concerning the election in Nicaragua, where marines were stationed: "The opposition candidates became bandits when it became necessary to elect our man to office."

Sinclair Lewis, the novelist, telegraphed Senator Borah of Idaho on Dec. 6, telling him Gen. Butler's remarks warranted an "immediate Senate investigation." Lewis' telegram said Butler "laughingly confirmed bitterest charges against marines."

Quoting Butler, he said, from a newspaper story which he said he had confirmed through Robert K. Cochrane, secretary of the Pittsburg Builders' Exchange, before which Butler spoke, Lewis said in part:

"Concerning elections in Nicaragua, he (Butler) explained that the opposition candidates were declared bandits when it became necessary to elect a candidate.

"Regarding Hayti, Butler told how the marine-controlled President had dissolved the Congress to prevent the legislative body from passing a new Constitution. He aided the President in drawing up the edict that dissolved the Congress, the speaker said."

Lewis told Borah that he had a list of persons who heard Gen. Butler speak, if the Senate wanted to summon them.

The Pittsburg Sun-Telegraph tomorrow will quote Butler as saying:

"In one election nobody liked the fellow in there, but he was a useful fellow to us, so we had to keep him in. How to keep him in was the problem.

"We looked up the election laws and found that the polls had to be opened a sufficient length of time (at least that's the way we translated it) and that a voter had to be registered to be eligible to vote. The district was then canvassed and 400 were found who would vote for the proper candidate. Notice of the opening of the polls was given five minutes beforehand. The 400 voters were assembled in a line and when they had voted, in about two hours, the polls were closed. The other citizens had not registered and therefore were ineligible to vote."

FORTUNE IN WOMAN'S DREAM

Spaniard Sells 4000 Shares in Lottery Ticket She Mentions.

By the Associated Press.

LINARES, Spain, Dec. 14.—Police reserves were called today to protect a man owning a lottery ticket that a woman of this town dreamed would be the lucky number of a forthcoming lottery.

The woman dreamed that a certain ticket number would win the "Gordo," the big prize of the Christmas lottery, valued at 15,000,000 pesetas ($2,100,000). Everybody in town heard about the dream and then everybody discovered that a local shopkeeper actually held ticket with the number the woman had mentioned.

A great crowd rushed to the shopkeeper's place of business, clamoring for a chance to buy the ticket. The mob broke the windows, wrecked the store and almost suffocated the ticket holder before the police came to the rescue. The people were then herded into a long line and the shopkeeper established his own private lottery, selling 4000 shares in his ticket and making a huge profit in a few hours.

OPPOSITION TO RADIO-TELEGRAPH MERGER GROWS

Difficulty of Controlling International Monopoly and Regulating Rates Among Objections.

PROPOSED COMBINE WANTS 8 PCT. RETURN

Gen. Harbord, R. C. A. President, Admits It Plans Valuation Far Beyond Its Real Cost.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The efforts of officers of the Radio Corporation of America during the last week to obtain legislation from Congress permitting a merger of existing radio and cable systems in one international communications monopoly, appears to have had the opposite effect. Inquiry today disclosed that the testimony of these officers before the Senate Interstate Committee has stiffened opposition to the proposed legislation, and that Senators at first inclined to favor it are extremely doubtful now that it can be passed.

Several elements have combined to produce this effect. The insistence of the Radio Corporation that it is entitled to special indulgence from the Government and the effort to bolster that position by asserting that the corporation was "created at the Government's request," appear to have made an unfavorable impression. The only evidence of this claim presented in a week of testimony was that President Wilson in 1919 asked the General Electric Co. not to sell a certain radio invention to the British Marconi Co.

Obstacles to Merger.

Another obstacle to the merger is the obvious difficulty of imposing effective regulation an on international monopoly. The only plan thus far suggested contemplates the establishment of the governing rules by negotiation. Against this is the admitted fact that the present competition between radio and cables had resulted in universal reduction of rates ranging from 20 to 35 per cent.

The third objection raised by the opponents of unification concerns the rates that would be imposed, assuming that any could be imposed by Government regulation.

Questioning of witnesses by Chairman Couzens has developed that the proposed radio-telegraph monopoly probably would insist on placing a valuation on the unified property far in excess of its actual physical value, and would then expect to be allowed to earn a return of approximately 8 per cent on the inflated valuation.

The Radio Corporation and the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. have agreed on the main terms of a deal by which 200,000 shares of I. T. & T. stock would be exchanged for the existing communications facilities of the Radio Corporation. The stock has a market value of about $100,000,000.

The radio facilities involved in the proposed deal are admitted to have a physical value of less than $25,000,000, although their market value is placed by the corporation's officials at $40,000,000. This deal cannot be consummated for the present because mergers of cable and wireless facilities are prohibited by Section 17 of the radio act. That is the clause the repeal of which is sought.

Major General James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation, testified under Couzens' cross examination that he thought the owners of the radio communications property should be allowed to earn 8 per cent on a valuation that would include not only such intangible assets as "good will" and "going value," but also on capital invested in research which proved fruitless and in patents which are obsolete or useless.

"Good Will" Is Gift of Public.

The fact is that much of the "good will" and nearly all of the "going value" of the property rests on a gift from the public—the wave lengths which the corporation receives from the Federal Radio Commission.

Commenting on Harbord's claim that the company should be allowed to earn rates of capital invested in patents and "development," Couzens remarked that this amounted to a claim "that the owners should be permitted to capitalize their own mistakes."

U. S. COURT RULES OUT EXPLORATORY SEARCH, SEIZURE

Holds They Must Be Incidental to Liquor Arrest and Not Evidence-Getting Basis for It Afterward.

CONFESSIONS SO GOT CANNOT BE USED

Judge Edwin S. Thomas, in Opinion, Declares Such Procedure Contravenes Anglo-Saxon Justice.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 14.—Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas today filed an opinion that search and seizure in prohibition enforcement cases must be incidental to an arrest and must not be the exploratory basis on which to base a possible arrest.

The ruling was made in the case of Anthony J. Setaro of Danbury, who alleged illegal acts on the part of two prohibition agents.

Judge Thomas ruled in effect that the Jones law does not automatically make transportation of liquor or maintenance of a nuisance felonies; that exploratory searches by prohibition agents with or without a warrant in search of evidence are "in contravention of Anglo-American justice and that a confession obtained after an illegal search and seizure cannot be used against the confessor."

The ruling, embodied in his decision to suppress evidence and to return a seized automobile of Setaro, declares that under the prevalent Federal rule, if the search and seizure is unlawful, the evidence obtained thereunder must be suppressed and seized property returned.

ACCUSED OF STEALING FROM COMMUNITY FUND BARREL

Laborer Caught After Chase Says He Made Money Selling Chickens He Found.

A man who said he was Albert White, a laborer, 615 Walnut street, was arrested last night at ninth and Locust streets following a chase after a woman told a policeman she saw White tear the cover off a Community Fund Barrel, at Tenth and Locust streets, scoop out the money and run away. In his pockets police found five $1 bills and $3.45 in change.

White denied having robbed the barrel and said he earned the money picking up dead chickens in the vicinity of Union Market and selling them.

FOG AND SMOKE RETARD CITY AND COUNTY TRAFFIC

Motorists With Bright Lights Report Inability to See More Than 15 or 20 Feet.

Heavy fog mingling with a pall of smoke enveloped St. Louis and vicinity last night, considerably delaying traffic. Motorists, even with bright lights, reported being unable to see more than 15 or 20 feet ahead in portions of the West End and the county, where the fog was most dense.

Automobile windshields were clouded with mist and soot, and motorists were forced to drive at cautious rates. A light wind was insufficient to disperse the smoky mist, which thickened as the night progressed.

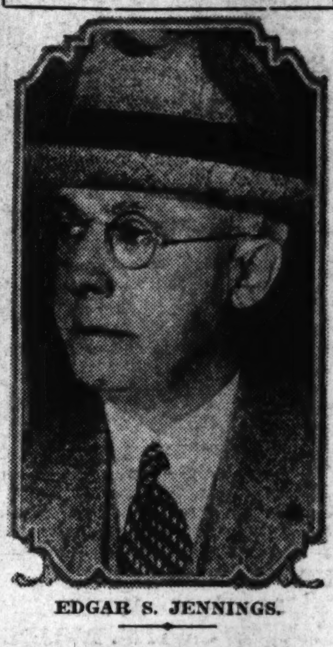
WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The Government's theory of Mississippi River flood control, under the Jadwin plan, will have to be revised as a result of a decision of Federal Judge Dawkins in Louisiana today enjoining the Government from prosecuting floodway work in the Boeuf Basin without acquiring flowage rights, congressional flood control experts declared.

Congressman Wilson (Dem.), Louisiana, who received word of the court ruling, said that it sustained the contention of the House Flood Control Committee.

OUSTED WARDEN



EDGAR S. JENNINGS.

AUBURN PRISON WARDEN REMOVED BY GOV. ROOSEVELT

Edgar S. Jennings Replaced by Elmira Reformatory Superintendent as Result of Riot.

By the Associated Press.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Auburn state prison, which three days ago was the scene of the second conflict in five months between convicts and guards, tonight had a new official in control, replacing Warden Edgar S. Jennings. Dr. Frank L. Christian, superintendent of the Elmira State Reformatory, today was appointed acting warden by Gov. Roosevelt.

Since the riot on Wednesday, in which Jennings was held for several hours as a hostage by the convicts, and which cost the lives of the Principal Keeper and eight convicts, George A. Sullivan, Sergeant of the prison guard, had been acting warden under appointment by Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, State Commissioner of Corrections.

Gov. Roosevelt also ordered Col. George Fletcher Chandler, founder and first superintendent of the New York State police, to conduct an investigation, as the personal representative of the Governor, into the conduct of convicts, guards and others during the mutiny.

Statement by Roosevelt.

Directing Supreme Court Justice Benjamin Cunningham, and the District Attorney of Cayuga County to "give any indictments and trials in connection with the prison riot precedence over any and all other cases at the term of court beginning Jan. 6." Gov. Roosevelt also issued a statement in which he said:

"The very first duty of the grand jury should be to return indictments for murder in the first degree against any and all persons who may be guilty under the law of the murder of the principal keeper, Durnford.

"It is time that prisoners of the State have a clear understanding that violence to guards and keepers will be immediately and drastically punished. The purpose is also to accomplish immediate justice in relation to all the acts in connection with the riot covering any inmates, guards or any other person or persons who may have been guilty of any violations of the law."

Sergt. Sullivan declared that the leniency of the prison system and the Mutual Welfare League, a system of self-government among the convicts, were alike responsible for the mutiny.

Mayor Charles D. Osborne of Auburn, son of Thomas Mott Osborne, noted prison reformer who organized the league, rose in its defense. Warden Jennings, too, upon recovering from the effects of tear gas employed in effecting his rescue during the riot, declared that the mutineers were all league outcasts.

The board of directors of the National Society of Penal Information adopted a resolution urging Gov. Roosevelt to demand the im-

PRESIDENT SAYS 'NIGHT IN JAIL IS ONLY MARTYRDOM'

Inaugurating New Policy Toward Demonstrators, He Asserts They Should Be Sent to Parents.

BANNERS DENOUNCE POLICY IN HAITI

14 of Paraders Young Girls —Two Policemen Hurt and 14 Persons Arrested in New York Outbreak.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—President Hoover caused the release of 36 Communists from jail today after their arrest this afternoon during a demonstration against the Hoover policy in Haiti in front of the White House, taking the position that they should be "sent to their parents" instead of granting them "the favor of cheap martyrdom."

At a second demonstration tonight, a number of speakers stood on the memorial erected by the W. C. T. U. at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue and harangued a crowd of about 150 persons.

Condemn Their Own Release.

They criticized the President for his action in releasing them from police custody, asserting he did that to prevent pro-Communist feeling sweeping the United States. The crowd was orderly. There were no policemen in evidence. The speakers were those who had been arrested earlier in the day.

The President's action introduced something new into the handling of such spasmodic demonstrations which occur in front of the White House, the Capitol and Foreign embassies. There have been numbers of such in recent years, especially after questions in connection with foreign policies had been given unusual attention. These invariably have been orderly, as was the one today, but heretofore those arrested in front of the White House generally have been required to post bond.

The young men and women had spent two and one-half hours in various police stations and the House of Detention before Capt. J. P. Carroll of the park police, received from the White House the request for their release. They were charged with parading without a permit.

Statement from White House.

The White House issued the following statement:

"The President considers that the misguided youths calling themselves Communists, who have been arrested for demonstrating in front of the Executive offices, should be released and sent to their parents.

"He does not believe that any such discourtesy seriously endangers the Republic and that a night in jail is only doing them the favor of cheap martyrdom."

The arrests were made at 2:30 p. m., when 14 girls and 22 young men gathered at the west gate of the White House grounds, carrying placards which bore such phrases as "Defend the rioting masses of Haiti against American imperialism," and "The Kellogg pact is Wall street's declaration of war."

The signs were confiscated without resistance and five policemen marched the demonstrators over the half-mile to the District of Columbia Building without disturbance.

On the way to the District Building the Communists sang "Wave the Scarlet Banner." The procession was orderly.

Members of Communist Party.

A mimeographed statement distributed after the arrest described the demonstrators as members of the Communist Party and the Young Communist League, District 3, of Philadelphia.

At the District Building, all 36 were booked on the same charge and their hearings were set for Monday. The girls were sent to the House of Detention. Four of the male prisoners gave their ages

STABBED TO DEATH IN FIGHT WITH 3 OVER ROLL OF DICE

John Imbierowicz Jr., 2208A Cass Av., Killed in Row Which Starts in Kitchen, Ends in Street.

WIDOW GIVES POLICE NAMES OF PLAYERS

She Says One of Them Knocked Her Husband Against Auto Then Another One Knifed Him.

John Imbierowicz Jr., 2208A Cass avenue, was stabbed to death at 7:30 o'clock last night in the presence of his wife by one of three companions in a dice game with whom he had quarreled.

The game took place in the kitchen of their home, Mrs. Imbierowicz told police, and Imbierowicz and one of his friends began fighting over a roll of the dice. The fight led down the back steps and out onto Cass avenue.

"A few doors from the house," Mrs. Imbierowicz said, "one of them knocked my husband against a parked automobile and one of the others stabbed him twice. I tried to separate them but they pushed me away."

She gave police the names of her husband's assailants.

Imbierowicz was stabbed in the abdomen and below the ribs on the left side. His body was taken to the Morgue.

He drove a delivery truck for his father, a grocer, at 2122 Cass avenue and was 27 years old.

CHICAGO AIR MAIL HALTED FOR FOURTH DAY BY FOG

Planes Prevented From Arriving or Leaving Airport; Night at Noonday.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—For the fourth successive day air traffic was at a standstill here today, an impenetrable blanket of fog preventing planes from arriving at or leaving the municipal airport. The thick fog hung over a wide area of the Mississippi Valley, and weather predictions held little promise of immediate relief. The sun had been hidden for a week, and clouds witn colder temperatures were the menu for Sunday.

Air mail and express shipments have been brought in and out of the city by train. For the second time this week Chicago was visited by a noonday night, a dense cloud shutting off daylight and requiring electric lights throughout the city.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Henry Ford received the Pennsylvania Society's gold medal for achievement in industry tonight at the thirty-first annual dinner of the society at the Astor Hotel.

Charles M. Schwab, steel magnate and president of the society, in presenting the medal, said that it was awarded because Ford was "the first to propagate the theory that for any real prosperity in this country the workman must be prosperous."

mediate resignation of Dr. Kieb as Commissioner of Correction, asserting that the Commissioner was unfit to carry out the Governor's program of prison reform.

Dr. Kieb replied with a laugh and continued to press the State's investigation into the Auburn outbreak, going there today to attend the funeral of Durnford.

That investigation, being conducted by officials of the State Department of Correction and Cayuga County, was directed toward the recovery of seven guns still missing and thought to be secreted within the prison.

District Attorney Kenyon today announced that all convicts involved in the mutiny had been identified, but declined to state how many there were or to disclose their identity. He added that he thought sufficient evidence had been uncovered to justify indictment and trial of the mutineers on charges of first degree murder.

John Martin, assistant principal keeper, was stricken with apoplexy this afternoon and was taken to the prison hospital, unconscious. Excitement attendant on the riot was thought the cause of the stroke. Martin, who was a former principal keeper, was stricken while at work in his office. Because of his advanced age officials were of the opinion the stroke might prove serious.

as less than 17 years and were taken to the Juvenile Home. The remainder were scattered throughout the precinct police stations.

14 Arrested, 2 Policemen Hurt in New York Demonstration.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. — Fourteen men and women were arrested and two policemen were injured today in two demonstrations conducted by Communists, who carried banners indorsing the Haytian revolt.

After a parade had been broken up in front of City Hall by mounted policemen and reserves, the Communists went to Union Square to start their demonstrations anew, but fled to their own buildings, the Workers' Center, when police followed them.

Police had advance information of the parade and assigned a detail to prevent disorder. Department of Justice Agents, after hearing a report that the Federal Building was to be bombed, also hurried to the scene to guard the building, which is near City Hall.

Carrying placards bearing the inscriptions, "Workers' Children Hail the Revolt of the Haytian Workers and Their Children," and "Hoover Declares War on Workers," the Communists marched toward City Hall, singing the "Internationale."

When orders to disperse went unheeded, mounted police charged the parade. The paraders then made a dash for City Hall, sweeping through a line of policemen standing guard on the steps. Police stationed inside the building stemmed the rush, and, after the first 10 of their number entering City Hall had been placed under arrest, the others turned and fled.

Four were arrested when they resisted efforts of police to wrest banners from their comrades. Patrolman Earl Gonyou suffered a broken shoulder and Patrolman John Hennessy suffered a severe beating when they were set upon by the demonstrators.

Mounted police had just cleared City Hall Park when a call for reserves came into Police Headquarters from Union Square.

This demonstration was brief, however, for the Communists rushed into the Community Party of American headquarters on the square when they heard sirens heralding the approach of the emergency squads.

Those arrested were arraigned tonight in night court, and seven were given one-day jail sentences; two received suspended sentences and the others were discharged.

POLITICAL LEADER FOUND SLAIN

Mail Carrier Discovers Body of Mississippi Democratic Chairman.

LEXINGTON, Miss., Dec. 14.—The body of Noel C. White, 50 years old, chairman of the Mississippi State Democratic Executive Committee and chancery clerk of Holmes County, was found today in a ditch near his home at Franklin.

The head appeared to have been crushed and there was a bullet wound in the temple. The body was discovered by J. S. Owin, mail carrier. A pistol was found eight or 10 feet from the body.

$160,000,000 TAX CUT PASSED GOES TO PRESIDENT to us instead of having a preacher to pray to us."

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Oklahoma, offered a substitute proposing that instead of a tax cut, the Government appropriate $100,000,000 for road construction and $60,000,000 for additional construction of public buildings. This was defeated, 56 to 20.

Graduated Scale Voted Down.

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), Iowa, proposed an amendment substituting a graduated scale of rates for the present corporation rate of 12 per cent. This was rejected, 60 to 16. He would have kept the maximum corporation rate the same as provided by the resolution —11 per cent—and had it apply on all corporation income above $28,000, with the existing individual tax rates applying on income up to that amount.

Senator Barkley (Dem.), Kentucky, offered an amendment providing for reduced rates on tobacco taxes but this was shouted down without a record vote.

Replying to repeated contentions that there was an agreement between the Republican and Democratic leaders, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, denied this and recalled the conference at the Treasury when Secretary Mellon had called in the Republican and Democratic leaders in the House and Senate to consider the tax resolution.

Denies G. O. P.-Democraic Pact.

"At that conference," said Simmons, "the Secretary of the Treasury laid before us the proposition contained in this joint resolution. He explained that in view of the then critical business condition, if this reduction were made in the way proposed it would be an assurance to the public and would inspire confidence. He said that while the Treasury would be able to afford this amount of reduction, he felt that any greater amount at this time would jeopardize the condition of the Treasury. I never mentioned the matter to the chairman of the committee, nor did he to me but I stated, as did the Senator from Mississippi, Senator Harrison, and Representative Garner of Texas, that we were inclined tentatively to agree to the proposition and that unless we changed our minds, we would accord it our support. That is all there is about the matter."

Simmons then recalled that when Under-Secretary Mills of the Treasury was before the Finance Committee, he had asked him about the possibility of reducing the capital gains tax and also about a reduction in the tobacco levies. Simmons said Mills had replied this would menace the stability of the Treasury and for that reason he did not support any amendment.

Condemning past tax reduction programs of the Treasury, Senator Couzens recalled the contests for repeal of the estate tax and declared that a campaign had been waged for this "by lobbyists supported and influenced by the Mellon family."

"But they have not been successful," said Couzens, "and I suspect the Secretary hopes to get that result before he passes his estate on to posperity."

Marseilles (Ill.) Editor Dies.

MARSEILLES, Ill., Dec. 14.—Terry Simmons, for more than 46 years a newspaper editor and publisher, died today following a heart attack. He established the Marseilles Plain-Dealer in 1876. He retired from active busines in 1918.

$100,000 FUND TO PUBLISH WORKS OF DR. ENGELBACH

Group at Santa Barbara, Cal., Arranges to Produce Former St. Louisan's Medical Researches.

Publication of the researches of Dr. William Englebach, formerly of St. Louis, into the functions of the endocrine glands will be made possible by the creation of a $100,000 foundation, announced in dispatches last night from Santa Barbara, Cal., where headquarters will be established.

One of the donors to the fund is L. H. Wentz, milionaire oil operator of Ponca City, Okla., whose daughter was once a patient of Dr. Englebach. The fund will be generally administered "for the advancement of the study of medicine," with the publication of the Englebach glandular researches as its chief object.

Dr. Englebach, for 25 years a figure in St. Louis medical circles, retired from practice in June of last year and went to California where he began the compilation of his work. This work is based almost entirely upon case records —totaling 600—of patients treated here.

Dr. Englebach was at one time professor of medicine in St. Louis University School of Medicine and chief physician at St. John's Hospital. He resigned from both positions in 1924. For many years he maintained offices in the University Club building.

His researches will be set forth in five volumes, of 600 pages each.

Besides Wentz, the following were donors to the foundation: George Owen Knapp, Max Fleischmann, E. Palmer Gavit and Mrs. Charles H. Jackson, Jr., all of Santa Barbara.

Fleischmann is chairman of the Board of the Fleischmann Co., of Cincinnati, manufacturer of yeast.

NEON LIGHTS PRESIDENT IS SUED FOR $11,000,000

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—William T. Hollingsworth, president of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., who was arrested Wednesday on a charge of inserting in newspapers false and misleading advertisements concerning his company's relationship with the Federal Neon system, today was named defendant in two civil suits, one for $10,000 and the other for $1,000,000. Both suits were an outgrowth of the advertisements.

The $10,000,000 suit was begun in Brooklyn Supreme Court by George L. Johnson, former chairman of the board of the General Outdoor Advertising Co., against Claude Neon Lights, Inc., Hollingsworth and Robert L. Kester Jr.; vice president of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., who was arrested Thursday on the same charge against Hollingsworth. Counsel for Johnson said his client was interested in formation of the Federal Neon Systems, Inc.

The suit for $1,000,000 was brought against the same defendants by Charles V. Bob and associates. Bob, president of a brokerage firm which was preparing a $10,000,000 issue of Federal Neon Systems stock when the allegedly false advertisements were published, was the complainant in the first arrest of Hollingsworth.

VERDICT IN HOSPITAL DEATH

An open verdict of pneumonia complicated by a slight brain concussion was returned yesterday in the death of Raymond Hancock, 35, of 6206 Vermont avenue.

Hancock, who was admitted to City Hospital for observation last Thursday, was found lying on the floor of the observation ward several hours later with a Y-shaped cut on the top of his head. He died Friday.

Huckins Who Paid 53 Pct. On Loans Accused of Fraud to Royster's allegation, received the money invested in the "cigar" enterprise, banked it in Cedar Rapids, then paid it out to his father and mother for use as interest on other investments. It has been learned that recently the younger Huckins has paid out approximately $800,000 he had on account in two banks of Cedar Rapids. The money, it is said, was sent to his father.

Charles Negus, joint owner of a poolroom with George Huckins, is reported to have invested from $45,000 to $70,000 in the mysterious enterprise. He has not yet publicly joined a group of other investors who have conferred with a local attorney. The fixtures of the poolroom and cigar store were mortgaged yesterday for $8000.

William Speas, manager of the Cedar Rapids baseball club, also invested in the Huckins scheme. He is said to have put in approximately $15,000, his life savings. Many persons who knew the younger Huckins well, and who had bet with him on races, are said also to be holders of the Huckins notes.

Royster's story is that of a man on small salary who saw a sudden chance to get rich, was reluctant to take it, but could not combat the confidential front of "Wizard" Huckins. Royster and his wife, who sells dresses in a department store, had saved up enough money to buy a home. They kept saving and built up an account of $1050.

Huckins went to see them and urged them to invest. Last December, according to Royster, he turned over to Huckins $1050, for which he was to receive $70 every 45 days.

The note was drawn up as follows:

> "Received of Ellwood Royster $1050, for which we agree to pay for the use of same $70 every 45 days. First payment due 45 days from date. Other payments every 45 days thereafter as long as we have the use of the money.
> "This money can be withdrawn or returned by either party giving 60 days' notice.
> "AMELIA A. HUCKINS,
> "E. S. HUCKINS."

Forty-five days following the signing of the note, Royster received a check for $70. Another 45 days went by and he received another check for $70. Meanwhile, the elder Huckins importuned him to put more money into the scheme. He talked of Royster's bought and paid for house. It was not bringing in any money. Royster could mortgage it for at least $2500, invest the money, collect fat dividends—literally have his cake and eat it. Royster and his wife held out for months but they finally mortgaged the house and invested $2100 in the mysterious "cigar" business represented by Elmer S. Huckins.

Got $910 in Dividends.

Royster had collected about $910 in dividends when, last Sept. 9, Federal authorities brought Huckins into court. The Government case failed, but Royster, like many another investor, became uneasy. On Sept. 18, he served notice on Huckins that he would like the principal of his $2100 note within 60 days. On Nov. 18 when the note was due, it was not paid. Royster presented the note several times but could not get his money.

Meanwhile, about a week ago, it became known that dividends were not being paid to the other Cedar Rapids investors. Something had happened. That extraordinary flow of currency, paid every 45 days, had suddenly stopped.

There were, it was learned, two types of investors. The smaller fry paid in $150 and received $5 every 45 days. On a yearly basis that would be interest at 26 per cent. There were others such as the Roysters, who paid out larger sums all multiples of $150 and received $10 every 45 days for each unit of $150 or $70 for each $1050 every 45 days.

When the money expected did not arrive something of a panic seized local investors. They sought each other out and asked questions. They visited attorneys. Royster, when payment of his note was refused at Hancock, yesterday, determined to file suit.

His suit is regarded as a test case by other investors.

To Affluence in Six Years.

The elder Huckins, who made his home at Hancock, Wis., was regarded six years ago as a comparatively poor man. Almost overnight, for at first mysterious reasons, he became known as a financial "wizard." His son was at the time a cigar salesman for the General Cigar Co. of New York, his territory including Cedar Rapids and vicinity. In six years, Elmer S. Huckins has grown to affluence and fame. He is known to have transacted business in Milwaukee, Chicago, Cedar Rapids and Los Angeles.

Huckins never advertised. It was needless. His fame traveled by word of mouth. Although, according to Roysters, Huckins importuned him, stories are told of other investors who pleaded with him to accept their money. These were probably the $5 for $150 (26 per cent) investors. When the victim was "difficult," possibly the interest was doubled. When outsiders asked Huckins about his business, he merely laughed.

Staving Off Inquiries.

"I can't give it away," he said. "It's as simple as it can be. I could tell you in three sentences but other people might get on to it."

Although he refused to describe his business in detail to Government investigators, he told them that he was, in a general way, in the cigar business. When he was asked if it was true that he made his money by dealing in cigar "seconds" he denied it.

Cigar manufacturers also denied they did business with him.

Younger Huckins Has Four Autos.

It is known that the firm of Negus & Huckins, which operates a pool room and cigar stand, also does a jobbing business in tobacco cigarettes and cigars. Whether this business would underwrite the four automobiles of the younger Huckins and pay the bills of his extensive household is a question. One of his daughters, a student at a Middle Western university, drives a high-priced roadster with a specially built body. His younger daughter, who is in high school, also has her own automobile.

For the use of Mrs. Huckins and himself, the former poolroom clerk keeps two high-priced machines, one with a custom built body. He employs numerous maids and a chauffeur.

Persons close to the younger Huckins, whose bank deposits have ranged as high as $300,000 at various times, deny that he is in the business through which his father was able to promise such extraordinary dividends. Royster, on the other hand, definitely names the younger Huckins as a party to the business.

W. J. Barngrover, attorney for E. S. Huckins and George E. Huckins, said: "I suppose the merits of Royster's case will be tested in court. I have nothing more at this time to say for publication."

200 U. S. PRISONERS IN GEORGIA ROAD CAMP

Policy Calls Forth Discussion in Senate—Justice Department Statement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Recent action of the Department of Justice in contracting to send 200 Negro prisoners from the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta to an honor road camp in Chatham County, Ga., attracted attention today in both the House and Senate.

Representative La Guardia, (Rep.), New York, introduced a resolution calling upon Attorney-General Mitchell to inform the House of the number of convicts "leased, farmed out, or contracted to any state, person or corporation."

Later in the day the department issued a statement saying that the Federal Government "is not leasing convicts in Chatham County, Ga., or anywhere else."

Senator Copeland (Dem.), New York, in a statement on the floor, said he thought that the "whole penal system has got to be reorganized."

La Guardia's resolution calls upon the Attorney-General to inform the House on whether the consent of the prisoners who were "farmed out" was obtained, the number of Government employee assigned to supervise such prisoners and the terms under which the contract was negotiated.

In the statement issued by the Justice Department, it was said that 10,000 Federal prisoners are boarded out in county and state prisons, and that the Government is paying an adequate amount for the board and housing.

"The men in Chatham County, Ga., are in an honor camp employed on public works," the statement said. "Not one of the men desires to return to the walled institution. A Federal inspector is present to see that the terms of the contract requiring humane and decent treatment are lived up to."

of William C. Green as counsel for the committee apparently has been unproductive. Hawes contended that Chairman Couzens in employing Green had proceeded without proper authority, but the majority of the committee does not seem to share his view. It is recognized that the dismissal of Green, or the adoption of a rule that would prohibit him from examining witnesses, would seriously cripple the investigation, not only as it affects the radio industry, but also as it will affect the electric power industry, which is next on the committee's schedule.

GANGSTER FREED ON REQUEST OF CARL SHELTON

B. Roy Baker Released by East St. Louis Police Chief When Birger's Old Enemy Makes Plea.

REARRESTED ON ALABAMA CHARGE

Companion Is Allowed to Drive Away With Hidden Auto License Plates From Other States.

Intercession by Carl Shelton, notorious gangtser, with Chief of Police James Leahy of East St. Louis resulted in the release from jail Friday of B. Roy Baker, gangster pal of Shelton's, but before Baker could get away he was again taken into custody at the instance of an outsider who reminded the police that Baker was wanted in Alabama under a Federal charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

This strange sequence of events started with the arrest of Baker and a man who gave his name as Harold Allen and said he lived at 2304 North Fourteenth street, St. Louis. They were sitting in an Auburn automobile when detectives who approached to question them saw a pistol on the floor of the car.

The finding of the weapon caused their arrest, and at police headquarters concealed sets of automobile license plates for the States of Tennessee and Florida were found in the car and given to Chief Leahy. The further discovery was made that the license plates on the car had been issued to Baker for a Chevrolet car.

Shelton Sees the Chief.

The prisoners had no more than reached Central Station when Shelton, who is at liberty on bond under separate indictments for the Collinsville mail robbery and a bank robbery in Christian County, appeared in behalf of his pals. Shelton and the Chief conferred behind closed doors after which the Chief ordered Baker and Allen released and their Tennessee and Florida license plates returned to them.

At this point the outsider reminded Chief of Detectives Byrnes that he had a letter from the United States District Attorney at Montgomery, Ala., stating Baker and Earl Shelton, Carl's brother, had been indicted there for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in the transportation of 726 quarts of whisky, and were also wanted on a fugitive warrant.

Byrnes dashed out of the station and arrested Baker as he and Allen were entering the car. Baker was held for the Alabama Federal authorities, but Allen drove away with the automobile.

"Nothing on Them," Says Chief.

"You see, it's this way," Chief Leahy said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Carl Shelton came to see me when his pals were brought in on my order. I heard they were preparing to haul some whisky and my men made the arrest too quick. Otherwise they would have found the car loaded with booze.

"But, anyway, Carl told me we had nothing on the boys. Baker explained that the license plates had been issued in his name in Tennessee and Florida, which facilitated the hauling of whisky through those states to East St. Louis. But we had nothing on the boys, so I ordered that they be released and their license plates restored."

Sanctuary in East St. Louis.

The Shelton brothers, Carl, Earl and Bernie, all gangsters, apparently have found sanctuary in East St. Louis. They have hitherto been driven out of Williamson and Franklin Counties, where they were principals in fighting with the Birger gangsters, and Chief of Police Gerk has ordered their arrest on sight in St. Louis.

It will be recalled that the police blotter of the East St. Louis central station was secretly altered a few years ago to aid the Shelton brothers in establishing an alibi for use in their defense for bank robbery in Christian County. They said they were not in Christian County on the day of the robbery and the altered police blotter was produced by East St. Louis detectives to help them prove it.

Byrnes dashed out of the station and arrested Baker as he and Allen were entering the car. Baker was held for the Alabama Federal authorities, but Allen drove away with the automobile.

"Nothing on Them," Says Chief.

"You see, it's this way," Chief Leahy said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Carl Shelton came to see me when his pals were brought in on my order. I heard they were preparing to haul some whisky and my men made the arrest too quick. Otherwise they would have found the car loaded with booze.

"But, anyway, Carl told me we had nothing on the boys. Baker explained that the license plates had been issued in his name in Tennessee and Florida, which facilitated the hauling of whisky through those states to East St. Louis. But we had nothing on the boys, so I ordered that they be released and their license plates restored."

Sanctuary in East St. Louis.

The Shelton brothers, Carl, Earl and Bernie, all gangsters, apparently have found sanctuary in East St. Louis. They have hitherto been driven out of Williamson and Franklin Counties, where they were principals in fighting with the Birger gangsters, and Chief of Police Gerk has ordered their arrest on sight in St. Louis.

It will be recalled that the police blotter of the East St. Louis central station was secretly altered a few years ago to aid the Shelton brothers in establishing an alibi for use in their defense for bank robbery in Christian County. They said they were not in Christian County on the day of the robbery and the altered police blotter was produced by East St. Louis detectives to help them prove it.

10 SILVER LOVING CUPS STOLEN IN COUNTY BURGLARY

The summer home of Dr. John Caulk on Ballas road, near Des Peres, St. Louis County, was entered Friday night or early yesterday by burglars who took 10 silver loving cups and personal apparel of a total value of between $2000 and $3000.

The burglary was reported by a caretaker, who said he found the front door open early yesterday. Dr. Caulk resides at 50 Vandeventer place. The loving cups were trophies won by his entries in various horse shows.

John M. Hansen Found Dead.

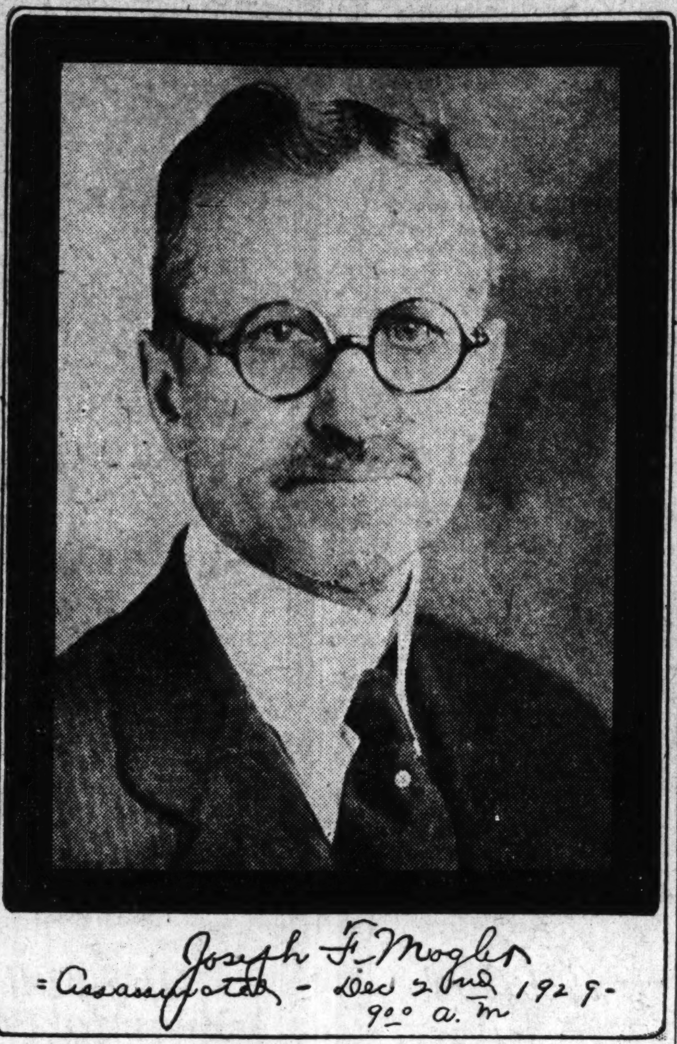
LA ROCHELLE, France, Dec. 14.—John Morrison Hansen, American business man, was found dead in his room at the Hotel de France today. Physicians said death was due to apoplexy. Mr. Hansen was a stockholder in the Societe des Enterprises Industrielles Charentaises of La Rochelle.

Joe Mogler's Career Investigated In Search for Clew to Murderers

Plenty of Theories but No Facts So Far Uncovered to Explain Motive for His Assassination.

Ambitious for Political Power, Kind to Poor, but Bondsman and Associate of Gangsters.

Picture of Slain State Senator Hung on Walls of Club Room



THIS black-bordered photograph was hung on a wall of "Joe Mogler's Club" at 1117 Salisbury street by the members of one of the two rival Second Ward Regular Republican Clubs, as a memorial to the State Senator and theater owner who was assassinated. A rose-colored electric bulb will illuminate the picture until Christmas.

Joseph F. Mogler, assassinated Dec. 2nd, 1929, 9:00 a. m.

This inscription, penned on a black-bordered photograph which hangs between pictures of former President Coolidge and Col. Lindbergh in the headquarters of a Second Ward Republican club at 1117 Salisbury street, marks the end of a dubious career and suggests ironically the defeat of investigators who have tried for two weeks to find a definite clew in the murder of "the best-known man in North St. Louis."

In the neighborhood where the State Senator and movie theater owner was known to virtually every man, woman and child, the favorite topic is "who killed Joe Mogler?"

While police are about resigned to recording another name on the long list of unsolved murders and wait for what Chief of Detectives Kaiser calls a "break," speculation goes on in homes and shops, speakeasies and poolrooms, in factories and on street corners, in fact wherever men meet in what was once "Joe Mogler's territory."

Two Sides of His Character.

Average citizens recall Mogler as a kindly fellow who made money in his picture shows, a man with an ambition for political power, who beamed on everybody, loved children and delighted in doing favors and in helping the poor of his neighborhood. The investigation, however, has made common knowledge of many other sides of his life—his friendship for gangsters and underworld characters, his activities as bondsman and parole advocate and his associations with numerous women.

From reconstruction of his varied life have sprung several theories to explain the motive of the two masked men who waited in the Mogler theater, at 3936 North Ninth street, and shot him through the head the minute he came in.

Mogler's Career.

Through all of the 30 years that Mogler lived in St. Louis a desire for political power seemed the dominating interest of his life. As a young man from a farm near Jackson, Mo., he appeared first in the late '90s as a bartender in a saloon near City Hall, smiling and currying favor from the City Hall crowd of that period. Soon he owned a saloon of his own on the South Side and became an enthusiastic precinct worker, recalled principally for his willingness to distribute handbills, canvass voters and do other lowly chores.

His success as a neighborhood showman seemed largely the result of chance and the fact that he entered the motion picture business on the ground floor.

In 1906 Mogler rented a vacant lot and established one of the first airdomes. After a few months, the property was taken over for a factory building and Mogler moved to the North Side to establish a tent show at Broadway and Bremen avenue in the neighborhood in which he was to spend the rest of his life.

Dived Into Politics.

Mogler immediately plunged into the politics of his ward, then the old First Ward, now the Second Ward, by assuming a precinct worker's responsibility. His tent show was a money-maker and in 1913 Mogler married his ticket seller, Miss Adele Heuer. Two years later a city ordinance forbidding tent theaters forced him to build the brick theater on Ninth street, in which he was murdered.

From then on Mogler was accepted as a neighborhood institution. While advancing himself in the Republican organization, he expanded his theater interests until he owned three theaters, all in his own ward.

He made it his business to be friendly with everybody. He patted the heads of the children who attended his theaters and frequently permitted youngsters to come in without money. He sent coal and food to poor families, listened to the troubles of the citizens, and never permitted himself to lose his temper or engage in a quarrel. He saved money, investing in real estate and bonds, and until five years ago lived in rooms over his Mogler Theater.

Relations With Criminals.

As his political power increased, his short, wiry figure was frequently seen about City Hall and Municipal Courts Building. Although otherwise quietly dressed, he wore expensive diamonds and there was gossip about jewels stored in his theater safe. It became known that he signed criminal bail bonds without charge, promoting friendly relations in the underworld.

He was satisfied to confine his theater interests to his own neighborhood. He became president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League but refused opportunities to expand his chain or join in metropolitan theater enterprises. "I'm satisfied with what I have," he said. Some theater men declare he neglected his business for politics.

His political activity was rewarded in 1924 with the appointment as a presidential elector. In 1925 he went to Jefferson City to lobby against a bill to tax theater admissions. He beamed and slapped backs and entertained legislators at dinner parties in the conventional manner.

Admitted to the Bar.

In 1926 he was elected to the State Senate for the Thirty-fourth District. During the campaign, his workers had featured his neighborhood charitable acts and his campaign signs bore the insignia of a large red heart. He had managed to gain admission to the bar, and was one of the lawyer-Senators who received annual passes from railroads as a retainer for "special services," mostly advice in selection of juries to try damage suits against railroads.

In the Senate he attracted little attention. On the few occasions that he rose to speak his high piping voice and his extravagant gestures were unimpressive. Occasionally his meager knowledge of English provoked laughter and he joined in the merriment. At social gatherings, he laughed heartily at other men's jokes but never told one of his own. Frequently he interceded with the Parole Board in behalf of St. Louis convicts and seemed eager to do favors for the asking.

The summer of 1928 saw a shift in the Republican political power in the Second Ward. Henry L. Berger, another bondsman and former saloonkeeper, opposed Senator Mogler in a race for the post of City Committeeman. Each candidate was supported by a "Second Ward Regular Republican Club," two organizations which still exist in spite of Mogler's defeat.

The retiring Committeeman, Gus H. Oetting, now Justice of the Peace, supported Mogler, while aligned with Berger were Alderman William H. Hoefle, William Hayes, the president of Berger's Club, and Charles Straub, a lawyer. In the campaign political rivalry developed into bitter personal enmity which still existed at the time of Mogler's murder.

Charges in Campaign.

Mogler prefaced his campaign by a weekly distribution of shiny nickels to small boys who gathered in front of the Bremen Bank and his workers talked of his charitable acts. His opponents spread stories of his associations with women and distributed handbills which set forth that he had signed the bond of a man arrested on an indecency charge.

The Berger forces found a 20-year-old girl who was willing to sign an affidavit naming Mogler as the father of her expected child. They asked Chief of Detectives Kaiser for Mogler's arrest and he referred them to the warrant office where a warrant was refused because the warrant officer did not believe the story. Later the girl declared the affidavit was false and named another man.

"I'll beat them with kindness," Mogler told one of his associates who urged retaliation.

Bitterness Outlasted Campaign.

With Berger victorious, ill feeling continued. Berger, Hoefle and Hayes refused to answer Mogler's cheery greetings when they met in public. There was keen rivalry between Mogler and Berger in signing bonds because Berger, who signed for fees, felt that Mogler, who signed for friendship was injuring his business. Hatred between factional leaders was sharpened by the understanding that Mogler was collecting documents to use in a coming campaign, including affidavits concerning the alleged payment of money to politicians by men who wanted jobs in the Fire Department.

Berger has described the 1928 campaign as "the bitterest I ever saw." Berger says he takes no stock in the theory that one of his own zealous followers may have killed Mogler in the hope of gaining favor with the Committeeman.

As a result of the 1928 campaign, it became common knowledge Mogler was attentive to women, that he frequently entertained women in the rooms above his theater. He acquired a group of hangers-on, known as his "50-cent men" because they would appear in his theaters and mutter threateningly to him until he led them aside and handed over 25 or 50 cents.

His relations with the underworld caused him to accept several robberies philosophically. Police records show that he was held up twice and that the safe in the Mogler Theater, where he kept the receipts from his theaters, was robbed twice. Although a close personal friend of Chief of Police Gerk, it is understood that he failed to report other robberies and that he once bought back jewelry which had been taken from him.

"You can't sign bonds and be a prosecutor, too," he remarked to an acquaintance who commented on his inclination to forget about robberies. Another time he said: "The boys know me; they won't hurt me, they know I won't resist."

Killed in His Theater.

Mogler was making his regular Monday morning visit to his office to attend to the banking of weekend theater receipts when he was shot, a few feet within the door of the theater, by one of two men who had made the theater janitor a prisoner. Outside of the janitor's meager description and his account of the crime and the chance remarks of the slayers, investigators had little to work on. They found themselves confused rather than enlightened by the facts of Mogler's life as they became known.

The investigation which has gone on while the Coroner's inquest is continued from week to week has led only to the conclusion that 'one man's theory is as good as another's." Each of the numerous theories has its merits and each has its shortcomings when the effort is made to fit it in with the physical facts.

Some Theories.

The slayer may have been a "nervous robber" who discharged his pistol when he met his victim face to face, then fled empty-handed, in panic.

He may have been a man with a petty grudge against the Senator or a hired assassin.

He may have been the irate husband, brother or father of some woman whose name had been linked with Mogler's.

He may have been a gangster angry because Mogler refused to sign a bond or grant a favor, or conduct himself in the manner expected of one known in the underworld as a "right guy."

He may have desired Mogler's death because the Senator had failed in promised efforts to obtain a parole for a relative or friend, or because Mogler had taken a fee for services he had failed to render.

He may have been seeking some papers or articles which had been intrusted to Mogler for safekeeping.

He may have hoped, as previously stated, to obtain the favor of political rivals by putting Mogler out of the way.

Only Guesses, So Far.

The questioning of dozens of friends, acquaintances, relatives and associates has brought forward no one who seems to have more than a theory as to the motive. Mogler's widow and her lawyer, Murtha J. Hackett, have been questioned at length in the hope that some recalled incident might open a new path of investigation. Mogler's papers have been ransacked and scrutinized. But nothing offering the shadow of a clew has been found.

In spite of all the possible persons who might have desired to take Mogler's life, the fact remains that his death was deeply regretted by hundreds who looked on him as a friend and benefactor. His funeral was attended by thousands of men, women and children of every walk in life, including business men, judges, city and State officials and his colleagues in the motion picture business. Hundreds of floral offerings were heaped about the funeral chapel, including one from "officials of the St. Louis Police Department." Shabbily dressed men and women shed tears over the casket.

Reminiscences of Mogler.

About 200 men and women, loyal workers in the Mogler organization, gathered for a memorial service last Friday night at Mogler's "Second Ward Regular Republican Club" on Salisbury street. They indorsed a resolution of regret at his untimely death and listened to Jones H. Parker, Speaker of the State House of Representatives, discourse on Mogler's charitable acts.

Members of the audience contributed anecdotes. One related that Mogler had once seen a small boy walking barefoot in the snow and had taken him into a store and bought a complete outfit of clothing. Another declared that during last winter's cold spells Mogler sent a dollar's worth of coal to 10 families every day. Another recalled that two days before the murder, Mogler stood on the stage of one of his theaters and said, "If there is anyone in the audience that is in need, I wish you would stop at the box office and put your name on the list."

TWO MEN TAKE $496 IN HOLDUPS OF FOUR GROCERS

One Robber Carries Shotgun and Other Pistol in Robberies Occurring Within Two Hours.

Two men, one carrying a sawed-off shotgun and the other a pistol, held up four grocers within two hours last night, obtaining a total of $496.

The pair first appeared at 8:20 o'clock at a grocery at 5601 Finkman street, where they took $300 from the proprietor, John Hart, and $6 from a customer, Lestelle Mathews.

Half an hour later they entered a grocery at 2649 Wyoming street and ordered the proprietor, Edwin Goelz, to "stick 'em up." As Goelz started to run to the rear of his store, one of the men struck him on the head with the shotgun. He suffered lacerations of the scalp. The intruders fled.

The two men, the shotgun, and the pistol next appeared at 10 o'clock at a third grocery at 6123 Ella avenue, where the proprietors, John and Joseph Singer, were robbed of $70. The victims said a third man waited outside in an automobile.

At 10:30 o'clock Walter Lingner, a grocer, was robbed of $120, apparently by the same pair, as he was putting his car in a garage in the rear of his home, 4222 Margaretta avenue.

Poinsettia Display Holiday Feature at Shaw's Garden

Bit of Adobe Wall and Flagstone Walk Suggest Spanish Patio—Other Tropical Plants Displayed.

Shaw's Garden's Christmas gift to St. Louis is a poinsettia garden that brings old Mexico right up to Tower Grove avenue and Flora place.

No tent show hypnotist ever demonstrated the power of suggestion better than the garden in its holiday show. There isn't much to it, just a bit of mellow-colored wall, a few feet of walks, a bank of scarlet, the shadow of a vista and another bank of tropical greens.

At the foot of the balcony in the Floral Display House is the special exhibition of "Old Man" cactus, the rarest known, found recently in Mexico after two years' search. It is the largest collection in this country, and one specimen is the largest in the country.

A Miniature Patio.

Before it lie the banks of the scarlet Christmas flower, and beyond them the suggestion of sun-mellowed adobe wall and the miniature of a Spanish patio. A flagstone walk the length of the display provides a vista ending in pendant tropical fronds. Overhead, along the walls, is the heavy foliage of the rubber tree.

The technique of suggestion has been maintained with the hand of a Poe or a Monet. Among the poinsettias are flowers alien to Mexico, but they enhance the atmosphere. Even the names of stevias, Christmas cherries, begonias and Alpine violets fail to shatter that artfully built-up mood.

The holiday show will continue over New Year's, but probably only today will visitors be able to see another tropical masterpiece—of nature rather than art—back in the Alcove House adjoining the Display House.

Discovery in Jamaica.

In 1924 Superintendent Pring, returning from an orchid hunt, stopped at the Hope Botanic Gardens in Kingston, Jamacai. There he was amazed by a 30-foot mass of silvery blossoms.

"That," explained his flattered host, "is the camoensis maxima, one of the finest climbing plants in the tropics."

The minute Pring returned to the garden he went to the Alcove House. There was a small plant of the climber. It had shown little development since the garden acquired it in 1912, but from that minute it got special attention.

Last year it bloomed for the first time, tentatively and sparcely. Today it shows 30 to 40 gossamer flowers, white fringed with yellow the first day, with chocolate the second, and fading on the third.

VETERAN, FACING TRIAL, KILLS SELF

Roman A. Wargin, Ends Life in Milwaukee—Funeral Here Tomorrow.

The funeral of Roman A. Wargin, wounded war veteran, who killed himself with gas Tuesday night at his home in Milwaukee, Wis., will be held tomorrow in St. Louis, the former home of his widow, Mrs. Lee Pauley Wargin. Ill health resulting from his wartime injuries, financial reverses and worry over an impending prosecution in Federal Court apparently prompted his act, according to farewell notes.

Wargin, who was 30 years old, operated the Wargin & Wargin steamship agency which specialized in handling the passage of immigrants, dealing mostly with Polish aliens. In connection with his business he had been indicted for bringing a woman into the country illegally. The case was to have been tried last Wednesday, but over Wargin's protests that his business was being ruined, it was continued until January.

In the United States Army when the war started, he was among the first men to go overseas where he was wounded and shell shocked while a member of a field battery company in the Second Division. He left the service in 1921 with the rank of Sergeant-Major, after considerable time in veterans' hospitals. He lived in St. Louis for a few months in 1923, later going to Milwaukee.

When his body was found, Mrs. Wargin, with their 7-year-old son, was in St. Louis visiting her sister, Mrs. Oscar Winter of 7356 Lyndover place. In a note to his wife he begged forgiveness and asked that the boy receive a military education. In a letter to a friend, he complained of "fair weather friends," business reverses and ill health, and stated that his creditors had nothing to fear.

The funeral will be at 9:30 a. m. from Roberts chapel, 1905 South Grand boulevard, with burial in Valhalla Cemetery.

HOW LOBBYISTS OF BIG BUSINESS RUN CAMPAIGNS

Testimony of Head of $170,000,000 Cuba Co., Before Senate Committee Bares Their Operations.

MODERN 'SET-UP' IS EXPLAINED

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—With H. C. Lakin, president of the $170,000,000 Cuba Co., as its only witness, the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee learned during the last week how a big business organization conducts a legislative campaign in Washington, taking as much care as a field marshal to be prepared on all fronts.

When Lakin appeared before the committee several weeks ago, he disarmed the committee by his apparent frankness, in fact, Chairman Caraway complimented him for his candor. Since then, however, the committee's investigators gained access to the Cuba Co.'s correspondence files. Armed with selected letters and telegrams, the committee members, particularly Senators Caraway and Thomas J. Walsh, gave Lakin the same treatment they meted out to an entirely different type of lobbyist, J. A. Arnold of the American Taxpayers' League and the Southern Tariff Association.

As president of the Cuba Co., Lakin was interested in the sugar schedule of the pending tariff bill. Any increase in the tariff on Cuban sugar naturally would affect adversely the profits of his company, any decrease would enhance them. Therefore, he desired that the present rate of 1.76 cents a pound either be retained or lowered. To this end, according to the letters offered in evidence, he was willing to spend $150,000.

Old Practices Unpopular.

Lakin told the committee Friday that he realized that the old-fashioned lobbying practices of the Grant administration were no longer popular or effective in Washington. His set-up is modern, but how effective it is remains to be seen.

Edwin P. Shattuck, New York lawyer and personal friend of President Hoover and Chairman Smoot of the Senate Finance Committee, was the low sugar tariff group's friend at court. Shattuck had been counsel for the Federal Sugar Equalization Board during and shortly after the World War and as the President's "closest legal friend" had entree to the White House. For his services he will receive at least $50,000, and perhaps $75,000, the letters disclosed.

Lakin elected to look after the Cuban interests. He corresponded directly with President Machado of Cuba, members of Machado's Cabinet and the Cuban sugar mill owners. The correspondence also disclosed that he was a close personal friend of Secretary of State Stimson and that Stimson's wife was a cousin of Mrs. Lakin. In one letter Lakin promised that he would have a personal and confidential talk with Stimson about Cuban and Philippine sugar rates, but he testified that he did not try to carry out the plan. In his many letters, Lakin boasted of Shattuck's intimacy with President Hoover and Senator Smoot. These letters are now causing him and Shattuck much embarrassment.

Anti-U. S. Propaganda.

Lakin took full personal responsibility for a letter he wrote to Secretary of Cuban Communications Avalli, proposing that two or three reliable persons might be able to stir up distrust of the United States in Central and South America by news articles to the effect that, despite close ties and protestations for friendship, Cuba had suffered under the American tariff system.

When the committee reconvenes next week, Lakin will be questioned further about his proposal. Senator Caraway has insisted that the proposal was carried out and claims to have copies of the newspaper articles to prove it.

To look after the Senate and Washington newspaper correspondents, Lakin employed Col. John H. Carroll, the $150,000-a-year lobbyist, at $4500 a month. Carroll also is counsel for the Cuban Embassy in Washington. Lakin testified that he was well satisfied with Carroll's activities, although the Colonel had testified that he had done little or nothing to earn the $4500 a month.

Gladys Moon Jones, a Washington publicity woman, was hired by Lakin to get out press releases and supply country newspapers with Washington news. This press service, Lakin said, costs $700 a week and covered Mrs. Jones' salary and expenses.

For the "Window Dressing."

These four persons bore the brunt of the Cuban sugar tariff campaign and were to receive most of the money. Two others were brought in for "window-dressing" purposes. Major-General Enoch H. Crowder, former American Ambassador to Cuba, was given a small retainer and expenses because he was received in the highest circles in Washington. George A. Zabriskie, formerly president of the Sugar Equalization Board, was made president of the United States Sugar Association, because he was a friend of President Hoover. Zabriskie was not paid.

The Cuban sugar strategy included only defensive tactics in the House of Representatives. Lakin, nevertheless, was on the alert for a man who might operate in that sector. In one letter he stated that he understood that Congressman Cordell Hull (Dem.), Tennessee, woul retire March 4, last, and he asked whether Hull would be of any use to the Cuban sugar interests. Hull, of course, was not retiring March 4. As a consistent low tariff Democrat, immensely popular in the House, Hull would be a tower of strength in any low tariff campaign.

Taken Care of in House.

The lobby committee was curious to know how Lakin had apparently overlooked the House of Representatives and the Ways and Means Committee in his program. Lakin's explanation was simplicity itself. Congressman Charles B. Timberlake of Colorado, he said, was chairman of the Sugar Subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee. Timberlake, Lakin asserted, was personally interested in beet sugar production and, therefore, against Cuban importation. As subcommittee chairman, Lakin explained, Timberlake would be permitted to write a higher tariff on Cuban sugar.

Not being able to conduct a frontal attack on the Timberlake high rate, Lakin said that his plan was "to raise doubt" in the minds of the Congressmen.

This he attempted to do by having his news service attack the Timberlake rate without specifying a substitute, in the hope that the congressmen, reading the attacks in their home papers, would refuse to approve the increase proposed by Timberlake. This attack was not successful. The House approved the Timberlake increase.

Lakin took punishment in the witness chair every day he appeared during the week. His boasting, confidential communications have resulted disastrously to him, but they have shed considerable illumination on how big business thinks a comprehensible lobby should be operated.

2-YEAR-OLD SMOKER

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.
BILLY WATTER.

2-YEAR-OLD ST. LOUIS BOY SMOKES CIGARS

Picked Up Habit Accidentally at Seven Months—Never Ill, Mother Says.

One of John Wattler's penuchle partners carelessly left his cigar stump smoking on an ash tray on the parlor floor when he departed and that was how Billy Wattler, then 7 months old, started smoking. Billy had three dominant instincts, to travel, to cry and to stuff things into his mouth.

Fulfilling this instinct to travel, Billy hitched along the floor until he reached the ash tray where the cigar glowed. Here his instinct to cram things into his mouth got the better of him, and in went the cigar. Fortunately, he put the right end in first. When his parents came back from the front porch they took the cigar from his mouth. Here instinct came to his rescue again, and Billy cried. He cried so much that he got the cigar back, and ever since has smoked. He is now 2 years old.

His present capacity is three cigars a day, plus a few drags on a pipe or cigarette, according to his mother. One of his habits, which smacks of the inveterate cigar smoker, is to smoke a cigar half way before retiring and lay the stump aside for consumption on arising in the morning.

"Billy hasn't had a day of sickness since he started smoking, and is normal in every way," said Mrs. Wattler. "None of his brothers care for it." Billy has five brothers, ranging in age from 14 to 8 months.

Wattler is a mechanic. The family lives at 319 Steins street.

Maj. Pickering has been manager of the New Coliseum since March, 1925.

TWO PEDESTRIANS, HIT BY AUTOMOBILES, DIE

T. P. Hoxsey, 72, and Charles Brewer, 38, Succumb to Injuries.

Two pedestrians injured by automobiles died yesterday.

Tristram P. Hoxsey, superintendent of the Amman-Burg Milling Co., died at Christian Hospital of injuries suffered Thursday. When crossing Holly avenue at Rosalie avenue, he was truck by an automobile owned by George Lubeley, 4550 Holly, vice president of the Natural Bridge Bank. At the hospital he was treated for fracture of the skull and thigh, and internal injuries. He was 72 years old and resided at 4414 Athlone avenue.

Charles Brewer, 2820A South Broadway, died at City Hospital of injuries suffered last Wednesday when he stepped from the curb at Broadway and Trudeau street in front of the southbound automobile of Aurelio Swain, 4112A Manchester avenue.

Brewer, knocked down, suffered fractures of the skull and nose. He was 38 years old, a laborer. His widow and four children survive.

Charles Daniel, 61, 3649 Cass avenue, suffered a skull fracture and probable internal injuries yesterday when knocked down by an automobile driven by Roy Dover, 3873 Delmar boulevard, on Spring avenue near Easton avenue.

IN JAIL FOR 27 DAYS ON $10 SPEEDING FINE

Salesman Who Couldn't Pay on Spot Held by Delay and Rising Costs.

Inability to pay, on the spot, a fine of $10 and $16.50 costs on a speeding charge in Justice Orville P. Worley's Court in Carondelet Township Nov. 20, cost Marvin Butler 27 days in jail. With all but three days of his term behind him, he was released on parole yesterday, his case having come to the attention of the County Parole Board, comprising four Circuit Judges.

He had chosen the jail term when, on proffering the money for his fine a few days after his arrest, he found that the costs had suddenly risen from $16.50 to $34.50.

Butler, 22 years old, 2907A South Broadway, a salesman, was arrested on Nov. 18, charged with speeding and careless driving on U. S. Highway No. 61, south of St. Louis. On assessment of the fine, he explained that his employer would come to his assistance the following day. Accordingly, he was taken to Clayton and locked up.

During the next two days, his employer, Clarence A. Neverman of the Clark Sanding Machine Co., 222 Victoria street, made three trips to Clayton in an effort to pay the fine and obtain Butler's release, but on each occasion was told by the Clayton officers that the transcript of the case had not arrived from Justice Worley's Court and no records were available as to the amount.

Then, five days after Butler's conviction, the transcript arrived by mail to disclose that fine and costs had been commuted to 30 days in jail. Neverman again sought to pay the fine only to learn costs had been increased $18, due to mileage and commitment fees. Whereupon, Butler decided to remain in jail.

When in discussion of the case before the Parole Board yesterday, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Woolsey remarked facetiously that he believed the ends of justice had been served. Circuit Judge Lashly cut him off with the order:

"Don't mention the word justice in connection with this case again."

Clayton authorities place the blame for Butler's predicament on Justice Worley for failure to send the transcript of the case along with the prisoner as is commonly done.

Worley contended the law does not specify when the transcript shall be sent.

Priest's Body in New Tomb.

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 14.—The body of the Rev. Patrick J. Power today lay in a new grave in Holy Cross Cemetery. The body was removed from the grave where it had lain for 60 years to the new resting place. More accessible, and but 75 yards away, in front of All Souls' Chapel. No intimation was given today as to when the cemetery will again be opened to the public.

Two Oil Engineers Killed.

By the Associated Press.

BARTLESVILLE, Ok., Dec. 14.—Burns suffered in an explosion which wrecked the United States Bureau of Mines experimental station last night, killing R. R. Bradenthaler, petroleum engineer, caused the death today of Meredith Milese, 28 years old, junior engineer. Two other men, Robert E. Holt, Machinist, and Gustave Wave, dynamite expert, burned slightly, were released today from a hospital. Bradenthaler was enveloped by flames and his body could not be recovered until after the fire had been brought under control. Miles was conscious only a few minutes before he died.

The reason the GLOBE STORE keeps on increasing and enlarging while others are crying "hard times" is the simple fact that thousands of so-called stylish dressers are beginning to realize that this store carries everything that is stylish in Men's and Boys' Wearing Apparel at prices that are materially less than high-rent district stores ask for the same merchandise. They are coming back home to the store where their fathers and grandfathers got their first knee pants.

WIFE TESTIFIES ABOUT BREAK OVER M'CORMICK'S CARE

Both Sides in Multi-Millionaire's Guardianship Suit Rest, Court Adjourned to Wednesday.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 14.—With the dismissal of Mrs. Katherine McCormick from the witness stand at noon today, both sides rested their cases in the Superior Court hearing into the guardianship of Stanley McCormick, incompetent multimillionaire. Judge William Dehy then adjourned court until Wednesday when each faction will be allowed two hours for argument prior to submission of the contest for decision.

The delay until Wednesday was due to Judge Dehy's return to his own court in Inyo County to hear cases Monday and Tuesday.

Events which led to the split between the guardians of McCormick were related from the witness stand by his wife, under defense cross-examination at the hearing today.

Oscar Lawler, chief defense counsel for Harold F. McCormick, a brother of the invalid, and Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, a sister, who, with the wife, compose his guardians, drew admissions from Mrs. McCormick that her dissatisfaction with her husband's present physician, Dr. E. J. Kempf, resulted partly from his reception of doctors whom she sent to examine the patient.

The wife, who is seeking sole guardianship of her husband on the grounds that his brother and sister are providing improper medical treatment, said Dr. Kempf on recent occasions either had refused to allow other physicians to see her husband or had permitted them to be with him but brief periods.

Mrs. McCormick alleges that psycho-analytical treatments prescribed by Dr. Kempf are not aiding her husband and that the salary of $120,000 a year paid to him, is exorbitant and a waste of the patient's $50,000,000 fortune.

The defense's attempt to show that Mrs. McCormick had refused to co-operate with the coguardians by holding private discussions of her husband's case with outside physicians was met by bitter objections from the plaintiff's counsel, all of which were overruled.

The plaintiff's testimony consumed two days and a half. At this morning's session she told of a conference with Dr. Kempf, in February, 1928, during which Dr. Kempf told her not to see her husband. Attorney Lawler brought out that after the conference the wife called Kenneth McKillip, then chief nurse, and asked him to learn what the psycho-analytical treatments were that Dr. Kempf was giving. McKillip said the treatments were given in a locked room and he could not find out what went on.

Lawler then brought out an attempt by Mrs. Blaine in August, 1928, to talk to Mrs. McCormick about the case. Both were in Chicago. Mrs. McCormick failed to make an appointment with her sister-in-law. Mrs. Blaine then sent a note to Mrs. McCormick, saying:

"You apparently do not respond to my wish. Cyrus (Cyrus H. McCormick) says you think I have animosity against you. I have none. Next to what his illness means ot Stanley, I care most what it means to you."

Lawler then mentioned a board of guardians and asked Mrs. McCormick if she were chairman.

"I am chairman," she said, "if there is a board of guardians."

FOUR MEN ARRESTED IN DRY RAID ON O'FALLON FARM

Agents Led by Haley Destroy 30,000 Gallons of Mash and 90 Gallons of Alcohol.

Federal agents, accompanied by Prohibition Administrator Haley, seized a still yesterday in a four-room house on the old O'Fallon farm, Manchester road, near Barrett Station road.

In the residence were 30,000 gallons of mash and 90 gallons of alcohol. Ten gallons of alcohol were found loaded in a truck, which was seized. The mash and alcohol were destroyed.

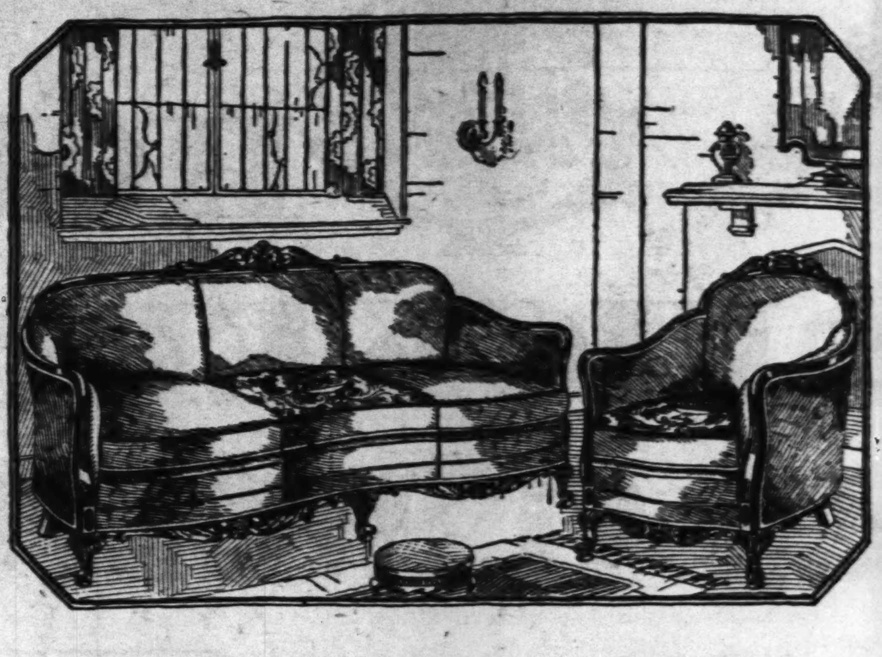
Four men against whom warrants were issued gave their names as Marco Guiffuda, Mike Passinisi, Alfio Frentena and William Bowen. Bowen, a Negro, said he was employed by W. C. Westlake, a landscape gardener, 7134 Manchester avenue. Westlake told the agents that he had a five-year lease on the farm, but had sublet the residence to a man he thought was living there.

Two Die of Burns From Still.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Dec. 14.—Death this afternoon claimed the second of two men who were burned when an illicit liquor still exploded in a house here. Joe Covey died in a hospital today three hours after his companion, Roy Knowles, had succumbed to burns. The house in which the explosion occurred had been rented to R. C. Colt, who was released from jail today on bond after being charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance.

Beautify the Home with Furniture this Christmas



An excellent idea is for the whole family to join together in giving the home a suite of furniture as a gift . . . a gift whose beauty and usefulness will extend far into the future. As typical of the vast display at Kennards, we are showing these groups. Others are here too, at higher and lower prices . . . all are true values.

A Gift of Comfort for the Living Room

HERE is a suite whose praises we might well sing loud and long for it is indeed exceptional. . . . Its flowing, graceful lines and intricate carving are mentally pleasing, while its soft depths are physically comforting. Frames are solid mahogany; covers are taupe mohair all around with cushions reversed in frieze. . . It is unusually desirable at this low price for two pieces.

5-piece Bridge Sets (Table and 4 Chairs) for 10 days REDUCED 20%

A Gift of Charm for the Dining Room

THESE pieces in the Duncan Phyfe style are in mahogany with beautiful veneers of crotch wood on the fronts, while lovely straight-grain mahogany is used on the tops; posts, sills and chairs are in the solid wood. The typical clustered legs have the customary brass tips. Note the distinctive charm and grace of the ladder-back chairs. The suite consists of 8-ft. Extension Table with two apron leaves; 66-in. Buffet, China Cabinet, Server, one Armchair and five Side Chairs covered in genuine haircloth. Without a doubt you will find that this is the finest suite we have ever offered at or near this remarkably low price.

10 pieces . . . $395.00 Specially Priced

A Gift of Restfulness for the Bedroom

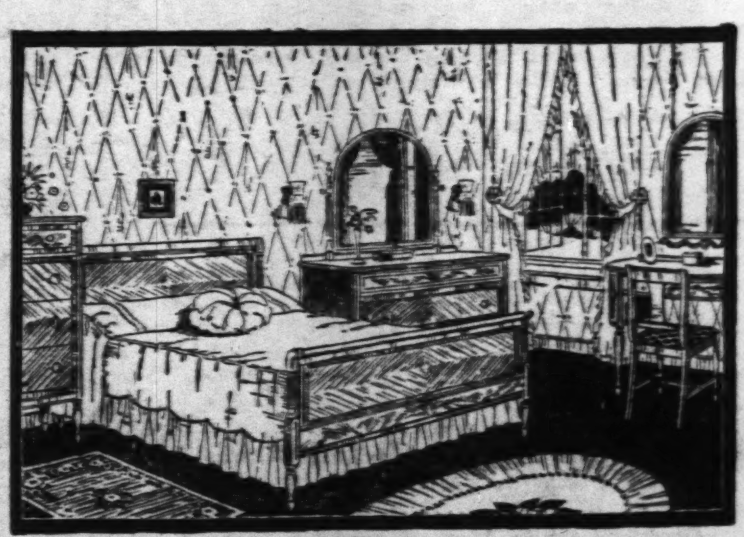
A BEDROOM GROUP must be pleasing and individual, but at the same time it must create a feeling of restfulness and repose. These factors, we feel, are combined in this suite to an unusual degree. It is of diamond matched and crotch walnut veneers, with a distinctive note introduced by means of a narrow band of inlay. The construction is dustproof. Bed, Dresser, Chest and round front Dressing Table.

4 pieces . . . $295.00



As a Special Feature . . . Mattress and Box Spring

We are featuring for the days remaining before Christmas a very fine Mattress and an equally good Box Spring

The Mattress is of high-grade cotton, with stitched sides and loops for turning. Covered in ACA tick. $15.00

The Box Spring is of sound construction, and is made to be used with this mattress. Also in ACA tick. $28.50

COMMUNITY FUND STILL $298,654 SHORT OF GOAL

Effort to Raise $1,850,000 Needed to Get Conditional Pledges of $150,000 Continued.

The Community Fund campaign closes tomorrow night following intensive efforts today and tomorrow to attain the minimum goal of $2,000,000 required for the needs of 51 agencies. Workers last night were $298,654 short of the $1,850,000 needed to collect $150,000 in conditional pledges.

Emergency pledge cards will be distributed at 500 churches today and the fund workers will continue their solicitations until their final report meeting at 6 o'clock tomorrow night at the Chase Hotel, which marks the close of the campaign, already extended three days.

Contributors are asked to give additional amounts and efforts are being made to get in touch with every one who has not signed a pledge.

In order to facilitate the last minute activities of the workers the public has been asked to send or mail subscriptions to Community Fund headquarters, at the Hotel Statler without waiting to be urged to contribute and to place a check or cash in the envelopes left at residences by Boy Scouts and mail them in the morning.

More than 400 women sold tags, bearing the red heart emblem of the campaign, yesterday and "Community Fund" barrels were placed in public buildings and at street corners.

Workers on emergency roving assignments are obtaining pledges and contributions today everywhere they can.

Pledges of $1000 or more not previously announced follow:

Harry F. Knight, $6500; Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., $6000; Mr. W. K. Bixby, $4000; Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Shinkle (jointly), $4400; Vesper-Buick Auto Co., $3000; Chevrolet Motor $2500; Graham Paper Co., $2500; Mr. and Mrs. William N. Bemis (jointly), $1200; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Kieselhorst (jointly), $1200; Sonnenfeld Millinery Co., $1200; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Moreno (jointly), $1000.

MRS. PHILIP PLANT'S DIVORCE

Former Constance Bennett Wins Decree at Nice, France.

By the Associated Press.

NICE, France, Dec. 14.—A local court today granted a divorce to Mrs. Philip Plant, the former Constance Bennett, daughter of the actor, Richard Bennett. The case began 10 months ago.

Miss Bennett and Plant were married on Nov. 3, 1925, in Greenwich, Conn., after Miss Bennett's former marriage in 1921 had been annulled. Her first husband was Chester Hirst Moorehead, a University of Virginia student. There have been many rumors and denials of divorce proceedings between Miss Bennett and Plant. On March 19 Miss Bennett's divorce was said to be "pending" in four Nice courts.

15,000 Hear Lindsborg Chorus.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—Lindsborg, Kan., sang its way into the hearts of a large crowd at Convention Hall here tonight when a chorus of 550 voices gave its famous rendition of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." For many years the chorus, sponsored by Bethany College, has sung the famous masterpiece. Hagbard Brase directed tonight's concert. A large orchestra, also from Lindsborg, accompanied the singers. Approximately 15,000 visitors came here today by train.

Capt. J. M. Glenn of Sedalia Dies.

By the Associated Press.

SEDALIA, Mo., Dec. 14.—Capt. John M. Glenn, Police Magistrate, who served as Postmaster at Sedalia under the administrations of Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, died at his home today. He had been in ill health for some time. He was 80 years old. Besides his widow, Mr. Glenn leaves two daughters and two sons, Miss Madge Glenn, Sedalia; Mrs. Flora Cousley, Minneapolis, Minn.; Harry Glenn, Riverside, Cal., and Leonard Glenn, Wichita Falls, Tex.

HOUSE WET BLOC ORGANIZES AT CALL OF LA GUARDIA

Anti-Prohibitionists Urged to Be in "Constant and Daily Attendance on the Floor."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Members of the House wet bloc after a meeting today to determine legislative tactics to follow in looking toward repeal of the dry laws, issued a plea to the anti-prohibitionists for "constant and daily attention" on the floor of the House.

A committee appointed at the meeting issued a statement that "there is complete harmony in our ranks and an earnest determination to carry on the fight and take it to all parts of the country." The meeting was called by Representative La Guardia, (Rep.), N. Y.

An organization meeting was called for Jan. 9, at which officers will be elected. The statement said "We are in a position as national legislators to observe the hypocrisy and the costliness of prohibition and the breakdown and failure of the attempted enforcement."

'TREATS AND TREATIES' AT GRIDIRON DINNER

President Sees Droll Sketch on Foreign Policies—Brookhart Target of Jests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Important people and important events were seen tonight through the eyes of newspapermen, turned philosophers, jesters and caricaturists, at the annual December dinner of the gridiron club.

If some of the wit had a whip like edge, the sting was taken from it by melody and broad good humor. Foreign relations, taxation, the farm problem, the tariff and all that solemn group that march day after day across the front pages of the country under a Washington date line were treated in satirical style.

President Hoover was there but that did not prevent a sharp, yet droll scrutiny of his administration, nor the presentation by the club of its own super-classic movie "treats and treaties, or the high cost of good will." It depicted the visit of the foreign minister of a country the club called, San Marino. There were conferences, acclaim, 420 interviews and the reel showing his departure was captioned "Hands Across the Sea." The picture closed with a display of newspaper headlines six months later.

"Senate rejects Good Will pact 95 to 0."

A comment on the Hoover penchant for naming commissions to gather facts and make recommendations was consideration by the "Commission-a-Month Club" of a motion to take a recess "before this becomes the Commission-a-Minute Club."

The President had his opportunity to speak his mind freely before the evening was over but only those present knew what he said.

Other speakers were Jimmy Walker, Mayor of New York, and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin.

The new officers of the club include Charles S. Groves of Boston, president and V. Harry Cunningham of Washington, secretary.

TWO JUDGES TO MOVE INTO NEW COURTHOUSE AFTER JAN. 1

Will Take Quarters as First Occupants of $4,500,000 Structure, Committee Decides.

Two civil divisions of the Circuit Court probably will take quarters in the new Civil Courthouse after Jan. 1 as the first occupants of the $4,500,000 structure. A committee of Circuit Judges and Comptroller Nolte decided upon the feasibility of this after an inspection of the building yesterday.

It was found there would be no difficulty in taking possession of two court rooms on the sixth floor of the new building next month. The building is being heated already and the elevators are in service. The west door will be used for a business entrance and the east door for materials for the construction work still going on in some portions, with a temporary partition in the lobby.

It is planned to move all the other civil divisions to the new courthouse in June or July, when the disturbance to court business will be minimized.

Robert H. Moser, Glass Manufacturer, Made Bequests to Brothers and Employe.

The St. Louis Children's Hospital, Mount St. Rose Hospital and Memorial Home, 2609 South Grand boulevard, each will receive $2603 under the will of Robert H. Moser, an iridescent glass manufacturer.

In his will Mr. Moser, who lived at 2800 Locust street, made specific bequests totaling $8000 and left the $7827 residue of his estate to the three institutions mentioned. A final settlement filed in Probate Court yesterday by Fred J. Hoffmeister, attorney for the estate, showed the net amount left for the residuary legatees.

The will gave $2000 each to Otto W. Moser, Ernst J. Moser and Louis Moser, brothers, and the same amount to Henry Remmert, an employe, who recently purchased Moser's glass business at 2219 St. Charles street. Mr. Moser died at Mount St. Rose Hospital Oct. 12, 1928.

LOSES $16,960 FIRE CLAIM

A jury in Circuit Judge Mulloy's court at Clayton returned a verdict Friday for the Missouri Pacific Railroad in the suit of Abe Finer, Brentwood grocer and junk dealer, rejecting his claim for $16,960 damages, resulting from a fire that destroyed his junk yard in 1926.

Finer claimed the fire was started from sparks from a Missouri Pacific locomotive that passed his yard on North and South road. The trial lasted five days and 55 witnesses were heard. The preponderance of evidence was that the locomotive did not emit sparks; that the wind was blowing away from Finer's yard at the time of the fire, and that the fire probably was caused by explosions heard in the yard at the time.

2-YEAR-OLD BOY DIES OF BURNS

Clothing Ignited When He Was Playing Near Open Furnace.

Leo, 2-year-old son of Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, 6427 Hoffman avenue, died at City Hospital last night of burns suffered last Nov. 27 when his clothing became ignited as he was playing before the open door of a furnace.

SERVICE CAR DRIVERS ORDERED TO GET NEW INSURANCE

Director of Streets Tells to Take Out Liability Policies by Next Friday.

Director of Streets Brooks has notified 240 service car drivers they must obtain new liability insurance by next Friday or they will be operating in violation of the city ordinance which requires insurance for the protection of passengers.

Of the 275 drivers now operating, 240 belong to a union which obtained insurance from the Travelers and Operators' Mutual Insurance Co. of Kansas City. The company and the union have been at odds lately, and Director Brooks now has beeen informed by the company that it is cancelling the insurance on the 240 drivers next Friday.

WIFE OF MAN SAID TO BE SLAIN, FOUND

To Confront Supposed Connie Franklin, for Whose Murder Five Go to Trial Tomorrow.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 14.—This town is filled to overflowing with attorneys, newspaper men and witnesses waiting for the opening of the Circuit Court Monday, when the trial of five men charged with the murder of Connie Franklin will begin. The five defendants are Aleck Fulks, Joe White, Herman Greenway, Bill Younger and Hubert Hester.

Sheriff Sam Johnson has sworn in a special force of deputies in an effort to maintain order following sporadic outbreaks of fist fights in the streets here. The fights arose over discussions of whether Connie Franklin really was murdered as Tiller Ruminer, his 17-year-old sweetheart says he was last March 9.

The cause for doubt is the presence of a man who arrived last Sunday to proclaim himself to be Connie Franklin.

Prosecuting Attorney Hugh Williamson announced that the mother, sister and wife of Connie Franklin had been found and would confront the man who says he is Franklin. Prosecutor Williamson, who is opposing his brother, Ben Williamson, attorney for the defense in this case, said he had learned that Franklin's mother, Mrs. Clarence Combs, was in Oxford, Ark., and that he has arranged for the presence here of Franklin's sister and his wife, whom he deserted after escaping from the state asylum in Little Rock, in Feb., 1927.

The Prosecutor said he was positive the man who calls himself Connie Franklin is not the man who was confined in the asylum.

He said his first action at the opening of the trial Monday would be to ask for a court order permitting the thorough examination and fingerprinting of the man who says he is Franklin, to determine whether he is a former inmate of the asylum. The man has refused to submit to such an examination.

After announcing this, the prosecutor left for Batesville and Newport to investigate certain angles of the case, the nature of which he would not disclose.

The records of the State Hospital, where Franklin was confined from 1926 until he escaped in 1927, show him to be about 5 feet 6 inches tall, with light hair and gray eyes. The newcomer is two or three inches taller, of swarthy complexion, dark hair and brown eyes.

Tiller Ruminer has denied positively that she ever before saw the man calling himself Franklin, although he is reported to have pointed her out in a group of six girls.

The defense indicated that it might seek separate trials for each of the defendants.

The State has summoned approximately 100 witnesses and the defense attorneys say they will call more than 30. Forty-eight veniremen have been ordered summoned by Circuit Judge Marcus M. Bone of Batesville, who will preside.

The court room seats only about 100 persons, which is less than the number of witnesses alone.

MOVIE BUSINESS GOOD, MAGNATES TELL HOOVER

Usual Pre-Christmas Slump Reduced About 15 Per Cent This Year.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — A group of moving picture and theater magnates gave President Hoover a pleasing picture today of conditions in their industry.

The group that called on the President included Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Motion Picture Corporation, Sam Katz, president of the Publix Theater Corporation, and Emanuel Cohen, editor of Paramount Sound News Pictures.

Acting as spokesman for the group, Zukor said a banner year was in prospect. He added the usual pre-Christmas season slump was reduced about 15 per cent this year.

"World's Shortest Railway" Quits.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. — What has been called the world's shortest railway went out of existence tonight. It is the Van Brunt Street Railway, operating over some mile and a quarter of tracks in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn. Edward L. Kelly, receiver for the line, said its passenger revenues were not sufficient to keep it going. Four combination motormen and conductors operated its decrepit cars.

La Salle Street, Chicago, Blocked Off Under Heavy Police Guard.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—La Salle street, financial center of the west, today became an armed camp for the removal of $1,000,000,000 in cash and securities to the new Foreman State National Bank.

For two blocks the street was closed to traffic while 65 uniformed policemen, three detective bureau squads with machine guns and nine plain-clothes men patrolled the streets.

U.S. INVESTIGATION OF ILLINOIS MINE STRIKE AGITATORS

Department of Justice Agents to Question 80 in Taylorville Jail — Deportation Sought.

The National Miners' Union strike in the Southern Illinois Coal Fields, opposed by United Mine Workers of America, which the former organization seeks to supplant, suffered a series of setbacks yesterday.

Developments included:

Departure from St. Louis of Department of Justice agents to aid in the questioning of 80 strike agitators in jail at Taylorville and announcement by State's Attorney Harry B. Grundy that deportation proceedings probably would be started against alien strikers.

Return to work of employes of two of six mines closed by a walkout Monday.

Resumption of work at Lumaghi Mine No. 2 near Collinsville where miners suspended operation after pickets blockaded the highway.

Failure to stop work at the Livingston Mine of the New Staunton Coal Co., where pickets induced only half of the workers not to work.

Decision to continue work by miners at the St. Louis & O'Fallon Coal Co. mine, reputed stronghold of National Miners' Union in the Belleville subdistrict.

State's Attorney Grundy and Sheriff D. L. Dunbar spent yesterday questioning prisoners and making a record of the status of their citizenship. Henry Corbishley, State secretary of the National Miners' Union, was arrested at Coella, charged with disorderly conduct, and taken to Benton, where county officers filed charges of inciting a riot and unlawful assembly.

According to Sheriff Pritchard, Corbishley is on parole from the State penitentiary, where he was sentenced to serve a term of from one to 14 years for participating in an unauthorized strike at Ziegler, Ill., in which two miners were injured.

George Voyzey, State president of the organization, arrested Wednesday, is in jail at Benton.

The resumption of work by 500 men at the Peabody Mine No. 8 at Tovey and the Pana Coal Co. Mine No. 1 at Pana was a serious setback for the strikers. At the Peabody mine more than half of the regular force of 800 men took up their picks yesterday while a few strikers stood about the shaft. Two men, who taunted Deputy Sheriffs on guard there, were arrested, but no disturbance resulted. About one-third of the men employed at the Pana mine went to work.

E. C. Argust, general superintendent of the Peabody mines said No. 58 at Taylorville had 89 men on hand and that No. 7 at Kincaid, still under military guard, had 34 men working.

By a vote of 160 to 11, 400 miners at the Lumaghi Coal Co. Mine No. 2 near Collinsville, decided to return to work yesterday after strikers blockaded a bridge over Canteen Creek Friday morning, as their first attempt to carry the strike in the Belleville subdistrict.

Only Half Stay Away.

Transferring about 40 pickets to the Livingston Mine of the New Staunton Coal Co. yesterday they succeeded in keeping only half of the 375 men employed there away from work. Henry Lorson, president of the Local Union No. 2656 of the United Mine Workers, declared that the output there yesterday was 50 per cent of normal and that the mine would be in operation tomorrow.

The Nigger Hollow local of the United Mine Workers, most of whom are employed at the St. Louis & O'Fallon mine, which was claimed by National Miners' Union leaders as a sympathetic group, voted yesterday not to strike.

The Taylor mine at O'Fallon did not operate yesterday, but it was explained that a broken generator was responsible.

Fat Pay Day Helps to Break Morale of Strikers.

By the Associated Press.

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Dec. 14.—Belief was expressed by mine officials tonight that the National Miners' Union coal strike in Illinois is fading in the face of Christmas needs.

While pickets of the National Miners' Union—offshoot of the United Mine Workers of America—were dispersed as fast as they appeared at mines, hundreds of miners filed quietly back to their places under ground.

Hundreds more issued forth from the black earth at quitting time, their pockets bulging with money on one of the fattest paydays on record in the Southern Illinois field. Because of this, mine officials predicted that whistle time on Monday morning would find most of the mines operating at full blast.

Confidence in the international organization of mine workers headed by John L. Lewis was voted today by 600 members of the United Mine Workers' Union local at West Frankfort. This body voted to remain idle Dec. 17 as a mark of respect for Lewis, who on that day will seek to dissolve an injunction obtained by the opposing state faction. The state faction seeks to retain control of the union in Illinois.

HIGBEE, MO., BANKER DIES

George F. Lay Was Member of Several Masonic Orders.

By the Associated Press.

HIGBEE, Mo., Dec. 14.—George F. Lay, 52, president of the Citizens Bank of Higbee, Mo., died at his home today. Death was said to have been due to acute indigestion.

4-YEAR SENTENCES 48 HOURS AFTER ROBBERY

Two Youths Hold Up Webster Groves Drug Store, Plead Guilty When Arrested.

About 48 hours after they had robbed a drug store in Webster Groves, William Helling, 17 years old, a chauffeur, and Edwin G. Brown, 20-year-old mechanic, both of 717 North Spring avenue, pleaded guilty yesterday and were sentenced to four years each in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton on charges of second degree burglary and larceny.

It was Helling's second sentence for robbery of the same store.

Arrested on suspicion by University City police early Friday morning when they were found seated in a rented car parked near a filling station at Olive street road and Kingsland avenue, the two confessed the burglary of the Ambrose Mueller Drug Co., Big Bend boulevard and Elm avenue, Webster Groves, early Thursday morning, in which they obtained $65. Empty coin wrappers and an automatic pistol were found in the car at the time of their arrest. Helling was under parole at the time, having pleaded guilty on Sept. 28 to a burglary of the same store last July, in which $117 was obtained.

OPPOSES TAX PLAN OF MISSOURI SURVEY

Associated Industries Contends Improvement Fund Should Be Cut to $100,000,000.

The plan of financing improvements in State institutions and public schools by increased taxes, recommended by the State Survey Commission to Gov. Caulfield recently, is opposed by the board of directors of the Associated Industries of Missouri, which was active in support of the bill which created the commission.

The association, in a statement issued yesterday, recommended a special session of the Legislature to act on the commission's report and to provide for a further study or the tax question, holding that the commission had failed to make a complete survey of the financial rescources and expenditures of the various departments of the State Government.

The association contends that the amount of revenue required for a 12-year period of improvement could be reduced from $246,000,000 to about $100,000,000. It opposes the proposal to raise $142,000,000 by increases in income and corporation franchise taxes. The proposed expenditures of about $37,000,000 for new State buildings, $16,000,000 of which would be for the eleemosynary institutions and $8,000,000 for the State University, is approved by the association, but it is recommended that this be provided by a long-term bond issue.

Of the $246,000,000 in expenditures, recommended by the commission, about $144,000,000 was to go for the improvement of rural schols. This item, the association thinks, should be reduced by about one-half by limiting State aid to rural schools which have levied at least 65 cents on the $100 valuation in their districts.

PRESIDENT WANTS U. S. IN INTERNATIONAL LAW PARLEY

Recommends Congress Supply Funds to Pay Expenses of Delegates at the Hague.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Participation of the American Government in a conference on international law to be held at The Hague beginning on March 13 was recommended to Congress today by President Hoover.

The President requested an approporiation of $50,000 to pay expenses of American delegates. The conference will take up questions of nationality and territorial waters.

In a report accompanying the President's message Secretary Stimson said he believed it was "most important" that this country should participate "in view of the effect upon the conduct of our foreign relations."

The invitation to the conference was issued by the Secretary General of the League of Nations Oct. 15. The message and a draft of a resolution which would authorize participation were referred to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

DEMAND OF $223,901,000 FOR $100,000,000 TREASURY BILLS

Highest Bid Was 99.31, Equivalent to an Interest Rate of 2¾ Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—There were less than half enough of the first $100,000,000 issue of the new short term Treasury bills to satisfy the demand for this new form of government securities.

Secretary Mellon announced last night that bids opened by the Federal Reserve banks today disclosed applications totaling $223,901,000, of which $100,000,000 was accepted.

The highest bid was 99.310, equivalent to an interest rate of about 2¾ per cent on an annual basis. The lowest bid was 99.152, which would have given an interest rate of about 3⅜ per cent.

The average price of the bills to be issued is 99.181, and Secretary Mellon said the Treasury was informed that the securities would be dealt with on the same basis as bankers' bills. The average annual rate on a bank discount basis would be about 3¼ per cent.

CONFESSES MURDER OF TWO

By the Associated Press.

MUNCIE, Ind., Dec. 14.—James E. S. Wood, 30 years old, who has confessed he murdered Mr. and Mrs. George F. Heath, near Muncie, last Tuesday, was returned to Indiana today and placed in a jail, the situation of which was not disclosed. Wood was formerly employed at the Heath dairy farm. He said he did not know why he had done it.

Wood was captured near his home eight miles southwest of Albany, Ky., last night by Muncie officers, after the crime was discovered Thursday.

Made Colonel in Reserve Corps.

Lieutenant-Colonel James W. Skelly of 4231 Russell avenue, secretary for Missouri of the Scottish Rite and commander of the 359th Engineers, a St. Louis regiment of the Army Reserve Corps, has been promoted to the post of Colonel in the Reserve. Col. Skelly went overseas in the World War as a Captain in the Twelfth Engineers, a St. Louis light railway unit. He received a military cross from Great Britain and was promoted to the post of Major. He became a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Reserve in 1922.

Poison in Soup at Banquet.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—Dispatches to Excelsior from Pachuca today said that C. A. Conrads, superintendent of the San Rafael mine, his secretary and 30 other employes had been poisoned at a banquet in the mining company's restaurant. They were saved by quick application of stomach washes. Poison was found in the soup, but it could not be learned whether it had been accidentally or intentionally put there. A similar poisoning recently caused two deaths at the mine.

MEXICAN PENAL CODE OMITS DEATH PENALTY

Jury System Also Abandoned by Law Effective Today in Federal District.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—The new Federal penal code, abolishing the death sentence and the jury system, and providing other radical reforms, will become effective tomorrow in the Federal District and the territories.

The code was drawn up and promulgated under special powers granted by Congress to Provisional President Portes Gil. Because the Constitution gives the states autonomy in such matters, the code does not apply to them unless they choose to substitute it for the existing state laws.

The code stipulates that there shall be no punishment for the slaying of a mate caught in an act involving the slayer's honor, or for the slaying of the other party to the act, so long as the slayer has not before taken a life for similar reason. It allows a father to slay a daughter apprehended in an act of dishonor, and her seducer also.

The person who steals once to appease his hunger or that of those depending upon him, is free from punishment under the new code. The death penalty, except in cases of rebellion and certain political crimes, is abolished.

The jury system is replaced by verdicts from the bench, subject in all cases to confirmation by the Supreme Council of Defense and Social Prevention, which is established by the code and is composed of three attorneys, one alienist and a physician. The Judges of the lower courts study the evidence presented and pass sentence. The sentence is then submitted to the Supreme Council for final study and confirmation or rejection.

Among other reforms, the code stipulates that the parties to a prospective duel must submit their differences to a court of honor, which will endeavor to solve the dispute without bloodshed and in no case will be empowered to authorize the duel.

Treatment of venereal diseases will be obligatory, and severe punishment will be administered to anyone responsible for the transfer of such diseases.

A six-year penitentiary sentence will be imposed on a motorist responsible for an accident involving death.

MRS. C. H. SEMPLE, WIDOW OF STEEL MANUFACTURER, DIES

Succumbs at 84 in Home, 3757 Westminster Place; Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Mrs. Louise Gardner Semple, 84 years old, died yesterday of the infirmities of age at her home, 3757 Westminster place. The funeral will be held at the house at 2 p. m. tomorrow, followed by interment in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Mrs. Semple was the daughter of A. M. Gardner, an early St. Louis attorney and at one time Federal Judge. She was the widow of Charles H. Semple, iron and steel manufacturer, who died in 1914.

Mrs. Semple's birthplace was on Second street, in what is now a warehouse district. Her parents' home later was on Broadway, and the family removed to Sixteenth street when that street was in the city's outskirts.

She is survived by two sons, Richard Semple of De Soto, Mo., and Gilbert E. Semple of McKnight road, St. Louis County, and a daughter, Mrs. Horace S. Gilliam of the Westminster place address.

EDGE PRESENTS CREDENTIALS AS AMBASSADOR TO FRANCE

Although in Paris Only 24 Hours, He Meets Foreign Minister Briand.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Although in Paris less than 24 hours, Walter Evans Edge, new American Ambassador to France, took up his duties today by presenting a copy of his credentials to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand at the Quai d'Orsay.

The new emmissary and Briand held a brief conversation, during which they recalled their previous meetings at international conferences.

Edge is expected to present his credentials to President Doumergue at the Elysee Palace early next week. Immediately after this presentation, he will begin negotiations with the French Government for a Franro - American commercial treaty, according to reports.

Income Tax Notice.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Employers and other persons who have paid more than $1500 in wage incomes to employes or other persons as fixed income during 1929 must make their information returns to the Bureau of Internal Revenue not later than Feb. 15 next. The notice was issued today by the bureau, in view of the fact that this requires the filing of the information one month earlier than has been the case in previous years. In the case of employes known to be married, employers are not required to report 1929 wage payments that aggregate less than $3500.

Equal Rights for Jugo-Slav Jews.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 14.—King Alexander today signed a law recognizing the complete liberty of all persons professing the Jewish religion and of communities of the religion. Under the law, the Jewish Church has equality of rights with the Orthodox Catholic Church of the Kingdom.

BOY, 10, DISCLOSED AS KILLER, HIS MOTHER HAD CONFESSED

Grand Jury Decides Child's Act Was Justified; Went to Aid of Father.

By the Associated Press.

BELMAR, N. J., Dec. 14.—Raymond Kugler, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kugler of West Belmar, today was disclosed as the killer of William Studeman, his mother's friend. The mother had confessed the slaying last October. She was released from jail Thursday, when the grand jury heard the boy's story and refused to indict her. It also released the boy.

Prosecutor John J. Quinn today admitted that Raymond had confessed stabbing Studeman with a knife when he found him beating his (the boy's) father with an ax-handle. He said he thought he had cut Studeman in the arm, whereas in reality Studeman's jugular vein was severed.

Mrs. Kugler confessed to shield the boy, she said.

Raymond himself confessed immediately after the killing, but his mother insisted his story was not the truth.

The grand jury dismissed the case against the boy because it considered his action justified after he had told of seeing his father on the ground, unconscious and the six-foot tall Studeman pounding at his head with the ax handle.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 14.—Co champion Athletics, blames year-rou football for "waning interest in base ates," according to an interview aily, published today.

Mack said that professional base- ball's general ban of golf among ball players was due to a fear of the same thing—that the players would begin to talk of nothing but golf. The physical damage of golf, he added, amounts only to leg fatigue which is not serious.

The seven-time winner of the American League pennant told the Princetonian that a large measure of disinterest in baseball had its beginning in the fact that the col- lege game, at its height in the late 80's and the early 90's, began to deteriorate in quality. CUBS DISAPPROVE OF BOUT BETWEEN WILSON AND SHIRES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.

THE Chicago Cubs will urge Hack Wilson not to meet Charles Arthur (The Great) Shires in a professional boxing contest, William L. Veeck, president of the Cubs, said today. If Wilson decides to fight in violation of the Cubs' wishes, he will do so on his own accord, Veeck said.

President Veeck did not only declare himself opposed to "the battle of the centuries," but said the Cubs would not countenance the bout.

"This is a free country and Wilson is a free citizen," Veeck explained. "Wilson, if he chooses, can go through with the fight on his own volition, but will not have our permission."

A dispatch from Martinsburg, W. Va., tonight quoted Hack Wilson as saying he would not meet Shires unless given full permission by the Cub management.

FINANCIAL AID FOR ATHLETES APPROVED BY CONFERENCE

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 14.—A resolutio nof Maj. W. W. McKellar, faculty chairman of athletics at Sewanee, urging Southern conference schools to come right out in the open and defray the expenses of football players and other athletes through college, met a quick and violent death in the conference today.

Refusing even to consider the proposal, the conference speedily adopted a counter resolution presented by H. C. Byrd of the University of Maryland, elected officers and adjourned to meet next year at Chapel Hill, N. C., seat of the University of North Carolina.

Maj. McKellar tossed a bomb shell into the convention early today when he appeared in open session with a proposal that the conference either abolish football or halt the secret subsidizing of athletes by subsidizing them openly.

Byrd, who is faculty chairman and head coach at Maryland, was on his feet with a counter resolution, which when adopted a minute later, put the conference on record as having no objection to athletes receiving aid from institutions in which they are enrolled, but reiterating its opposition to any form of subsidy, especially created for athletes as a class.

An addenda was then appended to the constitution which defines the aid an athlete may receive. In the list are formally established scholarships controlled and awarded by the college, loan funds ad-

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 14.—A Carnegie Tech scoring attack which blossomed and flourished in the first half, wilted and was swept away before the determined Trojans of Southern California in the final two periods of their clash here today, sending the Tartans to a 45 to 13 defeat before 50,000 fans.

It was the tremendous reserve strength of the Trojans which brought about the crash of a great offensive after the valiant aggregation from the smoky city had startled everybody with a touchdown rush shortly after the opening kickoff.

Two U. S. C. Stars.

Russell Saunders, driving, dashing quarterback, and Francis Tappaan, sturdy left end, did much of the work which turned the tide to a Southern California victory in the third period after the count was deadlocked at half time, 13-13.

What the stocky Saunders failed to do in his running attack, he supplanted with unerring passes. It was his pass to Garrett Arbelbide which brought Coach Howard Jones' men their first touchdown after the team from Pittsburg had swept all before it to send Murray Armentrout across, giving the Tartans the lead.

Armentrout, who has been substituted only a moment before for Johnny Eyth at left half, covered himself with glory, not only by his touchdown, but by superb cutbacks through the tackles and remarkable, shifty end runs. His 77 yards in 15 attempts all but equaled the record of Saunders. The U. S. C. signal caller made 124 yards in 24 tries for a 5.8 yard average. The Tartan halfback averaged 5.1.

Harry McCurdy's 15-yard pass to Thayer Flanagan, who replaced George Kennedy, put Coach Walter Steffen's eleven in a position to score. Flanagan pivoted and twisted his way to the shadows of Football Is Responsible for Waning Interest in College Baseball, Connie Mack Asserts

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 14.—Connie Mack, manager of the world champion Athletics, blames year-round discussion of and interest in football for "waning interest in baseball among university undergraduates," according to an interview which the Princetonian, student daily, published today.

Mack said that professional baseball's general ban of golf among ball players was due to a fear of the same thing—that the players would begin to talk of nothing but golf. The physical damage of golf, he added, amounts only to leg fatigue which is not serious.

The seven-time winner of the American League pennant told the Princetonian that a large measure of disinterest in baseball had its beginning in the fact that the college game, at its height in the late 80's and the early 90's, began to deteriorate in quality. He urged colleges and universities to obtain the best possible coaching as the first step in reviving interest in baseball on the theory that an improved game would better enable the spring sport to compete with year-round football.

"Without the backing of the campus," Mack continued, "baseball players lack spirit. This support, revived, could help college baseball greatly.

"I'm not in favor of signing a college baseball player for professional ball until he has been graduated. 'I'm strong for the boy who goes through college and begins his professional career after receiving his diploma."

Soldan and Cleveland Win Opening Games in School Basket League

By Harold Tuthill

Soldan and Cleveland were the winners in the opening games of the City High School Basketball League played at Roosevelt High last night. Both games were closely-fought, the first game going to Soldan by a 20-16 score while the second was won by Cleveland, only after a hard fight from Cleveland, the score being 21-19. Beaumont drew a bye in the first team-pairings.

In the opening game, the fans were thrilled by the constantly changing lead. At the end of the first quarter, Roosevelt led, 6-4, but after the close of the second quarter, Soldan held a one-point advantage, 10-9. In the third quarter, Soldan failed to count a single point while the Rough Riders added five points to their total to take a 14-10 lead.

Late in the final quarter, Dave Cook tied the count for Soldan and Walker, a bit later, put the Union Boulevardiers in the van with another basket. Cass made it 20 points for Soldan with a basket in the final minute. This made the final count 20-16.

Walker, with six points, was high scorer for Soldan, Roth leading the Rooseveltians with five points.

Cleveland and Central battled closely from the very first whistle. Ens started by caging a free throw but Helm overcame this with a field goal. Ralph Landry, after the score again had been tied by Central, counted a pair of field goals and at the end of the first quarter, Cleveland was leading, 9-4. The second quarter saw a fine Central rally in the course of which they scored six points and

Wray Brown Is Again Ranked First Among District Tennis Players

By Davison Obear

Wray D. Brown again heads the men's singles ranking of the St. Louis District Tennis Association based on his record during the 1929 season. With Teddy Eggmann as a partner, Brown also tops the men's doubles list. Brown won the St. Louis district championship in singles and with Eggmann won the doubles event.

The ranking committee, of which Karl H. Hodge is chairman, had considerable difficulty in naming the first ten players. After a number of meetings the committee submitted its findings to the District Executive Committee which body approved the list, making only one change.

Only five of the first ten players of last year are in the 1929 list. Karl Kammann, and Forrest Stuckman return after several years absence while Junior Boehmer, Vernon Tietjen and Charles McMillin are newcomers. Ted Drewes, Fred Josties and Edmund Serrano are not in the first ten this year owing to insufficient data while Charles Barnes and Robert Norton dropped into the second group for the first time in many years.

Three Show Great Game.

As compared to the 1928 season Junior Boehmer, Karl Kammann and Vernon Tietjen showed the greatest gain among the first ten players. Kammann was No. 11 last year while both Boehmer and Tietjen were also in the second ten list. Karl Hodge advanced several places to the No. 4 position, the highest place he has ever reached in the St. Louis District singles ranking.

The ranking committee selected ten teams in the men's doubles.

Foul goals—Missed. Murphy 4, Wooden 1, Constance 1, Whitehouse 1, Meyer 1, Springer 4, Wientge 1. Referee—Feezle, Indianapolis; Umpire, Strohmier, Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 14.—Teacher conquered pupil, which is probably as it should be, here tonight when Purdue won from Washington University at basketball, 38 to 19, in Memorial Gymnasium.

Coach Ward Lambert's Purdue team proved superior to the Washington team, coached by Don White. Several years ago White was a star player on Lambert's team here.

The victorious Boilermakers were slow in getting started, but at the end of the first half had piled up a 25 to 8 lead. In the second half Coach Lambert used many reserves. Both teams were playing their first game of the season, and each was testing untried material for important games to follow.

Purdue started what seemed to be its strongest lineup, and which will probably be used most of the time in its Big Ten contests. Harmeson, on the squad only a week after taking a rest from strenuous football labors, still made a good showing and again promises to make a name for himself.

Bears Score First.

Wientge started the scoring when he made good a foul shot after Murphy held, and Springer followed a few minutes later with an under-the-basket shot, after a long pass. Murphy finally started Purdue's scoring when Meyer held. Wooden made good a free throw, and Purdue then went into the lead, never to be headed, when Harmeson made good a field shot from a short distance.

Purdue then ran the score to 18 before Washington counted again. Sauselle was sent in for Constance, and the visitors began to function more effectively. Wientge made a long shot and a little later added another of the same variety. Meyer added a foul goal to finish Washington's scoring for the half, while Wooden, Harmeson and Murphy added points for Purdue.

Murphy Drops One In.

Murphy, elongated Purdue center and all-conference selection for this position last season, started the scoring in the second half and Mills then sunk a shot. Sauselle made a goal and a little later got another. Meyer slipped through his first and only goal of the game, and Constance swished the net a little later to end Washington's scoring, save for three foul shots in the last period.

Sauselle and Springer were the mainsprings in the visiting machine, and Weintge was also a strong factor until he went out near the end on fouls. Each team used the same style of play, including a slow-breaking offensive and a five-man defense under the basket. Early season defects were quite evident all around. Purdue made 15 out of 85 field shots, and Washington 7 out of 49.

By Damon Kerby

With St. Louis boxing in a quiescent state until after the holidays, the attention of the St. Louis boxing fans will turn toward the East this week, where Benny Bass of Philadelphia, a favorite with the local fight public, will make an attempt to lift the junior lightweight title from Tod Morgan. The pair will meet Friday night in New York in a 15-round championship fight.

In view of their general ability, as disclosed in the records of the past year, it is not surprising that Bass is favored to defeat Morgan and take the title. Reports from the East yesterday were that Bass was a 5-to-7 favorite in New York.

As viewed from St. Louis, however, it is not alone Bass' record that makes him the favorite, but also Morgan's poor showings. True, he successfully defended his title twice this year, but the opposition —Santiago Zorilla and Baby Sal Sorio—was not of the highest caliber. In nontitle events Morgan lost twice and was held to a draw by Eddie Mack of Denver; lost to Goldie Hess and got only a draw with Billy Townsend. Defeats and draws with these opponents indicate that the Seattle boy has gone away back from last year, when he was rated at the top of his division by Eastern boxing experts, with a total of 577 out of a possible 600 points. At the present time he probably would be topped by a half-dozen men around the 130-pound limit.

Morgan Is 28.

Morgan, who will be 28 years old on Christmas day, is a veteran of the game, having been active in the ring for the past eight years. He has fought in more than 125 fights in that period, winning a majority on decisions. He relies almost entirely on cleverness and a left jab rather than a devastating punch. His record discloses fewer than 10 knockouts during his entire career.

It will be on Morgan's left jab that he will hang his hopes for a victory over Bass. The belief is held in some quarters that he stands a chance to win if he can keep Benny away with that left jab. But whether he can stand off Bass, with the latter's crushing right hand, for 15 long rounds is considered doubtful. Benny is strong physically and can keep up a hard pace throughout, while advancing age is likely to tell on Morgan before the fight goes the limit.

Bass' Record.

Bass has been busy and successful this year—successful, it a couple of defeats through foul blows are eliminated. Being a puncher who likes to play on the midsection, Benny always hasn't been careful to keep his blows up. Twice this year he has lost on fouls, one of which, against Henry Lenard, was at the Coliseum here. He also lost to Johnny Datto on a foul.

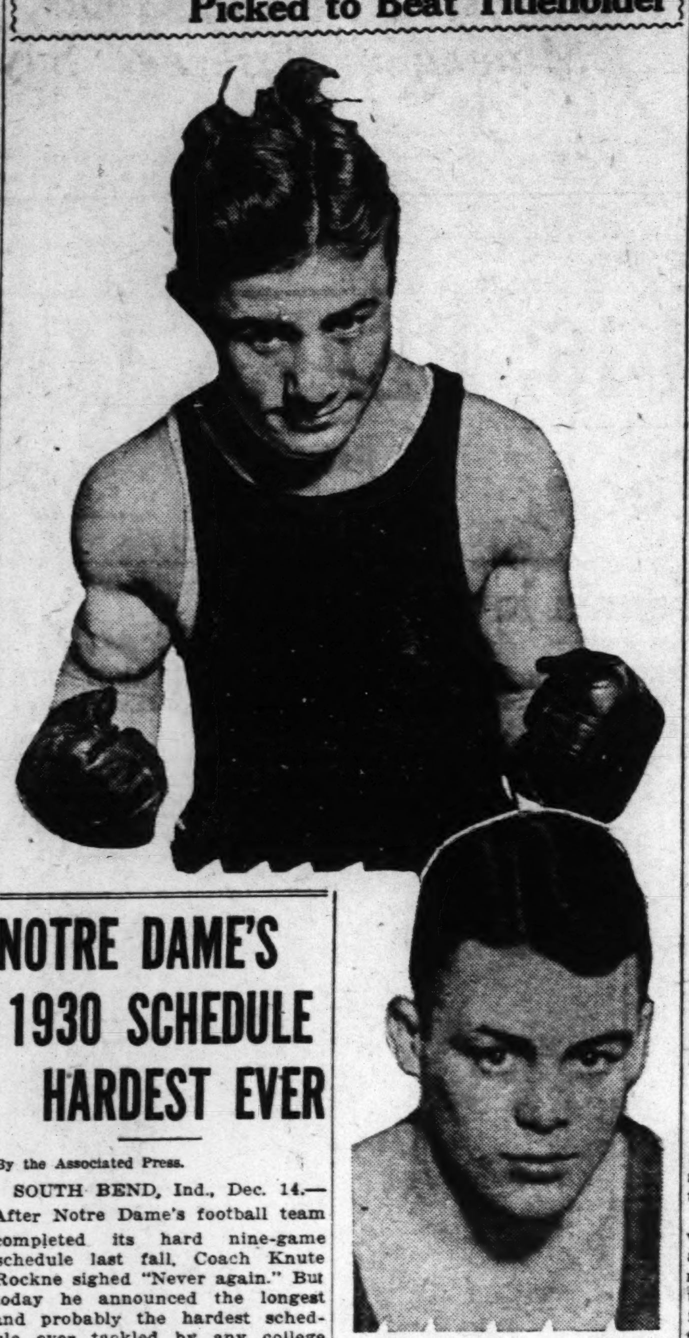
Morgan stands to win in a financial way, regardless of the outcome of the bout. He will draw a $35,000 guarantee and 37½ per cent privilege of the gate. Bass' cut has not been announced. The fight will be held in Madison Square Garden.

ST. MARY'S DEFEAT ST. JOSEPH'S, 16 TO 15

CAIRO, Ill., Dec. 14. — The St. Joseph's High School of Cairo lost a hard-fought game to the St. Mary's Catholic High School of Carlyle, Ill., here last night, by a 16-to-15 score.

St. Joseph's, after leading the up-State five for more than three-quarters, lost the game in the last second of play, when they missed a chance at a tie, on a free try for a point, on a foul. These two teams which are the leading Catholic high school teams of this end of the State, put up one of the best exhibitions of basketball that fans here have seen this year. They will play a second game in a few weeks at Carlyle, which will decide which team will represent this end of the State in the State Catholic tourney at Bloomington this year.

St. Louis Boxing Favorite Picked to Beat Titleholder



BENNY BASS, at top, is 5—7 choice to win in his junior lightweight championship bout at New York Friday night, against TOD MORGAN (below), holder of the title. The crown will be Bass' if he beats Morgan.

NOTRE DAME'S 1930 SCHEDULE HARDEST EVER

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 14.—After Notre Dame's football team completed its hard nine-game schedule last fall, Coach Knute Rockne sighed "Never again." But today he announced the longest and probably the hardest schedule ever tackled by any college team, for 1930—10 games with the most powerful teams of the North, South, West and East are on the 1930 schedule, half of which will be played at home and half on foreign fields.

The 1930 opponents in order are:

Oct. 4—Southern Methodist at South Bend.

Oct. 11—Navy at South Bend (dedication of new Notre Dame stadium.)

Oct. 18—Carnegie Tech at South Bend.

Oct. 25—Pittsburg at Pittsburg.

Nov. 1—Indiana at South Bend.

Nov. 8 — Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Nov. 15—Drake at South Bend.

Nov. 22 — Northwestern at Evanston.

Nov. 29—Army at New York.

Dec. 5—Southern California at Los Angeles.

Southern Methodist and Pennsylvania and Pittsburg will be new opponnents for the Ramblers, who threaten to be just as strong as they were last fall, when they won nine straight. Georgia Tech will be missing from Notre Dame's schedule for the first time in eight years, while Wisconsin will be absent for the first time in three years.

Completion of the new Notre Dame stadium, which will be dedicated at the Navy game, will give South Benders and Notre Dame students an opportunity to see their team play the most home games they have scheduled in 10 years.

"Yes, it looks like a suicide schedule, all right," said Coach Rockne, who is recovering from an infected leg, "but we'll give them all a battle. We won't have so much traveling to do, and that alone should help us."

ST. LOUIS TRAPSHOOTER LEADS THE FIELD IN FLYER COMPETITION

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 14.—D. L. McDonald, an amateur from Amarillo, Tex., won the initial leg of the Ambassador cup event in the shoot today of the annual Ambassador trapshooting contest here.

The Texan led the field with a score of 96 in the 100 target event. Gunners from Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Texas and Illinois competed.

Second place in the shoot went to the veteran, George Nicolai, Atchison, Kan. He scored 95.

O. B. Franz, St. Louis, led the field today in competition for the Flyer awards. Tied for second place are: E. S. Stofer, Kansas City; J. L. Kleeschulte, Gilmore, Mo.; Fred R. Etchen, Coffeyville, Kan., and Sam L. Jenney, Highland, Ill.

Competition in both events will end tomorrow.

BILLIKENS AND TIGERS TO GET OK FOR GAME

By James M. Gould

Permission to play the St. Louis University team a football game here Oct. 11, 1930, will be granted by the Big Six Conference to the University of Missouri.

This is indicated by the reply of Prof. H. H. King of the Kansas Agricultural and Mechanical College, at Manhattan, Kan., to a query by the Post-Dispatch. Prof. King is president of the Big Six and has authority to grant or refuse requests of member-universities to play extra games. His reply to the Post-Dispatch message reads:

"I have no objections to the game you mentioned."

All faculty athletic representatives of schools in the conference were queried, and, in no case was an unfavorable reply received, although each pointed out that permission must come from Prof. King.

As a matter of fact, a precedent already had been established for 1930 inasmuch as Iowa State, at Ames, Ia., had asked and received permission to play a ninth game. As a conference rule, colleges therein are limited to eight games. Missouri, having scheduled Colorado for a game at Columbia, has its full share of at-home games and this removes the last possible objection to the game with the Billikens.

It will be the first contest between the Tigers and Billikens since 1923 when the elevens battled to a scoreless tie.

sank a field goal after a brief interval.

The Aggies made a short rally when Keller registered a free throw and field goal and Thornton registered from the field to make the score 10-6 against them. Kennedy and Plunkert, two St. Louis substitutes, each sank short field goals to put the Billikens ahead 14-6 at the half.

Strong started the scoring for the second half by sinking a short shot under the Aggies hoop. Hendrix and Thornton each sank baskets for the visitors but Strong came back with another field goal to give St. Louis a 18-10 lead.

Hendrix sank a free throw for the Aggies and Thornton his team mate also dropped in a free toss. Strong still carrying the scoring burden for the Bills dropped in a free throw and a field goal but McDaniel after trying all evening finally sank a long field goal for the Aggies to make the score 21-14. Thornton also scored from the field but Oldfield sank a field goal and Anderson a foul goal for St. Louis shortly before the final gun.

The Aggies, one of the strongest cage teams in their state last season, were without the services of their all-state guard, Capt. Gordon Lamb. Lamb did not make the trip on account of a football injury and his teammate, Hendrix, captained the team in his absence.

The spectators saw Coach Mike Nyikos' first stringers in action only a short time. Jack Joyce and Lyle Drury joined Strong, Oldfield and Hunt on the floor during the middle of the first half.

TROJANS DEFEAT CARNEIGE TECH IN LOS ANGELES GAME

the Trojan goal line. It was a parade of 45 yards in eight plays which brought the score.

Determined that they must go into the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena New Year's day against Pittsburg without the blemish of another defeat, the Trojans struck back with Tappaan scoring after a beautiful running catch of Marshall Duffield's long pass. This time John Baker kicked goal.

But the lead served only to spur the Easterners on. They launched a second drive goalward which netted 66 yards in 11 plays, Armentrout leading the attack. McCurdy executed a perfect quarterback sneak after the ball had been placed on the Trojan one-foot marker but Captain Dreshar's place kick was wide.

Seeking to go into the second half with the lead, the Trojans attempted eight consecutive passes in the dying minutes of the first, but the three completed fell far short of the Tartan goal.

In eight plays with Saunders carrying the burden of the thrust, the U. S. C. eleven inaugurated the opening of the third period with a 65-yard gain and a touchdown. It marked the beginning of the end for the treacherous Tartans for Saunders duplicated his feat a few moments later with another tally after a sweeping end run.

In rushed the Trojan reserves but this did not prevent the Jones aggregation from driving to three more touchdowns.

Despite the score, Carnegie Tech accounted for the greater yardage, making 18 first downs to 14 for U. S. C. The Tartans made 318 yards from scrimmage but the Trojans outdid their opponents in passing. They completed nine of 17 efforts for 162 yards against six out of 19 for 133 yards. The Southern California yardage from scrimmage stood at 294.

Art Weis, St. Louisan, Hits .345 and Wins Title in Southern Association

Art Weis, the St. Louis boy who played left field for the pennant-winning Birmingham team of the Southern Association the past season, was the batting leader of that circuit with an average of .345, according to the final and official figures of the league. The unofficial averages had shown that Jim Poole, first-sacker of Nashville, the leader, but the official statistics give the honors to Weis.

ART WEIS.

Playing in 148 games, Weis went to bat 510 times, made 176 hits for 244 total bases, and scored 105 runs. On his hits he made 25 doubles, nine triples, 12 home runs and drove in 90 runs. He walked 72 times, fanned 27 times and stole 17 bases.

The nearest St. Louisan to Weis was the veteran Joe Klugman, who played second and third base for Nashville in 146 games. At bat 532 times, he scored 81 times, made 105 hits for 205 total bases, including 32 two-baggers, three three-baggers and three home runs. He drove in 74 men at the plate, drew 47 bases on balls, struck out 23 times and stole five sacks, for a batting average of .297.

Cullop Hits .291.

Henry Nick Cullop, who had a trial with the Brooklyn Dodgers last spring, and who is at present appealing to Judge Landis for free agency, batted .291 for Atlanta. Playing the outfield for the Crackers in 113 games, he made 117 hits for 199 total bases in 402 trips to the plate. He scored 72 runs and drove 54 runs over the plate. In this collection of hits he made 23 doubles, four triples and 17 home runs and stole seven bases. He walked 54 times and fanned in 92 attempts. He was released to Minneapolis of the American Association last fall, but refused to report.

Oscar "Lefty" Fuhr, who pitched for New Orleans, batted .247 in 40 games.

Joe Mucher, a catcher, released by Little Rock, batted .245 for 22 contests.

Maurice Archdeacon, an outfielder, who finished the season with Toronto of the International League, batted .234 in 24 games with Atlanta.

Johnny Brock, veteran catcher, with Chattanooga, hit .229 in 73 games.

Ernie Koob, former Brownie pitcher, batted .186 in 33 contests for Mobile.

Oscar Fuhr worked in 41 games on the hill for New Orleans, winning 18 and losing 14 games for a mark of .563. Pitching 218 innings, 907 batters faced him and found him for 259 hits and 126 runs, 107 of the runs being earned runs for an earned run average of 4.42. He issued 56 passes, struck out 84 batters, and allowed 35 sacrifice hits.

Ernie Koob, pitching for Mobile, got into 33 contests, winning eight while losing 14, for an average of .364. Eight hundred and forty-four batters made 195 hits and scored 110 runs off his delivery in 197 innings he pitched. Only 86 runs were earned runs for an average of 3.36. He struck out 47 and walked 76.

Joe Klugman topped the second basemen in fielding with an average of .980 for 30 games, but fell way behind in fielding while playing third base, with a mark of .922 for 96 games.

Nick Cullop made five errors in 342 chances in the outfield to wind up with a fielding mark of .986.

"Lefty" Fuhr led the pitchers of the league in fielding with an average of 1000. In 41 games he made nine putouts and had 51 assists without a bobble.

DUTRA LEADS CATALINA OPEN WITH 126 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Dec. 14.—Olin Dutra, Los Angeles professional, swept to a new competitive course record here today, stroking his way to a 61 to lead the qualifiers after two days of play in the annual Catalina Island $7500 open golf tournament. His score of 126 for the 36 holes marks him a favorite to win the event, which will be concluded tomorrow.

Close on Dutra's heels came Billy Burke, New York; Charles Guest, Los Angeles; Tony Manero, New York, and Denny Shute, Youngstown, O., all with scores of 127, one stroke behind the leader.

The rugged terrain showed the way out of the picture to a number of the nation's leading players, while 48 of the field of 139 turned in qualifying scores.

On the steep hills and deep canyons were left the hopes of such of the elite of golfdom as Tommy Armour, Detroit; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del.; Al Watrous, Detroit, and Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia.

The great Walter Hagen barely got in under the wire with a 134, which enabled him to enter tomorrow's final 18 holes.

Layton Defeats Welker Cochrane

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Winning the final two blocks today, Johnny Layton of St. Louis defeated Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Cal., in their special three-cushion billiards match, 600 to 543.

Layton increased his margin this afternoon with a 40 to 46 triumph in 53 innings. He had a high run of seven, while Cochran's best cluster was six. Tonight Layton won by a 50 to 49 score. Cochran had the best run of the night block, nine, while Layton had a high run of seven.

held Cleveland to a single foul throw.

With the count all even 10-10, both teams put all their power into the third quarter and finished it with Central holding a short two-point lead, 16-14.

In the final quarter, Cleveland stepped into a lead by scoring three points but Central counting five, tied the count at 19-19. Here, Jansen of Cleveland came to the front in the final seconds with a field-goal from a difficult angle to win the game for his team.

Ens and Edelman of Central were tied for high-score honors of the night, each accounting for seven points. Ralph Landry was high for Cleveland with six points.

The attendance was estimated at 2200.

E. ST. LOUIS BASKETBALL LEAGUE TO MEET

The East St. Louis City Basketball League will hold a special meeting of its managers and the circuit officials tomorrow night at the Polish National Alliance Hall at Seventh street and St. Clair avenue to discuss the various league problems which have arisen in the past two weeks.

Three teams tied for first place and three just one game behind the leaders stand an excellent chance of winning the championship after more than a month of play.

Tuesday night two of the leaders will clash when P. N. A. quintet and the Martin Movers take the floor. Other games will be the St. Paul's Episcopal Church squad vs. the Live Wires; St. Paul M. E. vs. the Sokols, and the Slacks, one of the three tied for the lead, meeting the Lyric Garages.

OINT MEETING ENDS WITHOUT QUASHING RUMOR OF RED SOX SALE

By J. Roy Stockton

That negotiations are being carried on for the sale of the Boston
American League club, and that he prospective change of owner-hip is responsible for Bill Carri-gan's delay in announcing wheth-
r he would manage the Red Sox in 1930, was one of the rumors born of the recent annual meeting of the major baseball leagues in New York.

It is known that Bob Quinn and the other owners, who purchased the franchise and properties from Harry Frazee, have lost heavily on their investment, and it is reported that a new syndicate is considering taking over the club in the hope that, with Sunday baseball now legal in Boston, the business can be built into a profitable one.

Bob Quinn made no statement before his departure from New York for Boston, but his attitude at the meeting did not indicate that he was contemplating a sale. He steadfastly declined to consider offers of cash for his few Boston Red Sox stars and departed without making any deals because he could not get satisfactory players in exchange. Big Ed Morris, star pitcher, was sought by several clubs, but each prospective trader offered plenty of cash, but no players.

Cash No Longer Bait.

Cash is becoming more and more useless in the baseball player market, at least in the big leagues. And it also is noticeable that each year sees fewer player trades.

This year not a single outstanding player has been swapped. Grover Cleveland Alexander, of course, is outstanding, but merely because of his greatness in other days. Harry McCurdy, who was traded with him to the Phillies by the Cardinals, cannot be classed as a star, although he will be valuable to the Phillies, who recently lost Walter Lerian, one of their catchers, in an automobile accident.

Bob McGraw is not destined to remain with the Cardinals, and Homer Peel, the other player obtained by the Red Birds, has yet to prove that he can make the grade in the big show.

Wallie Schang, traded by the Browns to the Athletics, is a veteran, 39 years old, and Sammy Hale, obtained by St. Louis in the swap, is 33 and never has entered the ranks of stars.

Browns Get a Pick-Up.

In connection with the Schang-Hale trade, it now is known that Schang was marked for trade or release the day the American League season closed.

Last year his salary was cut about $2000 and he understood that under certain conditions he might get the $2000 at the end of the season. He didn't get it and, after the last game of the year at Sportsman's Park, he sought out Phil Ball and there was conversation about fists landing on noses. No blows were struck, but the row made it certain that Schang would never again wear a Brownie uniform.

As he has been in the majors for more than 10 years, the Browns would have been forced to give him his unconditional release if a major league club had claimed him, so Sammy Hale might be said to be a pick-up for Bill Killefer.

Changed baseball conditions which make it necessary to have a pennant contender to show a profit in the ledger, are given as the explanation of the scarcity of player trades. In other days interest was created by exchanges, fans going through the turnstiles to see new faces in the home town uniforms. But it has been noted that unless a team is in the race, with a real pennant chance, the turnstiles do not click much and every owner has only one purpose and that is to build a winner. Thus they hold every good player and when trades are broached, each manager and owner wants three or four for one.

You Just Can't Trade!

Bill Killefer and Phil Ball wanted to get Goose Goslin from the Senators, but Clark Griffith would not consider cash and named players that Killefer could not spare.

Even John McGraw, with his unlimited financial resources, was unable to arrange a deal for a badly needed second baseman. McGraw kept his infield sound when he gave up Frisch for Hornsby, but when he was forced to trade Hornsby for Hogan and Welsh, he created a gap in his inner line of defense which has not been filled. He tried to get Hughie Critz from the Reds, but Dan Howley asked for Freddie Lindstrom or Travis Johnson in return. The days appear to have passed when the New York clubs could take out the check book and make all necessary repairs in their infields, outfields and pitching staffs.

Col. Ruppert of the Yankees also was eager to purchase additional infield strength, but he didn't have any luck.

The Farm System Wins Out.

This difficulty in obtaining needed players and the scarcity of stars in the minor leagues, together with the fact that the minors want fabulous prices whenever they do develop a desirable player, have combined to make the major league owners and managers see that the "farm system" developed by Branch Rickey and the Cardinals is the only solution of the problem.

While it is true that the farms

BASEBALL TRADING ON THE WANE WITH CASH NO LONGER GOOD BAIT

In connection with the Schang-Hale trade, it now is known that Schang was marked for trade or release the day the American League season closed.

Last year his salary was cut about $2000 and he understood that under certain conditions he might get the $2000 at the end of the season. He didn't get it and, after the last game of the year at Sportsman's Park, he sought out Phil Ball and there was conversation about fists landing on noses. No blows were struck, but the row made it certain that Schang would never again wear a Brownie uniform.

As he has been in the majors for more than 10 years, the Browns would have been forced to give him his unconditional release if a major league club had claimed him, so Sammy Hale might be said to be a pick-up for Bill Killefer.

Changed baseball conditions which make it necessary to have a pennant contender to show a profit in the ledger, are given as the explanation of the scarcity of player trades. In other days interest was created by exchanges, fans going through the turnstiles to see new faces in the home town uniforms. But it has been noted that unless a team is in the race, with a real pennant chance, the turnstiles do not click much and every owner has only one purpose and that is to build a winner. Thus they hold every good player and when trades are broached, each manager and owner wants three or four for one.

You Just Can't Trade!

Bill Killefer and Phil Ball wanted to get Goose Goslin from the Senators, but Clark Griffith would not consider cash and named players that Killefer could not spare.

Even John McGraw, with his unlimited financial resources, was unable to arrange a deal for a badly needed second baseman. McGraw kept his infield sound when he gave up Frisch for Hornsby, but when he was forced to trade Hornsby for Hogan and Welsh, he created a gap in his inner line of defense which has not been filled. He tried to get Hughie Critz from the Reds, but Dan Howley asked for Freddie Linstrom or Travis Johnson in return. The days appear to have passed when the New York clubs could take out the check book and make all necessary repairs in their infields, outfields and pitching staffs.

Col. Ruppert of the Yankees also was eager to purchase additional infield strength, but he didn't have any luck.

The Farm System Wins Out.

This difficulty in obtaining needed players and the scarcity of stars in the minor leagues, together with the fact that the minors want fabulous prices whenever they do develop a desirable player, have combined to make the major league owners and managers see that the "farm system" developed by Branch Rickey and the Cardinals is the only solution of the problem.

While it is true that the farms do not constitute a magic box from which a star can be plucked whenever needed, still they do provide training grounds where young men of promise can be kept and tested and despite sporadic outbursts of wrath against the practice, it seems destined for further development by the club owners of the American and National Leagues.

Commissioner Landis and President Barnard of the American League have condemned the system, but they offer no alternative and admit that property rights probably tie the hands of those who would like to legislate against major league ownership of minor league clubs.

Prospects of the St. Louis clubs cannot be said to have been improved to any great extent by the trades arranged at the meeting. Killefer considers Hale nothing more than a utility infielder who can hit fairly well, and Homer Peel, the new Cardinal outfielder, is regarded as insurance, to be used as a utility outfielder in case Walter Roettger is unable to regain the form that made him a promising and even outstanding star before he suffered a fractured ankle.

New Brownie Manager Meets Rival Pilot, Without Trading

Bob Shawkey (at left), successor to Miller Huggins as manager of the New York Yankees, and Bill Killefer, new Brownie field general, held a private powwow during the major league meetings in New York, but transacted no business.

Soccer Spectators in Uruguay Would Be Much Safer Dressed As American Baseball Catchers

By Dent McSkimming.
(By Mail to the Post-Dispatch.)

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, S. A., Nov. 22.—The new champions of South America, the Argentines, tentatively booked to tour the United States next summer, are not remarkable in physical appearance nor in style of play. Their game, as displayed in the tournament final against Uruguay, is quite orthodox, a blend of scientific football and vigorous dash. It resembles the St. Louis style of play more than it does the European.

Contrasts abounded in the meeting of the Argentines and Uruguayans. Although they are next-door neighbors—only the width of the River Plate separating the two countries—there were many differences both in physical appearance and mental attitude between the two teams. The Uruguayans were considerably larger in physique. They gave the appearance of being a team of six-footers, while the Argentines were generally shorter, although stockily put up. The men from Montevideo, twice champions of the Olympic Games tournament in Europe, played with the deliberation of seasoned campaigners; the Buenos Aires lads couldn't take time to be deliberate, so eager were they to score goals.

Whatever flashes of studied combination play the match brought out were negotiated by the Uruguayans. Sudden flashes of speed, terrific shooting at goal and everything that we associate with "punch" was left to the Argentines. They even took a few physical punches at their opponents when, late in the game, the Argentine right halfback knocked the Uruguayan outside right sprawling on the grass with a swat on the chin.

Team Owns Two Fine Forwards.

As compared with some of the internationally famous teams St. Louisans have seen, the Argentines seem to suffer. Hakoah, the team of Jewish players which whipped the Madisons last April for the American championship, is far more expert in intricate combination play. There is none to compare with Haeussler in the Buenos Aires forward line. At center forward, however, is a star of the first magnitude. He, Ferreyva, was directly responsible for the first goal and his pass to the outside left, Evaristo, resulted in the second goal of the grand final. He is sturdily built, although no taller than Eddie Flavin. He acts with astonishing speed when he discovers an opportunity. He typifies more than any other player on the team the Argentine style. His successful shot was totally unexpected, since he had his back to the goal as he received the ball, near the penalty line. He hooked his shot, wheeling in the same movement, putting a curving shot into the extreme upper corner of the net.

The final match of the tournament, which attracted almost as much attention here as a political revolt, was played in a great wooden bowl which seated about 60,000 persons. In previous years riots interrupted or terminated important matches, but it is difficult to see how the spectators can reach the players now, for two high wire fences topped with barbed wire separate the fans from the playing field. One fence, at the foot of the bleachers, is about 12 feet high and the inner fence about 8 feet high. In the area between the two are field boxes, enough to accommodate about 10,000 persons.

Women Spectators Absent.

In many respects, the match had all the color of a baseball world series game in the United States, but there is one striking difference in the absence of women spectators. The great army of peddlers with whom we are beset at our baseball games are present at a South American football final but they are not selling the same wares. Argentine fans eat lemon drops, "popcycles," caramels and other sweets, and they buy newspapers on their way through the gates so they can tear them into tiny bits to form a paper shower during the intervals of the game. There is always a breeze to whip these thousands of bits of paper into the air.

Sitting in the vast open stand is precarious business. All is serene until the late comers find no seats available. Then, instead of walking around seeking spare standing room, they gather together and make a concerted rush at the bottom tiers of the stand. Persons seated on the lower row jump up to avoid being trampled on, and turn to get out of the way, thereby stepping on row No. 2, the occupants of which leap backward and upward, trampling row No. 3, and immediately there is a stampede, from the lower to the higher tiers. If one is a bit slow in rising he gets stepped on or gets a knee or an elbow in his eye. Meanwhile, those who can find breath yell vigorously "Sientense! sientense!" which is the Spanish equivalent of "sit down!" Then they add a few words directed at the impolite rushers who caused the stampede, words that no lady would care to hear. It's great sport if one doesn't mind getting mussed up a bit. Dressed in a baseball catcher's shin guards, mask, chest protector and with a bat in each hand a spectator could be fairly comfortable.

3 Pesos to See Match.

The price of admission for the final game was raised to 3 pesos and just for that the fans set up a concerted shout of "chorros, chorros," by which they meant to let the officials know that they were extortionists. As they shouted it the term had a meaning the equivalent of "thieves."

A bit of color was added to the picture when the referee, a native of neutral Paraguay, took the field attired in a brilliant sport coat of red and yellow stripes, white flannel trousers, full length, white shoes and white sport cap. He doffed the coat in the second half as the pace became faster and the sun warmer. His linesmen, both from Paraguay, were all in white, as though out for a tennis match.

Before the start of the game the players of both teams, running two abreast, circled the field at a dog trot, waving greetings to the spectators, who, in turn, shouted themselves hoarse and applauded vigorously. At the conclusion of the match the same ceremony was gone through with, but this time the Argentine players were surrounded by hundreds of gesticulating fans, who somehow passed the wire barriers, while the Uruguayans made only a feeble gesture in front of the main stand and then dragged their weary way to the dressing rooms.

TABLERS TO USE NEW LINEUP IN MILLER CONTEST

In an effort to have his team better its position in the standings in the St. Louis Professional Soccer League, Manager Johnny Marre of the Tablers will start a revamped lineup against the Ben Millers in the first and feature match at Sportsman's Park tomorrow. The other contest will be between the Hellrungs, who, with the Ben Millers, are leading the league race, and the Madisons, tied with the Tablers for last place. The starting time of the first game has been set for 1:30 o'clock, and Robert (Ribby) Murphy will officiate in both matches.

The Millers and Hellrungs each have 10 points to their credit, while the Tablers and Madisons are trailing with eight each. Victories for the last two aggregations would enable them to advance into a four-cornered tie for the lead.

Madsen, former member of the old Wellstons, will be in goal for the Tablers, because Sam Dueker, regular net guardian, came out of last week's game badly bruised. Dueker engaged in several scrimmages in the gruelling match with the Hellrungs and his entire body was badly battered. Madsen has not played regularly this season.

McHenry on Injured List.

Manager Marre states he will use Buddy Brengle, regular outside left last season, at the right wing against the Ben Millers. Al McHenry, the veteran outside right, is laid up with a leg injury. Art Claeys, the youthful halfback, will again be given a chance. He will supplant the veteran George Schweppe. Milton Zenson, reserve fullback, will also be given a chance.

The Millers are ready for the game, even though Joe Hennessy, clever center forward, is out with an injured toe. "Red" Kickham will play the pivot berth, with "Beno" Bollam at the vacant position. The other departments in the Miller lineup will remain intact.

The players who were in the combination that finished for the Madisons last week pleased Manager Phil Kavanaugh so well that he intends to use the same lineup today. This means that Bud Grennon, regular Madison forward, will be forced to view hostilities from the sidelines, unless needed as a substitute.

Have Not Won in 7 Starts.

In the last seven games, the Madisons have failed to turn in a victory. Four of those contests resulted in draws, while the other three were setbacks. After getting off to a bad start, Phil Kavanaugh's men came back strong late in the last game to gain a 3-3 tie with the Ben Millers.

Tate Brady's men will be shooting for their fifth straight victory. Joe Tuvil, regular right halfback, is still on the hospital list, and his place will be manned by Hatchard, an allround reserve star. The Hellrung leader does not plan any other changes.

Central Wesleyan Out of Missouri Athletic Union

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 14.—Central Wesleyan College of Warrenton, Mo., ceased to be a member of the Missouri College Athletic Union today, because of insufficient endowment.

The removal of the college from the athletic group was announced at the annual winter meeting of the faculty representatives, athletic directors and coaches.

Rules of the conference automatically remove a member which cannot show a certain endowment, conference officials said. The school can be realigned with the athletic group if it raises the required amount.

Members of the union remaining can schedule games with Central Wesleyan but the results of those games will not count in conference rankings.

The school previously had been suspended by the Missouri College Union and the North Central Association educational groups.

TABERSKI BEATS NATALIE, TIES FOR 2ND PLACE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 14.—Frank Taberski, defending champion, defeated Pasquale Natalie of Detroit, 125 to 65 in 20 innings in tonight's game of the world's championship pocket billiard tournament.

The victory puts Taberski in a tie with Marcel Camp, Detroit, for second place. Erwin Rudolph of Chicago is leading.

Ralph Greenleaf, former world's champion, played his best game of the tournament in defeating Joseph J. McCann of Jacksonville, Fla., in the first game this afternoon. Greenleaf won by 125 to 27, in five innings. His high run was 66, McCann's 14.

In the second game Onofrio Lauri of Brooklyn was returned the winner over Spencer Livsey of Los Angeles by 125 to 51, in 13 innings. Lauri's high run was 32; Livsey's, 22.

The Lauri-Livsey struggle was the most listless of the tournament. It started out like a thriller, but with Lauri leading by 75 to 24, he started on a run which ended at 22. He missed four easy shots before gathering the needed 28.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN E. ST. LOUIS SOCCER GAME TODAY

Undisputed possession of first place in the second half race of the East St. Louis Municipal Soccer League is being fought for by the Spanish-Americans and Edgemont "Blue Jays" in the first and feature game of today's doubleheader at Jones Park. The Slacks meet the Prospects in the second contest.

This second half is over a nine-game route and the Spanish-Americans and Edgemonts won their inaugural games last Sunday. The Spanish-Americans twice defeated Edgemont in the first half in winning that title, the scores being 2 to 1 and 1 to 0, but the "Blue Jays" have strengthened since the last meeting.

These teams have furnished East Side fans with many hotly-contested games in the past few years but none were any more promising than is the one carded for this afternoon.

MEDIUM AVERAGE BOWLERS IN TOURNEY AT ROGERS TODAY

A few openings still remain on the squads scheduled for today in the individual classic for bowlers with averages of 185 and under at the Rogers alleys. At 3:30 there is one opening, at 7 o'clock six openings, at 8:15 one opening and at 9:30 there are four openings. The handicap draw-for-partner mixed doubles contests which was to be held on these alleys tonight is postponed until Sunday night, Dec. 22.

BAYLOR WILL OPEN 1930 SEASON WITH BIG TEN CHAMPIONS

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 14.—Baylor University, one of the leading teams in the Southwest Conference, will be the opening opponent for Purdue's Western Conference title defending 1930 football eleven on Oct. 4, here, it was announced today by Col. N. A. Kellogg, director of athletics. Signing of the Baylor team gives Purdue home games with Baylor, Wisconsin and Indiana, and games away from home with Illinois, Michigan and Chicago.

East St. Louis to Meet Belleville Quintet Friday

The first games in the Southwestern Illinois High School Conference will be played next Friday night, with hall teams but Granite City swinging into action. The evening's schedule is East St. Louis at Belleville, Wood River at Collinsville and Alton at Belleville.

Pre-season dope gives Granite City and Belleville the best chances for the title. Collinsville, winner last year, will put an entirely new team on the floor; Granite City, runners-up last year, has three letter men back, and the new men have made an impressive showing in practice, as evidenced by the recent game with the Western Cadets.

Belleville, winners of the football title, has five letter men back, namely, Craig Hull, center; "Brick" Ehret, "Barney" Cole, forwards; Harley Stiel and Robert Aufdenspring, guards. This team ranked high in the standing last year and should do even better this year.

Edwardsville will also have a veteran team, while the East St. Louis outfit will be more or less an experiment. Alton and Wood River should show up better than in football, although Wood River lost a practice game to the comparatively weak Livingston (Ill.) five.

Coach Ray Jackson at Alton has three letter men back and his five may be the surprise of the conference.

Collinsville has won the basketball title for the past three years, but Coach Larson has only one letterman to work with this year. Granite City was the only team to defeat the Kahoks last year.

Soccer Linesmen Should Be Posted Behind Goals, Municipal Referees Say

By Herman Wecke

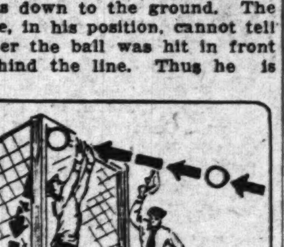
Do away with the sidelinesmen and put them on the goal line, or better still, have four men to assist the referee. That is the plan which St. Louis soccer arbiters would put into effect, especially those in the Municipal League.

These officials argue that many more important decisions are made at the goal line, than at any other part of the field. They figure that it is no great advantage for a team to gain a throw-in. But they do think that a man on the goal-line could assist in making decisions when a referee is in no position to decide.

As one official pointed out. There is a scrimmage at one goal line. A husky fullback sends the ball down field. The center forward and two wing men are fast and take the ball down and take a shot at the opposite goal. The referee, being on duty at the other end of the field, gets started some 30 yards behind the forwards. He is in no position to see an offside or any other foul.

Some Guessing.

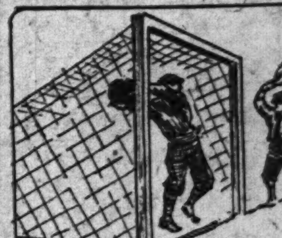
But even more important. The rival forwards take a shot at goal. The ball hits the cross-bar and bounds down to the ground. The referee, in his position, cannot tell whether the ball was hit in front or behind the line. Thus he is merely guessing when he makes a decision. If it is incorrect, then woe.



Where linesman should be to give most assistance to referee on goal shots, which bound off cross-bar.

However, with a goal-linesman, there would be no doubt. Being on a direct line, he could tell whether or not it was a goal.

Then there is another play on which a goal-linesman would assist greatly. That has to do with the playing of the ball by the goalkeeper. "Goalies" have various forms of standing. Not all follow the correct method of standing in front of the goal line. Thus a play of this kind is possible:



How linesman could help referee to make correct ruling on plays when "goalie" draws ball over line in trying to clear.

A rival forward takes a shot. The "goalie" catches the ball and in trying to clear, draws his hands back over the goal line.

This should be recorded as a goal, but the referee, in his position, is unable to see exactly what has happened. However, with a goal linesman on the job, the correct ruling could always be given on a play of this sort.

Occur Often.

The two plays cited above occur in almost every game played and are certainly far more important ones on which to make correct rulings than in the case of a throwin.

According to the laws of soccer, the linesman is supposed to be an aid to the referee in making his decisions. However if there were goal-linesmen, the referee would be aided even more in making his verdicts than is the case under the present form of having men on the side lines and not at the goal, where the really important plays occur.

DUNMORE WINS OPENING FEATURE AT KEENEY PARK

By the Associated Press.

KEENEY PARK, Fla., Dec. 14.—The opening of Keeney Park's 26-day race meet, informally but generally accepted as the beginning of the Florida season, saw Dunmore, 5-year-old son of Doege of Azurita, owned by the Everglade Stables, capture the Merchant's Handicap, opening day feature, before a brilliant crowd of race followers.

Quoted at 4½ to 1. Dunmore copped over a field of good horses, among them Greenock, the 9 to 5 favorite.

Dunmore was trailed to the finish by Sandy Ford and Mickey D.

Open bookmaking, with the envelope system of wagering, was easily accessible despite pre-race rumors that an injunction would be sought by Fred O. Eberhardt, Tallahassee publisher, to prevent it.

Eberhardt was at the track, but declined to talk for publication regarding his plans, except to say that the matter was in the hands of his attorney and that action to stop the wagering would be sought soon.

Four track records fell at the opening of Keeney Park's second meet. In the first race the margin was one-fifth of a second slower than the mark set last spring, and in the second race, over the same six furlongs, showed a tie for the previous record. In the next four races the records went by the boards, all by slight margins.

S. W. CONFERENCE RACE OPENS FRIDAY NIGHT

Three games next Friday evening officially opens the Southwestern Illinois High School Athletic Conference's titular basketball race. On that night East St. Louis invades Collinsville, Woodriver goes to Belleville and Alton moves to Edwardsville, while Granite City is idle.

These are the only games to be played this year. The schedule calls for the next games to be played on Tuesday night, Jan. 7.

CO-CAPTAINS ARE CHOSEN AT DINNER AT WEBSTER HIGH

At a banquet to Webster High School athletes given at the school last night, George Nisbet and William Freschi were elected co-captains of the 1930 football team. Speeches were made by Coaches Roberts and Gaines and Joe Lintzenich, former Webster star who, this year, captained the St. Louis University eleven.

FIRST NIGHT SOCCER GAME IN ST. LOUIS AT ARENA TUESDAY

When the St. Louis All-Stars line up against a foreign-born eleven in a benefit game at The Arena, Tuesday night, it will be the first time indoor soccer has ever been attempted in this city. However, it will not be the first time the sport has been played indoors in the United States.

For the last two years, indoor tournaments have been held in Cleveland in which 14 teams have participated. However, these matches were different from the one which will be played here, in that each team was made up of seven players instead of the regulation eleven, as will be the case here. According to advices from Cleveland, the games drew large crowds and proved of great interest to players and managers.

The local contest will be for the benefit of the hospital activities fund of the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion. A college football team between an all-star eleven picked by Jack O'Reilly from members of the City High School and Prep Leagues, and East St. Louis High, will be played as a preliminary. O'Reilly will probably name his lineup for the game, tomorrow.

Experienced Players to Show.

In making up the All-Star soccer lineup, the St. Louis League managers selected three players from each of the teams. LaBarge, Hand and Burke will be the Madison representatives; others are Erbe, Mulroy and Bollam of the Ben Millers; Benoist, Moore and McHenry, Tablers; and Lehman, Hart and Ahrens, the Hellrungs. Ahrens has been named as alternate, but with McHenry on the injured list at present, he is likely to see action.

Opposed to the St. Louis eleven will be a team composed mainly of players who have had experience in national challenge and amateur cup competitions of the United States Football Association as members of the Johnston City, West Frankfort and Royalton teams of the Southern Illinois district. Patterson, a fullback, and McClintic, a halfback, are regarded as real stars, while Coulson, at center forward, is rated as one of the best in the section.

Oscar Mossmann, former referee of the St. Louis League, has been selected to officiate. The general admission price will be 50 cents, with $1 for box seats.

The probable lineups:

All-Stars.	Pos.	British.
LaBarge	G.	B. Witanski
Hand	L. B.	Patterson
Erbe	R. B.	Smith
Benoist	L. H. B.	Slack
Burke	C. H. B.	Robinson
Lehman	R. H. B.	McClintic
Mulroy	O. L.	J. Witanski
Hart	I. L.	Smilie
Moore	C.	Coulson
Bollam	I. R.	Ward
McHenry or Ahrens	O. R.	Barlow

Referee—Oscar Mossmann.

Probable lineups for the high school football game:

ST. LOUIS ALL-STARS.	Pos.	E. ST. LOUIS
Wansong (C. B. C.)	L. E.	Lawler
Axtell (McBride)	L. T.	Gebhardt
Stoltman (St. L. U.)	L. G.	Seeger
McDonough McBride)	C.	Kurrus
Vainiko (Soldan)	R. G.	Smith
Guenther (C. B. C.)	R. T.	Patrick
Minkey (Soldan)	R. E.	Kirchoff
Barnes (Roosevelt)	Q. B.	Cassady
Fuchs (C. B. C.)	L. H. B.	Edwards
Brumby (McBride)	R. H. B.	Beasley
Carter (McBride)	F. B.	Martin

Cup Contests to Follow.

The indoor match will be the first of a series of special attractions in which the local professional elevens will appear in the next few weeks. Next Sunday, the St. Louis leaguers will make their debuts in the national challenge cup competition, with the Madisons facing the Hellrungs. The Ben Millers and Tablers are scheduled to tangle in a first-round match Dec. 29.

On Christmas day the Holleys of Detroit, present leaders in the Intercity Mid-Western League, will oppose a local team in an exhibition match. The Holleys are well known to St. Louisans and several years ago played for the national championship, only to be routed by Fall River, Mass. G. Visser, a former Holland international player, is managing the Detroit entry and playing a forward position.

The eleven boasts one American-born player, Gavin, a forward, who is one of the leading goal scorers in the Mid-West circuit.

STANFORD TO PLAY MINNESOTA NEXT YEAR

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 14.—A two-year home-and-home football arrangement between Stanford University and University of Minnesota was announced by Al Masters, graduate manager of Stanford. The first contest will be played at Stanford next Oct. 11.

WHITNEY AGAIN LEADS HORSE OWNERS IN WINNINGS WITH $365,000

By Clement Glaub.

For the fifth time in the last 10 years Harry Payne Whitney, New York breeder and turfman, is the leading money winner of the American turf. Whitney's powerful racing establishment, embracing about 80 thoroughbreds, most of them juveniles, has won approximately $365,000 in stakes and purses during 10 months of the year. With only a few weeks of racing left this year, Whitney is assured the honor of leading the thoroughbred owners of America.

Had Whitney kept the 2-year-olds Whichone and Boojum in training during the autumn racing there would have been a new record set for winnings in a single year. Whitney's earnings this year were surpassed only three times in the history of the sport of kings. The Rancocas Stable, owned by Harry F. Sinclair, won $38,849 in 1923, chiefly through the earnings of the great Zev, to set an all-time mark for owners. Whitney's horses almost eclipsed the Rancocas figures in 1926, winning $407,139. The late James R. Keene led in 1907 with $397,342.

Seldom does a year pass without the Whitney establishment disclosing a great star. In years past Whitney has started some of the greatest horses that ever graced the American turf. Among them is Regret, the only filly to win the Kentucky Derby.

Two-Year-Olds Come Through.

Most of Whitney's winnings this year were through the victories of Whichone and Boojum. Perhaps never before have two horses created the interest as did the Whitney pair. The great racers began their brilliant careers in the spring and held the spotlight until retired for the year. Whichone won the Futurity and Champagne Stakes at Belmont and three other races to swell his winnings to $135,455. Boojum earned $57,650 by winning three races.

The leading Whitney horse in the 3-year-old division, was Beacon Hill, the New Yorker's color bearer in all the leading stakes of the year for 3-year-olds. He scored five victories and earned $38,886. Bargello, Dress Ship and Agitator were the other leaders.

Two-year-olds played a prominent part in Whitney's Triumph this year. In addition to Whichone and Boojum, Whitney started and won with Dustemall, Crazy Coot, Murky Cloud, Mad Kiss, Swatter, Prometheus, Flimsy, Rueful, Skirl and Frumper.

In all, 41 horses raced for the Whitney Stable, winning more than 65 races. All of the horses which race in the stable's colors, were bred at Whitney's farm.

Whitney's breeding farm has long been one of the leading establishments in this country. From 1923 to 1927 Whitney's horses scored the second largest number of victories each year. The late John E. Madden, master of Hamburg Place, led the breeders during those years. In 1928 Phil T. Chinn's Himyar stud topped the breeding establishments, sending 331 winners to the post.

Although the Himyar Stud led the winners, Whitney's horses took down the most money. His horses scored in 234 races and earned $514,832. Madden's thoroughbreds earned $430,319, and the Himyar Stud horses accounted for $411,386.

Last season Whitney scored many triumphs of major importance with the fleet horses, Victorian and Whiskery, full brothers, both being by Whisk Broom II-Prudery. Whisk Brook, holder of the American record for a mile and one quarter and which stood at the head of the Whitney farm for many years, died during the summer. As Victorian and Whiskery grew older, Whitney disposed of them to different owners. The Warm Stable purchased Victorian, while Whiskery, which failed to keep his racing form, has been owned by various racing stables.

Whisk Broom sired another horse which promises to make a name for himself. This youngster, out of Payment, was sold as a yearling for a record price of $75,000 at the Saratoga sales of 1928.

A division of the Whitney Stable will be raced during the winter season at various tracks in the South, with Mose Goldblatt in charge. Most of them are 2-year-olds from the western division of the establishment. Goldblatt also has a few yearlings which he will break to racing during the winter.

War Instigator	107	4	5	5^h	6	6	6	6	C. Landolt.	14.15

Yam Toy broke fast on the outside, ran into the lead, was under restraint to middle of turn, where he drew out and won handily. Uncommon Gold away well, was bothered going around the first turn, was taken out in the run down the stretch and was second best. Galahad trailed for seven furlongs, then came fast and was third in the last stride. Calf Roper seemed to be lame going to the post and ran well.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Yam Toy, win $27.10, place $7.60, show $3.70; Uncommon Gold, place $4, show $3; Galahad, show $3.30.

Marlboro	113	4	1	$4^{½}$	7	7	7	7	W. Fronk	2.10

Play B. showing best form, moved up very fast on the inside, took the lead and held on gamely at the end. Broad Axe, showing big improvement over recent efforts closed with a rush and was a fast going second. Alto made a determined bid around the turn but weakened in the last sixteenth. Essie tired forcing the pace. Laundryman ran a poor race. Marlboro eased up at the end.

$2 mutuels paid: Play B, win $23.00, place $10.60, show $4.90; Broad Axe, place $11.40, show $8.40; Alto, show $5.30.

SEVENTH RACE—$1000, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, one and one-quarter miles: Start good, won handily, place easily. Went to post 4:52 p. m., at post 30 seconds. Winner b g 7 by Assagai-Hussy. Vinlin	108	4	6	6^2	7^3	8	8	P. McGinnis.	25-1

aG. D. Widener entry.

Partisan, quickest to find his stride, drew clear the first furlong and was taken under steadying restraint, followed close to the pace to the stretch, where he drew away under pressure. Rain or Shine in tight quarters rounding the turn, squeezed through at the furlong pole and finished with good courage. Blue Canopy slipped through on the inside the first quarter and weakened in the stretch. Vagrant, a forward contender from the start, tired as if short.

Betting odds: Partisan, 6-5 to win, 2-5 place, 1-6 show; Rain or Shine, place 6-5, show 1-2; Blue Canopy, show 2-1.

SECOND RACE—$800, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs: Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post 3:11 p. m.; at post 4 minutes. Winner, b. c. 4, by Stefan The Great-Masda. Trainer, C. D. Pryor. Time, :24, :48 1-5, 1:13 1-5 (equals track record). Value to winners $850, $100, $50.

Sun Bright	112	7	11	10^1	$10^{½}$	12	12	E. Kennedy.	50-1

The Tartar, restrained off the early pace steadily improved his position the final three furlongs and responding determinedly under intermittent punishment wore down the leaders in the final 70 yards to win going away. Virmar saved ground all the way and set a fast early pace but faltered when it came to a real drive. Stephanus followed the leader closely all the way and made a wide turn into the stretch and lost ground. He came again the last sixteenth and would have been second in a few more strides. Black Watch well up for a half mile tired the last furlong.

Betting odds: The Tartar, win 5-1, place 2-1, show even; Virmar, place even, show 1-2; Staphanus, show 2-5.

THIRD RACE—$820, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, one mile: Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post 3:46 p. m., at post 1 minute. Winner, Br. g 6, by War Star-Altiora. Trainer, W. A. Shea. Time, :25 1-5, :50, 1:16 1-5, 1:43 2-5 (new track record). Value to winners $650, $100, $50.

Confidential	113	1	8	10^3	10^1	11	11	11	E. Taylor.	8-1

Gold Star, away forwardly, followed the leaders closely until entering the stretch, where he slipped through next to the rail and outstayed Angelena. Latter displayed good speed, raced Jack Biener into submission the early stages and held on tenaciously when the final drive came. Anaconda, slow to get going, gradually improved his position on the outside, outlasted Bidable in the closing strides.

Betting odds: Gold Star, win 6-1, place 5-2, show 6-5; Angeline, place 4-1, show 2-1; Anaconda, show 5-1.

Wacket, well up first quarter, drew clear with a rush at the stretch, but was kept under strong urging to the end. Guilder pushed his way through on the inside rounding the turn and finished gamely in the final furlong. Prince Toy, away well, was in close quarters leaving the back stretch and was forced to pull up sharply. Leller Bunny showed speed.

Betting odds: Wacket, win 11-5, place 9-10, show 2-5; Guilder, place 3-1, show 8-5; Prince Toy, show 6-5.

Dunmore, outpaced first six furlongs, gained with good courage after entering the stretch and outlasted Sandyford when the final issue came. Sandyford displayed excellent speed and forced a rapid early pace. Mickey D., far back in the early stages, improved his position steadily in the last half mile and held Nearby safe at the end.

Betting odds: Dunmore, win 5-1, place 2-1, show 4-5; Sandy Ford, place 1-2, show 1-5; Mickey D., show 7-5.

SIXTH RACE—$800, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, one and one-eighth miles—Start good, won easily, place driving. Went to post 5:13 p. m. At post 1 minute. Catlettesburg hustled into the contention going to the first turn, followed the leaders under slight restraint until entering the stretch, where he assumed command at his leisure to win with something to spare. Lancer, used up racing Leonardeau into defeat the first six furlongs held on well, under punishment through the stretch out-lasted Parole II, and Fair Class. Parole II forced back going to first turn saved ground and moved forwardly with rush and made a game bid.

Betting odds: Catlettsburg, win 8-1, place 3-1, show 8-5; Lancer, place 2-1, show even; Parole II, show 8-5.

HAVANA RACE MEETING OPENS; TEMPS D'AMOUR WINS FEATURE

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Dec. 14.—The Malecon purse, the feature attraction of the opening day was won by Mrs. L. Metivier's Temps d'Amour, ridden by F. Dougherty. The winner nosed out Mrs. J. Zoeller's St. Jim in the final strides, with W. C. Goodloe's Delmonico third. St. Jim was the favorite.

Temps d'Amour broke rapidly and soon drew into a commanding position where he quickly disposed of St. Jim. St. Jim responded when put under pressure and was wearing down the winner in the final strides. With a little more distance he might have been returned the victor. Delmonico was a good but distant third.

The club house was thronged by the elite of Havana, including many noted leaders of the foreign colony.

Hancock High to Play Two League Games Friday

During the coming week every school in the County High League, except St. Charles, will play at least one game. Hancock will play a game on Tuesday and two games on Friday. Maplewood, Ritenour and Ferguson will each have two games to play.

Maplewood will play its first game of the season when it meets Principia at Maplewood Tuesday night. On the same night Hancock will journey to Chaminade to try for their third straight victory of the season. On Wednesday Clayton, which has lost its first two starts, will play at Ferguson.

Four league games and one non-league will be on the card for Friday. The four-way tie that now exists between Hancock, Ferguson, Jennings and Kirkwood will be narrowed down to at least only three, because Ferguson plays Hancock. Before taking on the Ferguson quintet in the night game, Hancock will play Webster in the afternoon at 4 o'clock. In the other league games, University City will open its league season against Kirkwood, Jennings will go to Wellston and Ritenour will play host to Normandy. On Saturday Ritenour goes to Maplewood. The County League standings:

SCHOOL.	W.	L.	Pct.
Hancock	1	0	1.000
Jennings	1	0	1.000
Ferguson	1	0	1.000
Kirkwood	1	0	1.000

FIELDS ABSOLVED FROM ALL BLAME IN RECENT FIASCO

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—Some of the blot on the record of Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, was erased here late today when the Massachusetts Boxing Commission absolved him of any blame in his bout with "Gorilla" Jones of Akron, O., which was declared a no-contest in the seventh round last night.

After discussing this contest the commission notified Eddie Mack, the Boston Garden boxing promoter, to pay Fields and Jones the agreed purses. The commission refused to issue any official statement regarding the bout, but Eugene Buckley, the senior member, expressed regret that it was halted by Referee Joe O'Connor.

ODIN LOSES SIXTH STRAIGHT; SANDOVAL WINS THIRD IN ROW

ODIN, Ill., Dec. 14. — The Odin high school basketball team lost a Northern Egyptian conference game last night to Sandoval high at Sandoval by the score 25 to 16.

This was Sandoval's third straight conference victory, and Odin's sixth straight defeat. In a curtain raiser, Sandoval eighth graders defeated Odin eighth graders 7 to 5.

78 HORSES ARE NOMINATED FOR $10,000 STAKE AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—Seventy-eight thoroughbreds were nominated for the $10,000 added New Orleans Handicap, to be run at the Fairgrounds track here, according to the entry list made public today by Racing Secretary Joseph McLennan. The entries for the mile and one-sixteenth classic closed Dec. 7 but the lists were kept open for a week to enable all those whose entries were in the mail by midnight of that day to be received.

Every stable of importance quartered at the local tracks, has named one or more representatives for the three leading stakes of the Fairgrounds program, among them being racers which will carry the colors of Harry Payne Whitney, E. R. Bradley, Rancocas Stable, George Collins, S. N. Holman, Walter J. Salmon and Greentree Stable.

Walter J. Salmon's great handicap horse, Display, is among the entrants for the event. He is hard on the heels of Zev, leading money winner of America, and if he takes down first money in the New Orleans Handicap and wins one more stake race of importance, he will establish a new money winning record for thoroughbreds.

Col. Bradley, master of Idle Hour Farm, is represented by five horses, Buttered Toast, Beaming Over, Bad News, Burning Sun and Brother Rank. Harry Sinclair's silks will be borne by Donnay, Leucite and Maestro. Panchio, which finished third in the Kentucky Derby; Calf Roper, winner of the Louisiana Derby; Line Rider and Prince Pat are entered by the Three D's Stable.

Four women owners have entrants in the stake, Mrs. O. Chaney, Mrs. Rose Sullivan, Mrs. R. Pollard and Mrs. W. J. Potter. Mrs. Chaney has nominated Inception, one of the stars of the fall meetings in Maryland. Mrs. Pollard and Mrs. Potter have named Ulunin and Genuine.

(As Told to Westbro

IT IS my idea that a good football te than for the dear old alma mater, a who is without experience ring for t

It is easy enough to rise in the stands between halves at a football game and sing the varsity song with might and fervor in honor of an abstract god, but the young men who are toiling in the monotony of practice for weeks on end and beating their skulls together with heedless abandon in scrimmage and in the big games of the schedule need some personal, intimate deity to sustain their devotion. This is the coach.

Paints Zuppke as Capable Coach.

I do not wish to examine or offend the loyalty of those who sing the varsity fight songs, although it does seem curious that this spiritual ardor of theirs has inspired so few creditable compositions. Most of the varsity lyrics are quite callow and most of the airs have been blandly pirated. The anthem of Yale is sung to the music of "The Watch on the Rhine," "Boola Boola" is an old English pot song. The Army's "Benny Haven's" is wailed to "The Wearin' o' the Green," and the West Point cadets of the

RED GRANGE

Grange's 65-Yard Run-B As Freshman Draws

If this sounds unduly heroic I am only trying to explain that a fellow playing football feels a bowed tendon or a couple of stove-in teeth just as much as a man who is hurt to the same extent in an automobile smash and instantly begins yelling for an ambulance and a lawyer. These hurts hurt. But a coach can tell whether a player is merely in physical pain or dangerously injured. I thought I was dying after Noble hit me, but Zuppke knew he had just knocked the wind out of me.

Zuppke had begun to pay me some heed when as a freshman I ran back a punt about 65 yards through his varsity team, and by the time I came up to the varsity in my second year at school he had me pretty well plotted.

I do not hold with tub-thumping and spreadeagle oratory in the team's quarters, believing that any team whose emotions can be played like a fiddle must be incapable of sober reasoning. But, then, that is only a personal notion. If I were a coach I would never stomp up about the room, go yowling and beating the air to arouse my men for fear they would see through the fake and lose confidence in me.

Inspirational Talks Without Bulldozing.

I was raised in a more subtle school. There is no doubt that Zuppke worked out on us according to a psychological plan, but he did it in such a way that we can still reflect on his rambling, anecdotal talks before the fire and feel no sense of having been ninnies in responding to what he said. If I had ever been worked on by one of those hell-fire coaches, who howl like trial lawyers, and made to blubber on my sleeve, I should have felt a sense of sheepishness, annoyance at myself and resentment toward the coach for imposing on my faith and emotions, the way a man feels when an actor makes him gulp at a play.

It was only the slightest momentary lapse that made me a member of the football squad at Illinois.

In my first year, some of the upper classmen at the frat house ordered me out for the freshman squad, so I went to the gymnasium timidly and hoping the suits would be all gone. I had played one year at end and three as a running back at Wheaton, but although Wheaton High School won the championship of Du Page County, we were known outside our own county only by reason of our defeat in a post-season game with Scott High School of Toledo, O., a

The entries for the mile and one-sixteenth classic closed Dec. 7 but the lists were kept open for a week to enable all those whose entries were in the mail by midnight of that day to be received.

Every stable of importance, quartered at the local tracks, have named one or more representatives for the three leading stakes o the Fairgrounds program, among them being racers which will carry the colors of Harry Payne Whitney, E. R. Bradley, Rancocas Stable, George Collins, S. N. Holman, Walter J. Salmon and Greentree Stable.

Walter J. Salmon's great handicap horse, Display, is among the entrants for the event. He is hard on the heels of Zev, leading money winner of America, and if he takes down first money in the New Orleans Handicap and wins one more stake race of importance, he will establish a new money winning record for thoroughbreds.

Col. Bradley, master of Idle Hour Farm, is represented by five horses, Buttered Toast, Beaming Over, Bad News, Burning Sun and Brother Rank. Harry Sinclair's silks will be borne by Donnay, Leucite and Maestro. Panchio, which finished third in the Kentucky Derby; Calf Roper, winner of the Louisiana Derby; Line Rider and Prince Pat are entered by the Three D's Stable.

Four women owners have entrants in the stake, Mrs. O. Chaney, Mrs. Rose Sullivan, Mrs. R. Pollard and Mrs. W. J. Potter. Mrs. Chaney has nominated Inception, one of the stars of the fall meetings in Maryland. Mrs. Pollard and Mrs. Potter have named Ulunin and Genuine.

RED GRANGE CREDITS EARL BRITTON WITH MAKING HIM A SCORING ACE

MATE'S INTERFERENCE BROUGHT FAME TO BALL-CARRIER; HE SAYS COACH NOT SCHOOL, INSPIRES PLAY

The Post-Dispatch presents herewith the second installment in Red Grange's Own Story, in which the colorful football star tells, through Westbrook Pegler, of his career at Illinois and in the professional ranks. Two more installments are to come, on succeeding Sundays.

INSTALLMENT II.

By Red Grange.

(As Told to Westbrook Pegler.)

IT IS my idea that a good football team plays for the coach rather than for the dear old alma mater, and if this be heresy let him who is without experience ring for the wagon.

It is easy enough to rise in the stands between halves at a football game and sing the varsity song with might and fervor in honor of an abstract god, but the young men who are toiling in the monotony of practice for weeks on end and beating their skulls together with heedless abandon in scrimmage and in the big games of the schedule need some personal, intimate deity to sustain their devotion. This is the coach.

Paints Zuppke as Capable Coach.

I do not wish to examine or offend the loyalty of those who sing the varsity fight songs, although it does seem curious that this spiritual ardor of theirs has inspired so few creditable compositions. Most of the varsity lyrics are quite callow and most of the airs have been blandly pirated. The anthem of Yale is sung to the music of "The Watch on the Rhine," "Boola Boola" is an old English pot song. The Army's "Benny Haven's" is wailed to "The Wearin' o' the Green," and the West Point cadets of the last few classes have been hollering an adapted version of "The Song of the Vagabonds."

Wisconsin, Knox, Amherst, Cornell and Princeton have rousing numbers which were grown on the premises, but, on the whole, the college poets have not smote their blinkin' lyres to any distinguished artistic effect.

While I do not say that I ever stopped to reflect on this or to ponder the meaning of it all when I was playing football at Illinois, I do insist that the institution was impersonal and remote in the affections of the team, whereas Bob Zuppke was real to us. He was fair, he was amusing, he was irritable and he was capable.

Recalls Time School Devotion Didn't Help.

Don't think I am maudlin, but a football coach must be first in the hearts of the kids who play for him. Zuppke, Stagg, Rockne and Warner all dominate their teams, and loyalty is yielded to them first and to their schools secondarily.

On the first play I ever made for Illinois, against the University of Nebraska, a big tough back named Noble came blasting through from nowhere, head down and going like a shell. He bored me square in my center, so hard I thought my back was broken. I have heard that football players take the field so exalted and stimulated that they are insensible to pain, but the man never lived who could airily ignore a crash like that. For the next 10 minutes I wobbled around, running off plays in agony and afraid to take a deep breath because I was sure I could feel the shattered ends of my ribs chafing my lungs. I wanted to quit and lie down and die, and I am quite certain that it was not devotion to the University of Illinois that kept me going.

I didn't know much about the University of Illinois, anyway. I was only a sophomore and up to the very hour when I signed articles as a freshman I had been just as willing to go to Michigan or Ohio State. But a kid will suffer more from a certain expression in the eyes of his football coach than from physical pain, and I did not want Zuppke to look at me that way.

Grange's 65-Yard Run-Back of Punt As Freshman Draws Zuppke's Attention

If this sounds unduly heroic I am only trying to explain that a fellow playing football feels a bowed tendon or a couple of stove-in teeth just as much as a man who is hurt to the same extent in an automobile smash and instantly begins yelling for an ambulance and a lawyer. These hurts hurt. But a coach can tell whether a player is merely in physical pain or dangerously injured. I thought I was dying after Noble hit me, but Zuppke knew he had just knocked the wind out of me.

Zuppke had begun to pay me some heed when as a freshman I ran back a punt about 65 yards through his varsity team, and by the time I came up to the varsity in my second year at school he had me pretty well plotted.

I do not hold with tub-thumping and spreadeagle oratory in the team's quarters, believing that any team whose emotions can be played like a fiddle must be incapable of sober reasoning. But, then, that is only a personal notion. If I were a coach I would never stomp up about the room, go yowling and beating the air to arouse my men for fear they would see through the fake and lose confidence in me.

Inspirational Talks Without Bulldozing.

I was raised in a more subtle school. There is no doubt that Zuppke worked out on us according to a psychological plan, but he did it in such a way that we can still reflect on his rambling, anecdotal talks before the fire and feel no sense of having been ninnies in responding to what he said. If I had ever been worked on by one of those hell-fire coaches, who howl like trial lawyers, and made to blubber on my sleeve, I should have felt a sense of sheepishness, annoyance at myself and resentment toward the coach for imposing on my faith and emotions, the way a man feels when an actor makes him gulp at a play.

It was only the slightest momentary lapse that made me a member of the football squad at Illinois.

In my first year, some of the upper classmen at the frat house ordered me out for the freshman squad, so I went to the gymnasium timidly and hoping the suits would be all gone. I had played one year at end and three as a running back at Wheaton, but although Wheaton High School won the championship of Du Page County, we were known outside our own county only by reason of our defeat in a post-season game with Scott High School of Toledo, O., a title like high school champion of the United States.

Tells of Being "Out" 10 Days From Kick.

Bill Castleman, our coach, who taught manual training in school team which aspired to some grand hours, took us over to Toledo, mainly for the ride on the train, I suppose, and the night before the game, after he had checked us into our rooms, we got up and played penny ante until 4 a. m. So we took the field against Scott High's big, well coached, confident team in a groggy state from lack of sleep and were licked, 38 to 0.

However, I had no personal knowledge of anything that happened after the first play. I took the ball and was kicked on the head so hard that I did not really come to and regain my speech for 10 days. They took me out unconscious. By evening I had recovered somewhat but could not utter a sound. As we were crossing a bridge on the way to the hotel I was so startled in my confused state of mind to see the reflection of the moon and stars in the water that I yelled, "If that's the sky, how did I get way up here?"

After that I lapsed off again and was only half conscious, at best, for 10 days. Then, suddenly, I recovered and began to babble and never felt any more effects of the jolt.

Red Finds Himself in Regular Back Field.

At Illinois my freshman class included a dozen or more of the best high school football players of the previous year, and the day I went down to the gym under orders to report to the frosh I looked out the window and saw almost 300 candidates on the field, including Moon Baker of Rockford, who later starred at Northwestern; Art Folz of Hyde Park, who had been all-Chicago quarterback for four years; Paul Cook of Muskegon, who had been picked on some all-America high school team the year before, and Earl Britton.

I decided that—Hell—that was no place for a barefoot boy from the suburbs, and went back to the frat house, intending to say I had been refused a suit. But I forgot my story, and when someone asked me why I was not out for the team I just told the truth, of which I am very fond, if I may so so.

So I had to go out again, and when the squad was cut from 300 to 100 two days later I was in the regular back field, with Cook at the other half, Britton at fullback, and Baker at quarter.

Not long after that we played a full game against the varsity, scoring three touchdowns and losing only by the margin of a missed point from touchdown. Zuppke began to stroll over and study the frosh.

He is an ankle-deep philosopher, spending much time on books explaining the whyness of the why-not, and he works in a team with Prof. Griffith, who teaches psychology at the university. The professor goes about disguised as a common human being, wearing neither whiskers nor shawl, and carrying no butterfly net, so the members of the freshman squad fall into conversation with him, unsuspectingly, and express themselves on one thing and another without the slightest sense of being under the microscope like so many bacteria. He just goes nutting around the place, gadding with this one and that one, casually and pleasantly.

Zuppke Lands on Red; Scored Only Four Times.

Well, how do you like Illinois?

All right.

Do you think the team will win next week?

Yes, or no maybe.

Zuppke certainly is a funny guy, isnt' he.

Yeah, a football nut.

And the professor retires to his laboratory to prepare a special psychological serum for each athlete on the freshman squad against the time when he will come up to the varsity. He continues his observations through the subsequent years, of course, but by that time the players know who he is and what he does and they may be self-conscious in their talks with him. This may over emphasize this bug hunting among a student's thoughts, opinions and emotions, but I can only say that in two conspicuous instances his prescriptions worked.

He told Zuppke I was one who had to be gentled and encouraged, except in the manner of a kindly suggestion. The only time Zuppke ever departed from this was the afternoon I got four touchdowns against Michigan in the first 10 minutes of play. It was a hot afternoon and by the time we lined up for the fifth kickoff I was so winded from sprinting that I signaled Zuppke to take me out.

"You should have had five touchdowns," he said when I sat down.

Britton Gets Attention of a Different Kind.

Britton, on the other hand, was a gay, regardless, reckless kid and he had to take a course of psychological bitters that would have ulcered my spirits in 24 hours. The professor told Zuppke never to praise him and always to bear down on him because Britton had never bawled and seldom criticized, no sense of awe nor appreciation of the solemn immensity of his responsibilities on the team. Britton was one of the greatest interfering backs that ever lived.

In the Michigan game he went tumbling along before me and there were plays when I saw him go to the ground taking one tackler, get up, take out another and finally take out a third man before I was downed or clear of the defense.

Without a Britton there never would have been a Red Grange, but I happened to be the man with the football on all those plays and the reputation came to me. But that condition isn't peculiar to football. Nobody knows the name of Paul Revere's horse.

I had known Earl as an opponent in basketball when we were in high school and played against him the time he made his only basket in three years on the floor. He played with Elgin and I, of course, with Wheaton. That great night he hauled off and pitched a wild pass to one of his men at the opposite end of the floor and we all stood speechless when the ball hit the back board and dropped into the basket.

Illinois Coach's Big Lesson for His Players Is 1916 Victory Over Minnesota Team

The day of our first conference game against Iowa at Iowa City, Zuppke herded us all into a hotel room on the second floor and Jim McMillan, the captain of the team, threatened to murder Britton because he would not get solemn about the football game. The Iowa people were parading below our window, with the band blatting and pennants flying. All of us except Britton were nervous and shaky, but he was snickering in a back seat and making little paper aeroplanes. He would write "To Hell with Iowa" on these and pitch them out the window into the crowd.

Zuppke swore at him and the whole team turned on him. It seemed a terrible way for any man to act, but especially for a sophomore about to play his first Big Ten game. But Britton just laughed at Zuppke and McMillan and all of us and went out and played a great game of football just the same, proving, I suppose, that some of the crusaders enjoyed themselves along the line of march.

In the last five minutes of play that day, starting from our own five-yard line, with the score against us, Britton threw me three passes and put me over with the touchdown that won the game.

1916 Conquerors of of Gophers Zuppke's Best.

Zuppke's psychology always was optimistic, but by no means Pollyanna. In the last few days before big games at home he would sit before the big fireplace at the country club where the team was quartered, smoking the little stump of a cigar and talking about the teams that won against the odds. This theme worked either way. If we were up and inclined to be cocky it would warn us against overconfidence, but if we were overawed by some team it would convince us that we were, after all, eleven men against eleven other men and big enough to grapple with any eleven men on earth.

He was fondest of his little team that beat the great Minnesota team at Minneapolis in 1916, and he would disappear into his big chair and his voice would come to us out of the shadows like the voice of an oracle telling of that fabulous victory.

That was the year that Minnesota, with a great line, a great quarterback named Shorty Long and the greatest forward passing combination Zuppke had ever seen from Wyman to Baston, had beaten all opponents by scores of 40 to 0 or better up to the time of the game with Illinois.

Zuppke Uses Minnesota Story to Fit Occasion.

Illinois had lost to Chicago and Chicago had been one of Minnesota's victims, so when Zuppke took his team to Minneapolis the Minnesota people built a special stand which was almost a throne, decorated with the Stars and Stripes and the colors of the school, and invited Walter Camp to sit there with the president of the university and select his all-America team. The inference was that Minnesota admitted having the greatest football team of all time and that Mr. Camp needn't trouble to study his selections but might simply copy the Minnesota lineup and let it stand.

Zuppke made a casual speech to his team that day. He told them to go out and play their best and remember they were only playing football after all and that the principal object of the game was to have a good time. Illinois won and if he never wearied of telling the story, neither did we weary of hearing it. He made the football game appear before our eyes and by just the slightest shift of emphasis in the telling he could point the moral appropriate to our frame of mind. If we were too fond of ourselves, he would create a sympathy for Minnesota and vice versa.

FOOTBALL RULES TO BE ABRIDGED; NOT CHANGED

By James M. Gould

Except for the games scheduled for the holidays on the Pacific Coast, the football season is "gone but not forgotten." But the sport holds over longer nowadays than in the past and the gathering in New York on Jan. 1 of coaches from all parts of the country will serve to give the game added life and interest.

Each year this conclave discusses rules and interpretations thereof. As yet, no season has passed without certain rules having been given different interpretations in various conferences. At this next meeting there will be offered a plan to make these interpretations uniform.

Also an abridged code of rules will be offered. No rules which obtained during the season just closed will be omitted, but all will be shortened and, if necessary, clarified. The present rule book lists 28 major rules with numerous subsections. The new book, it is said, will gather all these into 13 rules and, what is more important, approved rulings of actual plays, instead of being placed in a separate section at the end of the book will, in the new volume, be grouped under each rule to which they apply.

It is believed there will be no major changes in the conduct of the game. Observers believe the present game is fairly foolproof at present and that the rules worked well throughout the season.

May Change Penalty Clause.

There is one rule, however, which may be equalized. It is Section 9 of Rule 23 which states that when fouls are declared against both teams on the same play, the ball shall be brought back to the point of the previous down and put in play with the down and the point to be gained remaining the same.

It is pointed out that this nullification of penalties sometimes works to the detriment of one of the teams. For instance, suppose a case of clipping is called on Team A—a 25-yard penalty. But on the play, Team B is called offside—a five-yard penalty. This offside penalty nullifies the greater one and Team B actually has suffered a 20-yard loss.

A concrete instance of this inequality was the call of a play in the Thanksgiving day game between Washington and St. Louis universities. The Billikens were penalized for clipping and, on the same play, the Bears were penalized for piling on or "piling up" as the rule book has it. Thus, the Billikens were penalized 25 yards and the Bears 15—or should have been. Neither was, under the rule and Washington lost what might have been a 10-yard advantage.

SECOND STRAIGHT VICTORY SCORED BY ZACAWEISTA

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON PARK, La., Dec. 14.—Over a fast track and carrying 110 pounds, the Three D's Stable's Zacaweista scored his second victory of the meeting when he led home a high-class field of sprinters in the Club Forest Park, one of the features today. F. D. McElroy, trainer of the Three D's Stable, was presented with a loving cup and Jockey T. May received a huge bouquet.

Zacaweista was held at even money. Patricia Marian ran second and Paul Bunyan third.

Zacaweista, which has just reached his top form, rushed to the front, followed by Paul Bunyan and Step Along. His pace was very fast and he drew away from the rest of the field. Zacaweista swung into the stretch five lengths to the good and all through the final furlong May was looking back at the field. He won by a length and a half, while Patricia Marian beat Paul Bunyan a length and a half for the place. The time was 1:13.

The holiday players turned out in good numbers and saw H. D. Cox's Watch the Time defeat Isoard for the first race. Troll, favorite, was third. This was a mile and one-quarter race and Watch the Time was always near the front end. He saved ground and won handily by a length from Isoard, with Troll three lengths back. The time was 2:08 and the winner paid $20.10.

Lucky Hit Wins Easily.

Phil Reuter's Lucky Hit, well played, scored handily in the second event at six furlongs and he ran the distance in the best time so far this meeting, 1:13 2-5. The Southerner was second and McTinkle third. Fleeting Fire suddenly finding his speed, set a stiff pace to the stretch, where the field closed on him. In the final sprint Lucky Hit ran into the lead and won from the fast-closing The Southerner, with McTinkle third, a head back.

U. S. DELEGATION TO SAIL FOR NAVAL PARLEY ON JAN. 10

Secretary Stimson Says American Representatives Will Cross on Steamer George Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Preparation for American participation in the London Naval Conference moved forward in Washington today from three sources.

The House unanimously adopted a resolution by Congressman Wood to provide $200,000 to meet expenses of the American delegates. It now goes to the Senate.

Secretary of State Stimson announced the delegation would sail on a United States flagship, the George Washington. It probably will leave about Jan. 10.

The American delegates, who have been holding daily sessions to go over details of the naval situation, continued their study.

The original plan had been for the delegation to sail on a foreign vessel.

Comptroller-General McCarl was asked to rule on the status of the payments for the voyage on a foreign vessel. He advised the delegation could take a foreign ship, but after receiving his ruling the Secretary felt that making out of necessary papers required when foreign ships are used by American officials would not more than equal the time which would be saved by the placing of the delegation in London earlier by taking a faster ship.

Jan. 10 is understood to be the tentative date on which Stimson and the delegation expect to sail.

The official greeting of the American Government to the Japanese delegation to the London arms conference, arriving here Monday, will be extended by Secretaries Stimson and Adams.

The two Cabinet members, accompanied by their aids and high officials of both departments, will meet the Japanese delegation upon its arrival at Union Station.

The State Department today announced the program for the delegation during its four-day stay in Washington for conferences with President Hoover, Stimson and members of the American delegation to the arms conferences.

The principal social functions will include a dinner by the Japanese Ambassador Dec. 17, a dinner at the White House Dec. 18, and a luncheon the day before the delegation departs for New York given by Stimson at the Pan-American Union.

President Hoover will receive the nine principal officers of the Japanese commission at the White House Monday afternoon.

OBJECTS TO FIVE-YEAR TERM, STANDS TRIAL, GETS 8 YEARS

Highwayman Whose Companion Was Sentenced to Serve 15 Years Convicted by Jury.

Clyde A. Wheeler, 20-year-old Negro, 4170 Finney avenue, was sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary by a jury in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court yesterday on a charge of participation in the robbery of the Blue Valley Creamery, 2722 Pine street, last August. Wheeler previously had pleaded guilty, and had been sentenced to the penitentiary for five years. He asked leave to withdraw the plea several days ago, and the jury trial followed.

Wheeler, who says he is a graduate of University of Iowa, and Oreon Moore, alias Allen Key, 22, also a Negro, were arrested in the offices of the creamery last Aug. 10 as they were about to leave with $331 they had taken in a holdup of the place. Police, answering an alarm, arrived before they could make their escape. Moore pleaded guilty in September, and was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

TWO STUDENT FLYERS HURT IN COLLISION OF PLANES

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 14.—Two student aviators were injured seriously, but probably not fatally, in a collision of their planes near the ground at Logan Field today. At the field their names were given as Samuel S. Fetherolf, 18 years old, Kepmton, Pa., and Samuel L. Tillinghast, 23, Baltimore.

Officials of the flying service at the field said inexperience of the pilots caused the collision. Both had been in the air about half an hour and were maneuvering over a corner of the field to land when wing tips brushed. The two machines fell 175 feet, locked together, despite struggles of the pilots to separate them. Mechanics pulled them from the wreckage and they were sent to a hospital, where physicians found Tillinghast had a broken leg and several broken ribs, while Fetherolf escaped with cuts, bruises and shock.

FOR $100,000,000 A YEAR U. S. AID FOR RURAL SCHOOLS

Minnesota Congressman Asserts His Project Is Necessary to Equalize Burden of Taxation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Explaining a bill introduced by him today to appropriate $100,000,000 annually for two years for the partial support of rural schools, Congressman Selvig (Rep.), Minnesota, said the proposition was necessary to equalize the burden of taxation.

"An urgent need exists to devote a part of the Federal income tax for the support of rural schools," he said in a statement. "Taxation has increased so rapidly in the last decade that it has become an overwhelming burden in most farming sections."

Selvig said adjustment and reduction would bring the most direct type of farm relief, and the time has come to consider any sound economic plan which will divert back into the rural district some of the vast volume of urban money to assist in meeting the rural school cost.

"Money is escaping from r sections into the more popu metropolitan centers in a gre and greater degree. Chain st mail order houses, the vast c centration of industries which supported largely by farm buy power—all of these drain the r al community and contribute to returns elsewhere," he declared.

Grover-Franciscus Engagement Made Known at Luncheon

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton Grover to Wed Son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Franciscus.

THE engagement of two of the most popular members of the younger set was announced yesterday. The betrothal of Miss Loraine Grover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton Grover of the Greystone Apartments, and John D. Franciscus, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Franciscus, 10 Lenox place, was made known at a luncheon given by Mrs. John Burton Kennard Jr., 4937 Laclede avenue, at the St. Louis Country Club.

Miss Grover was graduated from Mary Institute and Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn., and, preceding her debut three seasons ago, traveled in Europe. She was presented to society at a party given by Mrs. Jay Herndon Smith and the late Mr. Smith at the St. Louis Country Club and became a member of the Junior League. Mr. Franciscus is the great-great grandson of the philanthropist, John Mullanphy, and a grandson of James M. Franciscus, a pioneer citizen of St. Louis. His mother was the former Miss Katherine Graham Lindsay, a leader of St. Louis society since her girlhood. Mrs. O. P. Joseph Falk, formerly Miss Marian Franciscus, a Veiled Prophet Queen, is Mr. Franciscus' sister. He was educated at Country Day School, the Princeton Preparatory School and the Western Military Academy and is a member of the St. Louis Country Club. No date has been set for the wedding.

The announcement party was attended by 18 guests seated at a table arranged in the lounge of the club decorated by tall crystal vases adorned in bows of white tulle and filled with white chrysanthemums. Ivory tapers in silver branched candelabra illuminated the table. In addition to the hostess and the guest of honor those present were Miss Kathleen Sheldon, Miss Janet Gardner, Miss Dorinda Kennerly, Miss Susie Singleton, Miss Roccena Baldwin, Miss Mary Jane Turner, Miss Frances Breck, Mrs. Fielding Childress, Mrs. Marion L. J. Lambert, Mrs. O. P. Joseph Falk, Mrs. Allen Thompson Smith, Mrs. Dozier Lee Gardner, Mrs. William Weld, Miss Ellen Bates, Miss Jane Maffitt and Miss Martha Sluder.

Miss Jane Lincoln to Wed Paul G. Chamberlain Jr.

THE engagement of Miss Jane Lincoln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lincoln, 236 Sylvester avenue, Webster Groves, and Paul G. Chamberlain Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Chamberlain of Park avenue, Glendale, was announced last night at a dinner party for 12 guests given at the Lincoln home. The news was disclosed in a telegram delivered to one of the guests.

Christmas decorations were used on the table. There was a center piece of red roses, and the room was lighted by the glow from red tapers.

Miss Lincoln was graduated last June from Washington University, where she became a member of Pi Beta Phi. She spent last summer traveling in Europe.

Mr. Chamberlain is also a graduate of Washington University, and is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. The wedding will take place early next summer.

Guests at the dinner included Miss Lisette Gross, Miss Margaret Warner, Miss Myrtle Oliver, Miss Jane Henry, Miss Harriet Baur, Roger Slater, Ewing Wachter, William Roever, Dr. Rogers Wellman and Clinton Burnett.

Miss Dorothy Green To Wed T. A. Eggman

TO the interesting list of January brides is added the name of Miss Dorothy Green, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Frederick William Green, 6203 Washington boulevard, who will be married Jan. 22 to Theodore A. Eggman, son of Mr. and Mrs. August M. Eggman of East St. Louis. The date was chosen because the golden wedding anniversary of Miss Green's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Rhodes, occurs on that day.

The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Church of the Ascension, the Rev. Dr. John S. Bunting officiating, and will be followed by a reception at the Green home. The plans for the wedding party are not complete.

Miss Green was a debutante two seasons ago, and prior to that season attended Miss Bennett's School, Millbrook, N. Y., after graduating from Mary Institute. Mr. Eggman attended the University of Michigan, and later was graduated from Cornell. He is a high ranking tennis player of St. Louis.

Rothschild-Bettman Wedding to Be Jan. 4

MISS RUTH ROTHSCHILD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney I. Rothschild, 5201 Westminster place, has chosen Jan. 4 as the date of her marriage to Irvin Bettman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Bettman, 6254 Waterman avenue. The ceremony will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in the crystal ball room of Hotel Chase, Dr. Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel officiating. A reception and dinner will follow.

Mrs. Louis Rothschild, formerly Miss Emily Bettman, sister of the bridegroom, will be matron of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be Miss Erna Rice, Miss Maxine Tuholske, Miss Evelyn Landau, Miss Katherine Glaser, and Miss Helen Flarsheim.

Lewis Bettman is to be his brother's best man, and the groomsmen will be Sidney I. Rothschild Jr., Louis Rothschild, James A. Singer, James W. Singer Jr., Harry Franc, Harry Loeb, Lesser Goldman, Edward Greensfelder, Charles S. Levy Jr., Lawrence Levy, Frank Singer, Albert I. Stix Jr., and Frederick Levis, all of St. Louis, and Lawrence Johnson of Cincinnati, cousin of the bridegroom.

Junior League to Hear Lorado Taft, Sculptor

THE Junior League will have Lorado Taft of Chicago, eminent sculptor, as speaker for the fifth of its Monday morning lectures tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Mr. Taft will model a small figure in clay, with a "Clay Talk" given in conjunction.

At the conclusion of the lecture, he will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Guy Williamson Oliver, at her home in McKnight Village, Price road, to which she has invited 12 of her friends to meet the speaker. The guests will include Mrs. Harrison Hoblitzelle, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, Mrs. Edward Gillette Hotchkiss, Mrs. Henry M. Wheaton, Mrs. Theron E. Catlin and Mrs. Asa B. Wallace.

Visitors Expected for Christmas Holidays

MANY out-of-town visitors will arrive for the Christmas holidays. Miss Janet Shields, daughter of Mrs. George H. Shields of the Kingsbury apartments, will have as her guest Miss Jane Buell of New York and Frederick Reynolds of West Orange, N. J., who will be here Dec. 28 to attend the Princeton Triangle Club production at the Odeon that evening.

Miss Virginia Pratt of Kalamazoo, Mich., will arrive Dec. 27 to be the guest for a few days of Miss Margaret Burkham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkham, 5035 Westminster place.

Miss Mary Corinne Gamble of Cincinnati will be here during the next week-end to visit Miss Mary Lees Kennard, debutante daughter of John B. Kennard, and to receive with her hostess at her debut party Saturday night at the Bellerive Country Club.

Reception for Daughters

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES M. RICE of Oak Knoll, Clayton road and Big Bend boulevard, and Mr. and Mrs. Morton J. May, Brentmoor, are inviting their friends informally to a reception the evening of Dec. 23 at the Westwood Country Club. The party will be given to celebrate the engagement of their daughters, Miss Erna Rice to James A. Singer, and that of Miss Sarah Jane May to Millard Waldheim. The guests are invited for 8:30 o'clock, and no formal cards will be sent. Miss Rice will return home Dec. 21 from Bryn Mawr College, and Miss May will return at the same time from Skidmore.

Party for Miss Haskell

MRS. MARION CLIFFORD BLOSSOM, 4526 West Pine boulevard, entertained at a dinner party at her home last evening for Miss Lucy Haskell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Haskell, 4453 West Pine boulevard. Miss Haskell who has spent much of her time in the East since her graduation from Smith College two years ago, is passing the winter in St. Louis with her parents. Twelve guests were present.

Miss Helen Frampton Is Engaged to Wed Van-Lear Black Jr.

Announcement at Party Comes as Surprise—He Is Son of Owner of Baltimore Sun.

IN amusing telegrams marking the places at a luncheon given yesterday at her home, announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Helen Mitchell Frampton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Craig Frampton, 7314 Westmoreland drive, and Van-Lear Black Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Van-Lear Black of Baltimore. The news, which is of much interest, comes as a surprise to society.

Miss Frampton was educated at Miss Evans' School in St. Louis, the Knox School, Cooperstown, N. Y., and National Park Seminary in Washington. She made her debut three seasons ago at a reception given by her mother. She is a member of an early American family. One of her ancestors was Samuel Frampton, first Governor of the William Penn Colony. She is a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants.

Mr. Black prepared for college at St. Paul's School in New Hampshire, and attended Yale. He is a member of the Baltimore, the Gibson Island and the Maryland Clubs of Baltimore. His father is owner and publisher of the Baltimore Sun, and his mother was Miss Jessie Gary, daughter of James A. Gary, Postmaster-General in President McKinley's Cabinet. Mr. Black served for four years with the United States Marine Corps, and was decorated by the Government for bravery under fire during his two-year detail in Nicaragua.

The wedding will take place at 6:30 o'clock the evening of Jan. 20 at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church and will be followed by a reception at the Frampton home. After a wedding trip Mr. Black and his bride will make their home in Lancaster, Pa. Mrs. Frampton and her daughter recently returned from a visit with Mrs. Black.

The luncheon table was decorated with yellow and lavendar daisy chrysanthemums, and illuminated by yellow tapers.

The telegrams read as follows: "Taking voyage on matrimonial sea on S. S. Love. Leaving Westmoreland dock number seven three one four Jan. 20, shipping light cargo of rice. Van-Lear Black Jr., captain; Helen Frampton first mate."

Are Your Feet Calloused?

CALLOUSES often mean weak arches, always indicate ill-fitting shoes. Your foot has been slipping forward, your weight thrown on the wrong bones.

Wilbur Coon Shoes stop this at once. Special measurements, built-in at the factory, hold the foot snug at instep, "waist" and heel. You note an improvement immediately. Your arch feels stronger. Your foot stays where it belongs. Relieved of pressure, callouses stop hurting, soon disappear.

$7.50 to $10.50

With over 200 sizes ...1 to 12, AAAA to EEE...in Wilbur Coon Shoes no foot need be poorly fitted.

TROPHY FOR SAFE FLYING GIVEN TO NAVAL AIR UNIT

Hoover Presents Schiff Emblem to Lieut. T. G. Fisher on White House Lawn.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — The Herbert Schiff Memorial Trophy was presented by President Hoover today to Lieut. Thomas Gerry Fisher, U. S. N., commander of training plane squadron 7 of the Eleventh Naval District. The trophy is awarded to the naval flying unit which has fewest accidents during the year in proportion to hours flown.

Lieut. Fisher and his command of about 50 officers and men were in the air approximately 9000 hours this year without mishap.

The President spoke a word of commendation as he presented the award on the south lawn of the White House. Later he congratulated Lieut. Fisher personally.

The trophy is presented annually by the family of Herbert Schiff, naval officer who was killed in an airplane accident. Until last year the trophy was awarded to the individual flyer with the best safety record.

TO REBROADCAST CHRISTMAS PROGRAMS FROM EUROPE

National Broadcasting Co. Will Send Them Over Entire Network.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14. — Plans are being perfected by the National Broadcasting Co. to pick up programs originating in England, Germany and Holland on Christmas and broadcast them through its entire network. Details of the program are being arranged.

In addition, NBC will make available to the world via short waves on Christmas eve a Christmas carol sing to be picked up from Madison Square Garden, New York. More than 15,000 singers will participate, with about 400 clubs and societies invited. The program also will go to the American network.

PEACE MEETING OF MASONS

Program Wednesday to Support Hoover's Antiwar Policy.

President Hoover's peace policy will be indorsed at a meeting of Masons Wednesday night at Moolah Temple, to which all Shriners and Master Masons have been invited. The speaker will be former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, whose address, starting at 9:30, will be broadcast from station KMOX. A special program has been arranged by Theodore R. Appel, illustrious potentate of Moolah Temple.

The meeting will be part of a nation-wide program of Shriners, initiated at the instance of Imperial Potentate Leo V. Youngworth, to place the Masonic fraternity back of the President in his efforts toward an enduring world place. Similar meetings will be held at different times in Shrine temples throughout the United States.

Hearing on War Mothers' Pilgrimage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Hearings will be opened Tuesday by the House Military Committee on legislation affecting the gold star mothers' pilgrimage to France in 1930 and 1931 to visit the graves of World War veterans. The committee also decided to begin hearings Jan. 7 on proposals for expansion of the army's aviation building program. Further, the committee asked that all proposals affecting Muscle Shoals be submitted by Jan. 15.

H. E. McNeil, Author, Dies.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 14.—Henry Everett McNeil, 67 years old, author of many books and short stories for young people, died here at the home of a sister today. He was on a visit from his New York home. McNeil, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, contributed largely to magazines and was a member of the Authors' League. He also wrote photoplays.

Capital Social Season To Reopen Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.

WASHINGTON is on the eve of a great social rush with the expiration next week of the 30 days of official mourning for the death of Secretary of War Good.

The President and Mrs. Hoover will open their program with a dinner party at the White House Wednesday for the Japanese delegation to the London naval conference, which arrives in Washington Monday morning and remains until Thursday afternoon.

The Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi will entertain on various occasions for the delegates. But the busiest woman in Washington during the visit will be Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, who, with her husband, the Secretary of the Navy, is included in all of the larger entertainments. Wednesday Mrs. Adams will observe her day at home for the first time since her husband assumed his office. She is expected likewise to attend during the same hours on the same afternoon a reception which the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi will give at the Mayflower Hotel, and, of course, she and the Secretary will go to the White House dinner.

All of the Cabinet women will observe Wednesday at home, and especial interest will be shown for the reception of Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, whose husband succeeded Mr. Good as Secretary of War. Mrs. Hurley and the Secretary will receive at the postponed dance to be given by the army officers stationed in and near Washington, one of a brilliant series of dances given each session.

There will be quick trips from one Cabinet home to another Wednesday when an effort will be made to visit every home within the space of three hours. There will be hot tea and ices and everybody will meet every one else. Mrs. Stimson will be assisted by the wives of State Department officials, Mrs. Hurley by women of the army, and Mrs. Adams will have with her the wives of naval officers.

Senators' wives in small numbers also will observe their Thursdays at home next week, most of them, however, preferring to wait until after the new year to start this hospitality. Many of them are going home for Christmas. Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan will be in Grand Rapids until Jan. 6. Miss Barbara Vandenberg has already gone West to prepare the home for a house party and the Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg will follow next week.

Mrs. Hoover is interested in carrying out the good work left to her by Mrs. Coolidge, who in turn inherited the opportunity from former mistresses of the White House. The National Plant, Flower and Fruit Guild of Washington has just celebrated its thirty-sixth anniversary, and Mrs. John Wood Stewart, who started it, read in her annual report:

"On Monday mornings the Flower Guild receives contributions. Usually the first box to arrive is that from the White House, filled with beautiful flowers and with the card of Mrs. Hoover inclosed. Lucky, indeed, is the hospital, Home for the Aged, Children's Hospital or institutions for shut-ins, which later receives it, the compliment being quite generously distributed. This Monday morning contribution from Mrs. Hoover never fails. Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, taking her example from the first lady, also sends flowers, and at the end of the recent Department Chrysanthemum Show she had the blooms distributed all over the city."

Col. U. S. Grant III is also a friend of the Guild, and instead of cut flowers, he sends growing plants for window boxes to gladden the hearts of invalids.

New York Oldsters Dancing Till Dawn

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.

WITH the fight over the 3 a. m. edict still going full tilt, society's elders decked the social battleground these last few days in trappings gayer than ever.

The early-to-bed edict applies to their daughters and not themselves, they apparently think. It appears that the children have been sent to bed to give their elders a chance.

While Junior League members discussed pro and con the new edict that sends them home before 3; while debutantes and their escorts left parties at the crest of the gaiety, their fathers and mothers increased the festivities and lingered to make merry far into the morning hours. Some of them didn't even begin proceedings until midnight.

At a recent party given by Otto Kahn, a guest who arrived shortly before 11 found himself the first on the scene. It was not until after 12 that other guests, making their way from dinner and theater parties, began strolling in. At 1:30 the buffet supper was served and after that dancing began, the guests lingering until daybreak.

One of the gayest amusements of the week was the costume party which Miss Elsa Maxwell gave in the Crystal room at the Ritz-Carlton Sunday night. The guests were requested not to appear as the knights and court ladies that generally throng the smart folk's costume parties, but to impersonate one another. About one-tenth of them arrived impersonating their hostess.

Among the guests who danced in the Crystal room as "somebody else," were Count and Countess St. Phalle, Prince and Princess Sauchigny de Lucinge, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Belmont Tiffany and Prince and Princess Hohenlohe-Schillgsfurst.

Others of the smart folks were drawn to the Forrest Theater Sunday evening for the benefit given in aid of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Heywood Broun, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced a long list of Broadway favorites—"Blues" singers, specialty dancers and piano players—who contributed their bit to the program for charity. A Negro jazz orchestra was one of the highlights of the evening.

Among the patrons for the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Lowil Addams, Miss Ruth Hale (Mrs. Heywood Broun), Mr. and Mrs. Paul Robeson and Carl Van Vechten.

There they were entertained by Toscha Seidel, violinist, Madame Florence Anstral, Australian soprano, and John Amadio, flutist, accompanied by Jerbert Jaffe and Nils Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Clews and Mr. and Mrs. Gouverneur Morris were among the guests.

The Dickens lovers in society's ranks found amusement at the Hotel Astor, Wednesday afternoon, when Elsie Kissam Easton presented a recital of comedy scenes from the English author's books.

Dressed in a Victorian gown of white satin that had lain in her grandmother's attic for years, and wearing the coiffure and curls of Dickens' day, Miss Easton brought to life scenes from "David Copperfield," "Pickwick Paper," "Our Mutual Friend," and "Mr. Tappertit Goes Out for the Evening." An audience that recalled the days of the "gay nineties" filled the north garden of the hotel and applauded her program.

The tea given by the Women's Roosevelt Memorial Association in honor of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt brought more than 400 of society's members to Roosevelt House Wednesday afternoon.

At the head of the receiving line stood Mrs. Roosevelt, who was a girl playmate of the boy born 71 years ago in that house, whom later she was to marry and see President of the United States. Receiving with her were Mrs. Richard Derby (Ethel Roosevelt), Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Mrs. William Curtis Demorest and Mrs. Henry A. Alexander.

The guests lingered sipping tea and chatting over the days of long ago, until dusk, when they hastened home to dress for the evening's dinners and supper parties.

The Beaux Arts ball—the function that has long been the most brilliant of all society's costume balls—is already being planned by a host of fashionable, artists, architects and modistes, although the party will not take place for another month.

Tony Sarg, Neysa McMein, John Held Jr. and Ben Ali Haggin are among those at work on plans for the function where the gaities will last until breakfast time and the costumes will be valued at thousands of dollars.

This year the theme of the ball will be "renaissance," with more than 300 smart folk and artists taking part in the midnight pageant. Already the pageant's members and those who will be merely onlookers are consulting encyclopedias and pouring over picture plates in the designing of the costumes.

The debutantes were not completely eclipsed in the week's gayeties. Luncheons, teas and dinners were many, and tonight, escorted by their favorite cavaliers, they will flock to the Ritz-Carlton for the debut of Edith Drexel. The coming-out party of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel Jr. is expected to be one of the most brilliant of the season by those who recall that her mother, Marjorie Gould, was presented to society some years ago at a ball said to have cost a quarter of a million dollars.

Activities of Women's Clubs

THE DRAMATIC STUDY SECTION of the Wednesday Club, of which Mrs. Ray A. Burns is chairman, will meet at 3 p. m. Wednesday.

Mrs. David N. Burruss Jr., leader, will present Mrs. Samuel Scott, who will discuss "Recent Drama in the British Isles." The latter spent the summer of 1929 abroad collecting material for her readings and lectures.

The Dramatic Art Section of Scottish Rite Women's Club will meet at 1 p. m. Tuesday in the lounge of Scottish Rite Cathedral. Mrs. Edward G. Peters is chairman of the group. Mrs. William Jack, leader, will present a reading of the play, "Christmas Topsey Turkey," by Katharine Chatman. The following will take part in the reading: Mrs. H. W. Wiese, Mrs. O. L. Herlinger, Mrs. Charles Lee Barr, Mrs. C. L. Munson, Miss Helen Guhl, Mrs. M. C. Owings and Mrs. William Jack. Following the literary meeting, both sections will unite in holding the annual Christmas party

The Literary Section will hold its monthly meeting at 2:30 p. m., with Dr. Helen F. Gibson, chairman, presiding. Miss Elsa Breckenridge, leader, will present the topic, "Missouri in War," under the general subject, "Missouri." Mrs. F. H. Littlefield will read a paper on the "War of 1812." Mrs. R. C. Fagley will discuss the Black Hawk and its bearing on the history of Missouri. The Mexican war will be considered by Mrs. E. L. Coffin. Mrs. Arthur J. Burr, president of the club, will contribute a paper on "The Civil War in Regard to History of the State." A portrayal of Missouri's history in regard to the World War will be the subject of a paper by Mrs. H. A. Diamant.

The musical part of the program will be contributed by Elizabeth Wright.

The monthly meeting of the Executive Board will be held at 10 a. m Wednesday, with the president, Mrs. A. J. Burr, presiding.

The Music Section will meet Friday at 10 a. m., under the directorship of O. Wade Fallert, for a special rehearsal. There will be no meeting on Friday of the group of which Mrs. Charles A. Gund is chairman.

The St. Louis College Club will hold its monthly board meeting at 1 p. m. Tuesday. At 3:30 p. m. the members will meet informally and sew, if they choose, on unfinished Christmas gifts. Meanwhile, Miss Bertha McGuire, a member of the club who has given readings at Chautauqua, N. Y., will entertain with Christmas stories. Mrs. Thomas Harney will serve tea and will be assisted by Mrs. Philip Shaffer, Miss Jane Allen, Miss Elizabeth M. Lyman and Mrs. Julia B. Mahan.

The French study group, of which Miss E. Louise Stone is chairman, will meet for further discussion of Eugene Brieux and his play, "Blanchette" at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The fiction and drama study group, of which Mrs. Jacob E. Wallach is chairman, will discuss "Death of a Hero," by Aldington and "Atmosphere of Love," by Maurois, at 3:30 p. m. Friday.

St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society will sponsor a Christmas public program of Shakspearean readings by pupils of the Morse School of Expression at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Vandervoort's Music Hall. Mrs. L. E. Ostrander, Miss Gladys Sanders and Mrs. Charles E. Luntz of the Audience Committee, will welcome those interested in Shakspeare. Shakspearean songs will be given under the direction of Mrs. Clara E. Thoms, music chairman. The annual Twelfth Night program will be canceled because of the death of the president, Adeline Palmier Wagoner. An informal tea complimenting new members will be given in January.

After program tomorrow the Society will adjourn until Monday, Jan. 6, when the Rev. Jay T. Stocking will give a public lecture on the tragedy of "Macbeth."

The Uandi Literary Club's executive board will entertain the members at the annual Christmas party Thursday, at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Grote, 27 Windemere place. Luncheon will be followed by a Christmas story presented by the executive board, and written by Mrs. John L. Bracken. Gifts for crippled children are to be placed around the Christmas tree.

Mrs. C. S. Hammond was hostess to the Matthew Fontaine Maury Chapter Thursday at her home, 6379 Pershing avenue.

Mrs. J. P. Higgins, who represented the chapter at the general convention recently held at Biloxi, Miss., gave her report.

A check from the chapter will be sent for Christmas to the Confederate Home at Higginsville, Mo., it was decided. Mrs. Lorraine F. Jones, a relative of Matthew Fontaine Maury, spoke of the unveiling of the Maury monument in Richmond, Va.

During the social hour Mrs. O. S. Wilfley and Mrs. C. S. McKinney presided at the tea table.

The Tuesday Literary Club of Clayton met at the home of Mrs. R. E. L. Ciers, 727 Leland avenue, University City, Tuesday. Mrs. Caroline Rekart was the assisting hostess. Luncheon was followed by a business meeting.

In continuance of the year's study of "Interpretations of American Life," the program dealt with the spiritual history of the South, and was presented by Mrs. Carl Burris, who discussed Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body." Mrs. Francis Schmitt gave two piano numbers.

met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Harry Lange, 9 Highland avenue, Kirkwood.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 14, at the home of Mrs. A. B. Boyer, 520 South Clay avenue, Kirkwood. Mrs. A. M. Russell will have charge of a program on "International Relations."

The annual Christmas party of the Friday Club was held on Dec. 6, at the home of Mrs. Wilson A. Taylor, 6214 Forsythe boulevard, with Mrs. M. C. Younglove as assistant hostess.

The program included a Christmas story, "Why the Chimes Rang," told by Mrs. Charles F. Haanel, and vocal solos. Mrs. Albert Lipp, with Mrs. Julius S. Feydt at the piano, gave a group of songs.

Friday, 30 members of the club attended a surprise luncheon given at the Kings-Way Hotel in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Sherzer, a member who had just celebrated her eighty-first birthday. Mrs. W. H. Wright, president of the club, was toastmistress. Mrs. Sherzer, has been a member of the Friday Club for 20 years.

Chapter T H, P. E. O., Ferguson, met with Mrs. John Schweitzer Wednesday. Miss Rosalie O'Donnel told of her experiences with the Red Cross in London during the war.

Dr. Isaac Lippincott spoke on "Economic Conditions of Shakspeare's Time" at a meeting of the St. Louis Shakspeare Drama Study Club Thursday at the home of Mrs. David D. Lynch, 7258 Forsythe boulevard. Mrs. Frederick B. Hall was made an honorary member.

Mrs. H. R. Culling was hostess to Sorority Circle Thursday at her home, 628 Boland drive, Clayton. "Constructive Thinking About Christmas Giving," was the subject of an address given by Mrs. E. J. Hoffman, an executive of the Board of Religious Organizations. Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell presented two stories: "Quilt of Happiness," by Kate Douglas Wiggins, and "Mandy's Christmas Present." Mrs. Edward Riman, East St. Louis, whistled "Cathedral Chimes," and "The Skaters' Waltz." The Mesdames T. F. Mangson, W. B. McSorley, J. A. Addison, Michael Andrews and Alice G. Swaine were assisting hostesses. The executive board will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. Scott Roberts, 7449 Washington boulevard.

Pioneer Chapter, United States Daughters 1812, will round out the year's work at a meeting Thursday at the residence of Mrs. Howard Bailey, 4944 Lindell boulevard. Mrs. Richard E. Heinrichs is regent of the chapter.

Meetings have been held recently at the residences of the following officers and members: Mrs. Richard J. Shelton, 4352 Westminster place; Mrs. Dudley Southward, 5906 McPherson avenue; Mrs. Robert Johnson, Clayton and McKnight roads; Miss Mary Trail, 5711 Bartmer avenue; Mrs. Louis Kupferle, 409 Edgewood drive, and Mrs. Frank Hamson of the Lindell Tower Apartment. Mrs. Frederick T. Hatch recently entertained the Daughters and friends at a bridge party at her residence, 5 Lenox Place.

The Federation of Evangelical Women's Organizations of St. Louis will meet at 1:30 p. m., Thursday at the Caroline Mission, 1821 Hickory street.

The South Side Republican Women's Club gave a party for its new members and their families Friday night at its new quarters at the German House. The president, Mrs. William Baron, gave an address of welcome. Mrs. Theodore F. Koers was chairman of the program. Two hundred and fifty guests were present.

The December meeting of the St. Louis Alumnae Chapter, Sigma Kappa, was held Dec. 6 at the home of Mrs. Roland Bauer, 6903 Waterman avenue, with Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, 5370 Pershing avenue, as assisting hostess.

The Soldan High School Patrons' Association will meet at 8 p. m., Friday in the high school auditorium. A Christmas program will be concluded with a play "Mistletoe and Holly Berry."

The Gertrude Charity Society met Wednesday at the Y. W. H. A. Mrs. Sol Serkes, the chairman, presided.

Webster Groves Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. G. W. Stephens, 121 East Swon avenue, Webster Groves, with Mrs. D. C. Nicholson, Mrs. W. D. Bassett, Mrs. Charles Carr and Mrs. A. P. Phillips assisting.

The chapter has donated a linen tablecloth and three dozen napkins to Arrow Rock Tavern. Mrs. G. W. Johns gave a group of Christmas songs, accompanied on the piano by Miss Helen Stephens. A Christmas story was told by Mrs. D. S. Leland.

The next meeing will be held Jan. 7 at the home of Mrs. William A. Stine, 44 South Gore avenue, Webster Groves. Miss Katherine Moody will have charge of the program on "Historic Webster."

The children of Lowell School will entertain with Christmas carols for the Mothers' Circle and the Patrons' Association at 8 p. m. Friday at the school.

At 1:30 p. m. the same day the pupils of the kindergarten will present a Christmas entertainment for their parents and friends.

The December meeting of Central W. C. T. U. was held Monday afternoon at 5010 Cabanne avenue. Mrs. J. S. Murphy gave a talk on the activities of the W. C. T. U. in Australia. The January program of Central Union will include Golden Jubilee features, the program to be in charge of Mrs. L. H. Bowerman, chairman of the social department.

A joint meeting of the Roe Mothers Circle and P. T. A. will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the school auditorium.

Rodowe E. Abekin, supervisor of recreation for the Board of Education, will talk on "Winter Recreation." Miss Corrine Hachtmann, director in charge of dancing at school playgrounds, will present several groups of pupils in dances. Pupils of several rooms of the Roe School will sing Christmas carols and present plays, the kindergarten and first grade children also taking part.

The meeting of the board of the eighth district of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, will be held at the Town Club at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. Mrs. F. H. Littlefield, president, will preside.

A joint recital will be given by the Federated Women's Clubs and Federated Music Clubs of the eighth district at Christ Church Cathedral, during the noon hour tomorrow; it will be free to the public. The program will consist of organ numbers by the cathedral organist, Daniel R. Phillipi, and numbers by four glee and choral clubs. Miss Ruth Kelso Renfrow, State chairman of literature of the Women's Clubs, will give a reading of the story "Why the Chimes Rang," by Raymond MacDonald Alden, accompanied at the organ by the composer, Mrs. Lillian Craig Coffman, who is chairman of the Music Committee of the Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Matilda H. Krail will describe the development of French literature from the classical to the realistic and symbolical at the next meeting of the Alpha Delphian chapter of St. Louis, at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Cabanne Branch Library. A summary of the last lesson "French Literature of the Nineteenth Century," will be given by the president, Mrs. E. W. Broemmelseik, as a background for the day's lesson, "Modern French Literature." Other topics will be as follows: Mrs. I. T. Alderson will give a short sketch of the "Life of George Sand;" Mrs. Frank J. Keiser will give a resume of some of her letters on "Two Revolutions" and her letters on "The Situation of 1852" will be covered by Mrs. George J. Heerich. Mrs. G. B. Lindsay will tell about her "Personal Letters," and Mrs. B. A. Thompson will read some of her poetry. Citations from "The Opposite Wall," and "The Passing of the Queen," by Loti, will be given by Mrs. H. T. Miller.

Delphi Delohians, Mrs. T. B. Brown, president, will meet at Carpenter Library tomorrow, when the stories "The Cid" and "Aucassin and Nicolette" will be discussed under the leadership of Mrs. M. K. Gillespie.

This will be the last meeting of the chapter until after the holidays.

The St. Louis Parliamentary Law Club will hold its last meeting for the year tomorrow morning, at 10 o'clock in the Vandervoort Auditorium.

The members of the Ever-Ready Club were hostess to a large gathering of friends, at their annual Christmas party, given in Nugent's Auditorium last Monday afternoon.

The programs were numbered and during the serving of refreshments, gifts, which had been arranged beneath a Christmas tree, were distributed to those holding the corresponding numbers. Bridge concluded the entertainment.

The St. Louis Dante Club met at Hotel Chase Dec. 4. The next meeting of the club will be Jan. 8, at Hotel Chase.

EXHIBIT OF AMERICAN ANTIQUES AT MUSEUM

Collection Recently Purchased for $19,275 for Permanent Display Is Shown.

An important collection of American antiques, the first of the sort to be acquired by the St. Louis Art Museum, has been placed on exhibition in the rear basement corridor. The exhibit, which includes 14 pieces of furniture, was purchased for $19,275 recently at an auction in New York.

The furniture was acquired with a view to construction of a suite of three complete early American rooms planned for the museum in addition to the English and French period rooms which will be opened there about the first of the year. Although the American rooms probably will not be undertaken for another year, Meyric R. Rogers, director of the museum, said that relatively low prices made it advisable to begin assembling the furniture. That recently purchased was obtained at a sale held shortly after the break in the stock market and prices were about one-third less than normal because many private buyers were out of the market, he added.

The most valuable article in the collection is a Chippendale carved mahogany block front chest-on-chest, for which $6300 was paid. The chest is in an excellent state of preservation although it was made in New England about 1760. Scratched with a stylus on the bottom of a drawer is the inscription, in flowing eighteenth century script: "Falmouth, May 6, 1767. Richard Sparling." Falmouth is an old Massachusetts town. There is nothing to indicate whether Richard Sparling was the name of the maker for that of one of the first owners.

Used by 6 Generations.

"The chest-on-chest," Rogers explained yesterday, "wa sone of the prized possessions of the New England home. It was used both in the bedroom and in the living room, and no well-to-do family could afford to be without a pretentious one. This piece has been refinished, and that, from a collector's standpoint, is a disadvantage, but its marvelous condition more than makes up for that. The chest has been in the possession of the Judson family in Salem, Mass., for the past six generations, and for much of that time has been in daily use."

The collection includes a carved mahogany slant front writing desk, also with richly blocked drawer fronts, carved from a single piece of wood which in its original state probably was three to four times the final thickness. The scrolled Chippendale brasses are the originals, as is the case with all articles in the collection. Unusual features are the heavy carrying brasses at each side. The desk, made in New England about 1770, was bought for $3600.

Another desk of somewhat the same sort and about 10 years earlier, but with serpentine block front, which collectors have not found so attractive, was acquired for $900. Rogers, persuaded that each piece in the collection was obtained for less than its actual value, holds this one to be a real bargain. A block front knee-hole writing desk of about the same date, cost $2400.

Early Tea Set.

Of a somewhat later period is a Sheraton mahogany secretary with a tambour front, for which $2050 was paid. Displayed on the shelves of its upper portion are 13 pieces of an incomplete tea set of Lowestoft porcelain, decorated with the arms of the Order of the Cincinnati. Such ware was frequently brought to New England ports about the beginning of the Nineteenth Century by sea captains returning from China.

Most of it was made in England and sent to China to be decorated by secret processes. The set cost $300. A large bowl of the same material, decorated with five sunburst medallions in blue and gold, was secured for $150.

A Queen Anne inlaid walnut highboy, for which $1300 was paid, is held by Rogers to be one of the finest specimens of early American cabinet work, which derived its beauty from extreme simplicity and graceful lines. The highboy is veneered with branch walnut, cut diagonally from limbs sawed near the trunk, so that the grain results in a figure resembling a spreading tree. A lowboy of walnut in somewhat similar design, but thought to have been made about 20 years later, was bought for $575.

Duncan Phyfe Table.

An inlaid mahogany Pembroke table which cost $220 is thought to be the work of Duncan Phyfe, or at least of someone closely associated with him. It is of drop-leaf style, and when opened the top is clover shaped. A Queen Anne walnut drop-leaf table was bought for $530. Its circular top has two hinged leaves and two of the cabriole legs pivot to support the top when opened.

Two wall mirrors, one in Chippendale style of carved mahogany, which bears the label of John Elliott Jr. of Philadelphia, the other a Queen Anne black and gold laquered piece, are included in the collection. Lesser items are a maple and ash banister back chair, two pine and maple tavern tables, a hooked rug, a pewter ale pitcher, and a teapot and cream jug of Whieldon agate ware.

The American period rooms planned for the museum will be originals with one exception, taken entirely from old homes, as are the period rooms now being prepared. One will be furnished in the fashion of a Southern mansion of the days before the Civil War. The wood paneling for this room is already owned by the museum, having been purchased a year ago in Charleston, S. C.

Another room will be typical of the middle Atlantic colonies at about the time of the Revolution. In the third, to be done in the style of New England of the early seventeenth century, when colonists were just beginning to make themselves comfortable in a new country, reproductions will be used. Furniture of this period is all but impossible to obtain.

Mills presiding as Aphrodite Queen of Love. The business meeting will be followed by a special short form ceremonial. As this is the night of the annual Christmas party for the children of the members, the children will be entertained by some of the members under the leadership of Miss Eunice Kirn, until the end of the meeting, after which they will be marched into the hall, where Santa Claus, a Christmas tree and presents will be awaiting them.

The Sewing Circle of the Auxiliary will hold its annual Christmas bazar at this time.

The Monroe Parent-Teachers' Association will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday and at 3:30 p. m. the annual Christmas party will be held in the kindergarten rooms. Mrs. E. M. Hohmes of the Monroe School faculty has charge of the program. Mrs. James Cook, Webster Groves, the newly-elected state president, Mrs. L. R. Hubele, president of St. Louis Council, and Mrs. A. M. Wilson will be guests of honor.

Douglas Oliver Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met at the Brownsom Hotel last week with Mrs. F. A. Bobel and Mrs. Robert Ecoff as hostesses. Mrs. John Fares told Christmas stories after which the chapter held a Christmas party.

National Singing Contest Finals Over KSD Tonight

Five Boys and as Many Girls, Winners of District Competitions, to Sing in Atwater Kent Hour— Other NBC Red Chain Features.

THE finals in the national radio audition held by the Atwater Kent Foundation will be broadcast over an NBC chain, including KSD, in the Atwater Kent hour at 8:15 tonight. Ten young singers will compete—two sopranos, three coloratura sopranos, four tenors and a baritone, the latter Calvin Hendricks of Los Angeles, who has been blind since birth.

The ten represent the five districts into which the country was divided for the audition. Two come from each district—a boy and a girl.

Contestants will be:

Eastern district—Agnes L. Skilling, coloratura soprano of Springvale, Me., and Charles E. Carlile, tenor of Central Falls, R. I.

Central—Genevieve Rowe, coloratura soprano of Wooster, O., and Carlyle W. Bennett, tenor of Chicago.

Southern — Frances Tortorich, soprano of New Orleans, and Edward Kane, tenor of Atlanta, Ga.

Southwestern—Josephine Louise Antoine, soprano of Boulder, Colo., and John Jameson, tenor of Denver, Colo.

Pacific—Floy Hamlin, coloratura soprano, and Calvin Hendricks, baritone, both of Los Angeles.

All the finalists tonight are to receive music scholarships in addition to money awards. The boy and girl winning first place will each receive $5000, a gold decoration and two years' music scholarship. Other awards will be: Second, $3000 each and a year's scholarship; third, $2000 each and a year's scholarship; fourth, $1500 each and a year's scholarship, and fifth, $1000 each and one year's scholarship. A jury of noted musicians will act as judges.

The finalists are the guests of the Atwater Kent Foundation in the East. In Washington, they were received by President Hoover and photographed with him. They were guests at a luncheon in the private dining room of the Capitol, at which Vice President Curtis presided, and were also entertained at the National Press Club.

The radio premiere of Walton's "Portsmouth Point" will be a feature of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra's concert from 2 to 3 o'clock.

"Portsmouth Point" is the most recent work of William Turner Walton, a young English composer whose modernistic tendencies in symphonic composition have stirred up a storm of controversy among music critics. Although the symphony was first played in a concert of the International Society for New Music in Tonhalle, Zurich, Switzerland, in 1926, it was not published until 1928.

Portsmouth Point is in reality a section of the city of Portsmouth, England, which has been bound up with the traditions of the British navy for centuries, for it has long been a favorite resort for seamen on shore. It was a place throbbing with life and excitement, with taverns lining the waterfront, and drinking, fighting, carousing of the rough sons of the sea and ribald songs and dances, all of which are depicted in the overture. The work is definitely influenced by traditional British nautical airs, and by the "sardanas" of the Catalonian fishermen and the more breezy works of eighteenth century British composers.

Preceding "Portsmouth Point" on the program will be two other works of outstanding interest, both of which have stood the test of time. They are Sir Hamilton Hardy's arrangement of George Frederick Handel's "Water Music" and the "Andante Cantabile" from Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

An interesting legend has grown up around the composition of the Water Music, which, unfortunately, has been proven false. For years the composition of the music was ascribed to the desire of Handel to regain the good graces of George I of England, in whose Hanoverian court Handel was "kappelmeister." He fell into disfavor with the King, because of a prolonged absence from his duties in Hanover during a trip to England, and composed the music in an effort to propitiate the King. It was, according to the story, played for the first time on a barge which followed that of George I as the monarch was engaged in a state progress down the Thames River for his coronation as King of England in London. The King, one of whose few good qualities was a passionate love for music, heard the music, which drifted to his ears over the water and asked that its composer be precented to him. Handel knelt at the feet of the King, and was received back into good graces. The story is so romantic that it is a pity it is not true. It is now practically certain that the music was not written in 1715, the date of the King's coronation, but two years later.

The program will conclude with Winter Motor Tour to Biloxi, Miss.

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

BEAUVOIR, the post-bellum home of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, is situated just outside Biloxi, on the highway from St. Louis.

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY,
Automobile Editor.

TRADITIONS of the "Old South," kept alive by memories of picturesque explorers, mighty warriors and statesmen and stirring conflicts, are a vital part of Biloxi, Miss., quaint old city of the Gulf Coast and destination of many winter motorists from St. Louis.

Midway between New Orleans and Mobile, upon a land-locked bay, this city will always be of interest to students of American history. It was here that the civilization of the white man was begun in the Mississippi Valley, nearly three-quarters of a century before the arrival of Pierre Laclede at the present site of St. Louis.

Nor have the passing years lessened the glamor attaching to it.

To reach Biloxi the route lies through Memphis, Tenn., and Jackson, Miss. One may either travel all the way to Memphis over U. S. No. 61, 25 miles of which, between Farmington and Fredericktown, are broken by a none-too-good detour, or over the following route: Illinois No. 13 to Marissa, Route 152 to Pinckneyville, No. 154 to the junction with No. 2, south to Cairo, Ill., across the new bridge over the Mississippi, west over U. S. 60 to Sikeston and south to Memphis via U. S. 61.

The route through Illinois, although somewhat longer, offers the inducement of more pavement and no detours.

From Memphis, U. S. 51 leads due south to Jackson, Miss. This road is well surfaced. From Jackson on, one drives over U. S. 49 to Gulfport, Miss., a picturesque town, and east to Biloxi, on U. S. 90. The mileage from St. Louis is about 770.

It was on Feb. 6, 1699, an early spring day in that sunny country, when French sailing vessels under the command of Sieur d'Iberville, arrived at an outlying island, some 13 miles distant from the mainland. Because it was used as an anchorage for his ships, the intrepid explorer called the island "Isle Aux Vesseaux." Today the old name, which means "Ship Island" in English, still clings to this island in the sapphire sea where lurks a wealth of romance and legendary history. This place is now a popular rendezvous for most of the tourists who enjoy the hospitality of Biloxi each winter.

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

LEGEND has it that this historic old lighthouse was draped in mourning after the death of President Lincoln. It is said to be the oldest lighthouse in America, being operated by members of one family for many generations.

Just before reaching Biloxi one passes the famous old house known as "Beauvoir," the post-bellum home of Jefferson Davis, President of the short-lived Confederacy. He retired to private life there in his beloved Mississippi after his release from confinement at Fort Monroe, and engaged in writing his "Memoirs," a valuable contribution to history.

Now the property of the State of Mississippi, the home is used as a residence for Confederate veterans. More than 150 old soldiers and their wives are kept comfortably in the institution.

For 12 years d'Iberville maintained his capital city at Biloxi, later moving it to the vicinity of Mobile, Ala., when that city was founded and finally, in 1718, locating it permanently on the Mississippi River at New Orleans.

Although Biloxi was thus early deprived of the honor of being the capital of Louisiana, the settlement did not go out of existence. For many years its life was placid and somnolent, until Northerners started going there to escape the chilling winds of winter.

Hotels were built and tourists were invited to enjoy the balmy air and almost eternal sunshine. Aside from the asset of perpetual spring, the surf bathing and other sports, one finds the people of Biloxi most delightful. They are a quaint people, affable and warm-hearted. A mixture of French, Spanish and Southern blood, they do much to perpetuate the manners of their forefathers.

Although guests go there in increasing numbers, Biloxi is said never to be guilty of extortion.

One of the best golf courses in that section, recently completed, is lined with magnificent oaks and pines.

A quaint old lighthouse stands on the beach at the entrance of the city. Its snow-white walls, towering high above the tranquilly lapping waves, is in beautiful contrast to the blue of the ocean. For more than 75 years this landmark has stood, flashing welcome warnings to mariners.

It is white now, but legend has it that when President Lincoln was assassinated, the tower was painted in somber black and so remained for some time, in respect to the memory of the war-time President.

Biloxi is quaint, delightful. Though unlike any other city in all the world, it savors strongly of France. The streets are narrow and wind beneath festoons of moss on the great oak trees which shade them from the sun.

The houses sit close against the streets—old houses of concrete and stucco, some of them with old Spanish patios, strongly reminiscent of the sway of Spain, when this area was known as Spanish West Florida.

Eastward from the city a long wooden bridge crosses the Back Bay of Biloxi. A white wooden cross stands in bold relief near the edge of the water. It marks the spot where the French landed in 1699. There d'Iberville raised the banner of France, a priest sang mass, the first service of the Christian church on record in the Mississippi Valley, and the settlement was christened Biloxi. Biloxi was the name of a branch of the Sioux Indians, whose migration to the Gulf Coast occurred long before the arrival of the French.

Bill Would Provide for Licensing of All Busses

Operators, Steam and Electric Railroads Said to Be Back of Movement — Measure Designed to Protect Public—Bureau of Standards Studies Wear on Tires — Balloon Tires Are Abused.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14. — Licensing of busses by the Federal Government is provided for in a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Couzens of Michigan and in the lower branch by Representative Parker of New York, who is chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Both the bus operators and the railroads, steam and electric, are backing the legislative proposal.

That there is need for such legislation is asserted by Representative Hoch of Kansas, member of the Interstate Commerce Committee. He views the situation as calling for regulations that will afford ample protection for the bus-riding public, and he hopes to see a law passed that will insure the use of safe vehicles driven by qualified drivers.

Uniformity of regulation is what should commend Federal action, Hoch points out. Regulations drafted by the 48 states are more or less successful, but Hoch believes the matter is one for Federal jurisdiction in so far as interstate bus operation goes.

Care given automobile tires very definitely limits their length of usefulness, experts at the United States Bureau of Standards have found in their studies of the factors in tire wear. Casings are subjected to the most rigorous tests which, within a few days, give them harder usage than they would receive during weeks of normal driving.

Bureau experts point out that there are several important factors involved in tire failure insofar as owners are concerned. One, of coures, involves carelessless. Neither the maker nor anyone else can do very much in this case beyond building tires that will stand a great deal of punishment. But the bureau's staff is concerned over the misconceptions which exist regarding tires. Particularly is this true of the balloon tire.

Some owners, they point out, inflate these tires too much, while others believe that they should live up to their low pressure design by running somewhat flat. Both are wrong, the bureau's studies show, but their conclusion is that under-pressure will do far more damage than over-pressure. This was found to be true despite the fact that the balloon tire is essentially a low pressure one.

The danger, the tests have shown, exists particularly in regard to what is known as the carcass. This consists of the layers of fabric which supply the rigidity of the tire. Under-pressure is the cause of harmful flexing of this portion of the tire and this flexing is doubly damaging to a balloon tire which normally is designed for a certain degree of flexing.

Another conclusion from the tests was that water will harm the interior of a casing, though the damage that comes to the rubber exterior, excluding considerations

New 16-Cylinder Cadillac Will Be Shown at New York Show for First Time—Will Be "Last Word" in Custom-Built Exclusiveness.

ANNOUNCEMENT that the new Cadillac 16-cylinder car will be shown for the first time at the national automobile shows beginning with the New York show, was made last week during the course of the General Motors family party radio broadcast.

The new car, it was said, will be called the "Cadillac V-16." It has been in the process of development by Cadillac engineers and designers for more than three years. Literally custom-built for the owner, it has been designed to achieve the very ultimate in luxury, comfort and security, it was said. The coloring, fittings, upholstery and all other addenda which make for exclusiveness will express the personal tastes and wishes of the individual owner. The power plant also has been designed to fit the needs of each owner's personal requirements.

European Growth.

The character and stability of some of the European distributers of American built cars impressed H. W. Peters strongly in a recent visit to France, England, Spain, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium. Peters is vice president of distribution of the Packard Motor Car Co. He found that a large number of Packard distributers have completed or are erecting new big buildings for the sales and servicing of Packard cars.

W-K Heat Control.

Winter driving handicaps, which cause many persons to leave their automobiles in the garage when the temperature drops near the zero mark, have been reduced to the minimum by the manual heat control system featured on both the Willys-Knight great six and the lower-priced Willys-Knight "70-B" models.

The Willys-Overland method of manifolding permits the deflection of exhaust gas around the head of the tube leading to the intake manifold, providing high gasoline temperatures for the warming-up period, as well as for ordinary driving in cold weather.

This is of particular value in starting on cold mornings, eliminating a great deal of the time ordinarily used in warming up the engine and making excessive use of the choke, with resultant oil dilution and waste of gasoline, unnecessary.

Vision Important.

Increasing use of automobiles in winter when treacherous road conditions require the utmost caution on the part of the driver, has made consideration of the driver's vision a matter of major importance. Especially is this true in city driving, where the usual congested traffic conditions are made even more difficult by snow and ice on the pavements.

Willys-Overland has met this problem in the construction of Whippet models, which show by the design of the front body posts the extent to which the body engineers have gone to afford clear view on all sides of the driver.

Notes Travel Increase.

With every highway improvement there is a noticeable increase in travel by automobile over that highway, according to H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Co. of Syracuse, N. Y., whose recent investigation of traffic conditions took him over 20,000 miles of all kinds of roads in 14 different states.

Franklin, who uses an automobile in all of his business trips, states that he travels on schedule, requires no transfers, and experiences no waiting nor delays due to uncertainty of weather.

Franklin Sales Good.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Retail sales of Franklin automobiles in October and November exceeded the volume in the same months last year by 20 per cent, H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Co., announced. Retail sales for each month taken separately also exceed the same corresponding months of 1928.

Cross-Flow Radiator.

Because of the construction features of the cross-flow radiator—exclusive in Oakland-Pontiac sixes, one filling of alcohol or anti-freeze solution is usually sufficient to carry these cars through an entire winter of driving, it is pointed out by R. A. Armstrong, service manager of the Oakland Motor Car Co.

"The cross-flow radiator," he says, "differs from the ordinary type of automobile radiator in that the water flows horizontally through the core instead of vertically."

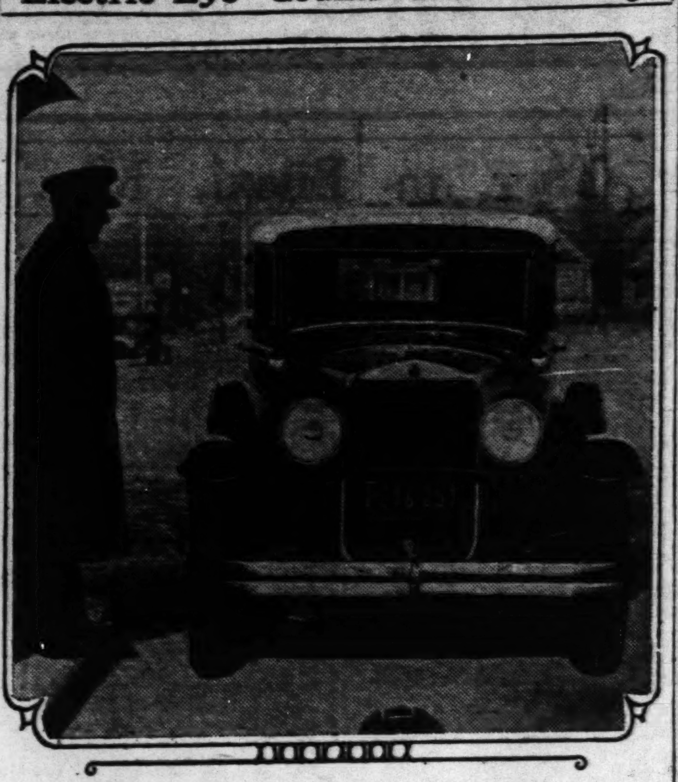
Says Farmers Prosper.

America's Middle Western farmers are prosperous. Their buying power is such that industry throughout the country will feel the effect of their prosperity during 1930. Not only automobile manufacturers, but the producers of everything that is used on the farm will find great markets throughout the Middle West next year. These predictions were made by R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager of Durant Motors, on his return Friday to Detroit from one of a series of trips that during three months have taken him into nearly every one of the great agricultural states of the Mississippi Valley.

'Electric Eye' Counts Cars at Bridge



A Graham-Paige is about to cast its shadow on the electric eye in the roadway at the toll-gate of the new Ambassador Bridge, between Detroit, Mich., and Ontario, Can. The interruption of a beam of light operates a device which registers each vehicle passing across the bridge.

Changes to New Car.

Dr. Chorlian, a physician of Alexandria, Egypt, has bridged the automotive improvements of nearly three decades, changing from driving one of the pioneer one-cylinder Oldsmobiles to a new six-cylinder car of the same make. After being driven in this country for some time, the old car was taken to Egypt, where it was purchased by the physician in 1911.

Tire Concern Expands.

Complete confidence in the industrial outlook was evidenced at Detroit last week when the United States Rubber Co. announced that the output of the Detroit tire plant is to be substantially increased in 1930.

Utilization of space now available in the plant, and installation of new machinery and manufacturing methods, will make possible the increase in voume without greaty enarging the foor area, it was announced.

Purchases of commercial paper in the first 10 months of 1929 by the Commercial Credit Co., which handles purchase financing of Packards, the Chrysler line, Peerless and Willys-Overland, amounted to $387,952,991, as against $222,663,731 in the same period in 1928, according to M. W. Finney, sales manager of the St. Louis division of the company. Net income on the capital stock of the company was increased 62 per cent.

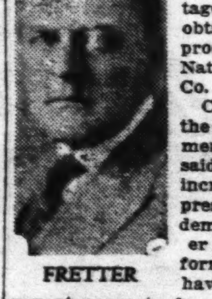
Women Would Sell.

Schools of salesmanship, conducted by experts of national reputations and open to the general public, are being conducted in various parts of the country by the De Soto Motor Corporation. While the schools are intended primarily for the benefit of those who desire to earn extra money by part-time sales work, they are being attended also by business men, professional automobile salesmen, and others who are desirous of broadening their business educations. One of the notable things about them is the number of women who are taking the courses, with the idea, chiefly, of putting in their spare time selling automobiles.

White Rose Ethyl Gasoline Placed on Sale in City

National Refining Co. Announces Price Will Not Be Increased Over Regular Rate.

Announcement is made by Frank B. Fretter, president of the National Petroleum Co., that White Rose ethyl gasoline is now being sold in the 31 filling stations operated by the company in St. Louis. This is the first time ethyl advantages have been obtainable with products of the National Refining Co.



FRETTER

Commenting on the announcement, Fretter said: "With the increased compressions and the demand for greater high-gear performance, we have had many urgent requests for an anti-knock fuel. Users wanted a gasoline which was non-detonating under any operating conditions. Only ethyl fluid met satisfactorily all the requirements of high-compression motors.

"When ethyl was first introduced many thought it a means of making any gasoline a super fuel and that it did away with all the faults of an inferior gasoline."

In the last few years, however, Fretter continued, it became known that the addition of ethyl fluid does not change the quality of a gasoline—it only makes it non-detonating.

"The result is that car owners generally are not satisfied to buy any gasoline that has been ethylized," Fretter declared. "They are exercising the same discrimination which they formerly did in choosing gasoline."

White Rose Ethyl will sell at the same price that regular White Rose does. Another fuel, Royal gasoline, will sell for less. Filling station pumps will be painted different colors to distinguish between the fuels—white for White Rose, red for White Rose Ethyl and purple for Royal.

40-Passenger Bus Likely to Supplant Double-Deck Coach

Double-deck busses seem likely to be supplanted in the course of a few years by the advent of the 40-passenger type of city motorcoach at a weight commensurate with that of the 29-passenger vehicle, according to statements made at the recent transportation meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Toronto in a paper by Frank Fageol, of the Twin-Coach Co.

A definite, new and permanent trend in motorcoach design was initiated, continued Fageol, by the presentation by his company of the 40-passenger single-deck coach having two small engines placed amidship of the chassis and with the frame and body made integral.

Fageol is not sure that the present 40-passenger motorcoach represents the maximum size that will be needed for the future, but believes that the capacity probably will not be increased because it represents about the maximum size of vehicle that one man can operate conveniently, collect fares upon, and adhere to his schedule in a way acceptable to the riding public.

city—French, Spanish, English, United States, Confederate States, Mississippi Magnolia and Mississippi State.

Looking far to seaward, the dim outlines of Ship Island appear wraith-like. The British fleet anchored there before the battle of New Orleans. There also Admiral Foote put in before his victorious ascent of the Mississippi in 1862. An old fort was erected on the island during the Civil War—Fort Massachusetts—which still stands, remote and abandoned.

Some of the islands off the coast in the neighborhood of Biloxi were the favorite haunts of pirates who pursued their sanguinary course through the waters of the Gulf prior to the War of 1812. The islands are named Isle au Pied, Cat Island,, Ship Island and Horn Island.

There are other places of interest in and around Biloxi. Bordering the Back Bay for two miles is the Naval Reserve Park, with its massive moss-draped oaks. Benachi avenue is a veritable cathedral of oaks leading to the Gulf. A beautiful Indian legend has grown up around one huge old oak tree on East Beach. It concerns the plea of a daughter of an Indian chieftain to marry a Frenchman. "When the ring grows in the limb of yonder oak, you may marry him," was the chief's reply.

Next morning a ring was found in the largest limb of the tree, according to the tale. It is visible yet!

Fishing is always popular, because Biloxi offers the Gulf, a score of bays and fresh water streams for many varieties.

A notable event early next spring will be the Mardi Gras, on March 4.

A large sum of money has been expended on highways along the coast which are uniformly good, and near Biloxi are several other resort centers. Bay St. Louis is about 27 miles west of Biloxi. Between the two are Pass Christian and Long Beach, while Pascagoula is 16 miles east of Biloxi.

"Dynamic" Erskine To Be Introduced At New York Show

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 14.—The Studebaker Corporation will start production this month on a new Erskine for introduction at the New York Automobile Show, Jan. 4. The new car which is to be known as the "Dynamic New Erskine," is larger and more powerful, yet is priced under $1000.

According to Studebaker, the new Erskine offers better performance, due to the fact that it has more power per pound of weight.

The new Erskine has an entirely new motor of Studebaker design and manufacture throughout, and larger body dimensions on a longer wheelbase of 114 inches. New radiator design and smart line treatment emphasized by tri-lateral belt—a new idea originated by Studebaker—give the new Erskine individuality.

Commenting on the new car which is named for him, Albert Russell Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, said: "Studebaker has created a new conception of what the public may expect in a low priced car. Automobiles are no longer a luxury but an accepted necessity to the business and pleasure of the average man or woman. The new Erskine is a big quality car, providing price within the reach of millions of people. It will be a worthy companion to its three larger companions, the Dictator, Commander and President."

One-Fourth of Auto Light Bulbs Sold by Western Auto Stores

During a recent sales campaign, the St. Louis stores of the Western Auto Supply Co. sold 2098 kits of Edison mazda automobile lamp bulbs and 2892 individual bulbs, according to K. S. Hall, manager of the store at 811 Washington avenue.

Over the country, the 180 Western Auto stores sold more than 311,000 individual bulbs, Hall said, or more than one-fourth of all bulbs sold in the United States.

Airplane Takes Off From Auto Going 52 Miles an Hour

An aviation stunt, said to have never before been attempted, was carried out successfully at Old Orchard Beach, Me., when a Moth airplane took off from the top of a speeding Hudson sedan. The car was driven by Ira J. Snow of Pine Point, Me., and the plane by Alexander Krapish of Lowell, Mass.

The Hudson car was equipped with two uprights from the running board, extending six inches above the top, and another upright from the tire carrier. Fastened to the tops of the two forward uprights was a plank, on which the wheels of the plane rested. The tail skid rested on a bracket attached to the rear upright. The wheels were fastened to the plank by a coupling so arranged that it could be released by the pilot of the plane by pulling a string.

The engine of the plane was just above the engine of the automobile, the propeller whirling in front of the automobile radiator. With both engines roaring, the Hudson started down the beach and soon attained speed of 52 miles an hour. Krapish then shoved his stick forward and brought the tail of the plane up off the bracket. He then pulled the string to disconnect the wheels and the plane rose.

More Women Drive Cars Nowadays Than Ever Before

Statistics show that more women are driving automobiles today than ever before. Women to a great extent have dictated the styles and colors of the presentations now being displayed along automobile row.

Ease of control in the modern car is due as much to the influence of women drivers as are style and color, according to Pierce-Arrow officials.

One of the features of the new Pierce-Arrow straight eights are the self-energizing, mechanical four-wheel brakes. The design of the shoe is such that the braking effort automatically multiplies itself. The rotating wheel helps set its own brakes as soon as the slightest pressure is applied. For example, so little effort is required that the pressure of a man's thumb will apply the full strength of the brakes on the new Pierce-Arrow.

The brakes act on all four wheels positively—on the straightaway or in turning. No drag is felt on the steering gear when the brakes are applied while turning. The brake shoes are completely protected from dirt and water.

That the automotive industry is optimistic regarding the outlook for 1930 and has good reason for believing that the business will be kept on an even keel during the next twelvemonth, is the consensus of observers at the National Capital. This view was further augmented by the message brought to Washington when leaders of the industry came here to take part in the national business survey conference called by President Hoover to afford an opportunity for stock taking before attacking the problems of another year.

There are indications that the industry has been affected more or less in line with general business, and this was the statement made by Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, when he appeared before the conference. He added that the leaders of the industry "are watchful but are not concerned over the outcome."

The export business looms large in the plans for 1930 and observers at the seat of the National Government point out that there exist conditions abroad that temporarily will affect this phase of the world automobile market. But they do not look for any dire consequences. Unemployment is a factor to be reckoned with very definitely in England and to some extent in France and Germany. This, they point out, affects all the supply countries of Europe. But unemployment is not an insurmountable problem. Underlying conditions in South America, it is reported, show room for improvement at present, but despite these conditions the leaders of the industry assert that the export trade this year will approximate 1,000,000 vehicles, an increase of 20 per cent over 1928.

A particularly bright spot in the outlook for exports and, for that matter, in the market forecast in this country, is the promise of expansion in the bus and truck trade during 1930. The countries of South America especially have given concerted attention to highway development which will afford the groundwork for an advance in mass transportation. The bus and the truck represent an approach to a necessity in the use of automobiles. And for this reason there is double assurance of a broader market for these vehicles.

Meyer Building 16-Cylinder Car for Indianapolis Ra

From California comes the first announcement of plans for building a machine to compete, under the new regulations, in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis next May. Louis Meyer, national A. A. A. racing champion for the last two years, is building and will pilot the machine. Riley Britt, a veteran at the mechanical end of the racing game, assisted in designing the car and will occupy the mechanic's seat.

Of 16-cylinder design, the cylinders will be arranged in two straight-eight blocks. Dual carburetion, extra valves for each cylinder and stream-lining will help to produce a top speed of around 160 miles an hour.

Construction has already commenced in Harry A. Miller's shops. While details are yet in the preliminary stages, general specifications have been made known. There will be double-geared crankshafts. The engine will have 183 cubic inches of displacement and will develop 250 horsepower. Downdraft carburetion, with two carburetors, has been decid There will be two valves to cylinder. Unusually high pression will require the ethyl gasoline.

Ethylene-glycol will be u cooling purposes. Cutting head resistance has alway one of the major problems signing racing cars. Over the terrific heat developed powerful motors has been th er. So far, use of ethylene has been confined to airplane to some experimental wo automobiles. Engineers will t fore, watch this test with interest.

The radiator of the Meyer consequently, will be kept d about the same size as those former 91-inch cars.

Weight will total 1750 p just inside the Indianapolis way's restriction. Piston d ment of 183 cubic inches well within the maximum a of 366 cubic inches.

It is estimated the total co approximate $20,000.

Hints for Winter Drivers

THE fact that the engine starts easily in cold weather is no assurance that the gas is the right kind for winter service, unless it has been established that the carburetor mixture is not too rich.

If the gears are hard to shift, or actually stick, don't grasp the shift lever down near the base. The greatest leverage is had by holding the knob in the usual way.

• • •

When waiting in traffic for the signal to go, keep the gears in neutral and allow the clutch pedal to come up. This saves weakening the clutch spring and spares unnecessary wear on the clutch throwout collar.

A new engine, if a little tighter than usual, may not idle evenly. Nothing should be done to try to correct the fault as it will overcome itself as the car is broken in.

A car will skid less if the rear end does not bounce around so much. It is a gentle tip to drive a little slower when the roads are rough, even though the popular notion is that smoother roads are the most slippery.

When ice form on the roa is very important to watch o the spotty kind where one or wheels of the car may be on gerous ground during a quick while the others have good tion on the dry road.

preme Court Holds Gasoline Levy Is Valid

deral Tribunal Also De- es Car Owners Not Lia- e for Passenger's Injuries.

ASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Two ions of importance to motor- have been rendered by the d States Supreme Court, ac- ing to the legal department the American Motorists' Asso- ion.

e more important is the t's decision upholding the va- y of the California three-cent line tax.

his is the first time that the preme Court has had an oppor- ty to pass upon the validity of tate gasoline tax. Upholding the validity of the California insures the continuance of the not only in California but in r states, without which high- construction in the United tes would almost come to a ndstill, according to J. Borton eks, president of the associa-

"The average tax paid per gal- at the present time is 3.07 ts, which means that each mo- ist in the United States this year contribute approximately 4.25 in the form of gasoline es, towards the nation's high- y construction and maintenance gram," Weeks declared.

The validity of the California tax s attacked on the ground that tax was for the purpose of pporting public highways, when se highways are aided by Fed- al legislation which provides that "toll" shall be charged for the e of them. Legality of the tax s also attacked on two addi- nal grounds, viz., that the tax in conflict of the "due process use" of the fourteenth amend- nt and also in violation of the nstitution of California .

The second decision upholds the ht of a state to enact a statute lieving owners and operators of tomobiles from responsibility for juries to guests transported atuitously in their automobile, less the injuries were incurred in idents caused intentionally or heedless or reckless disregard others.

"The trend of many recent de- ions has been to hold the mo- ist to be an insurer of his est's safety. To relieve motorists this responsibility, in cases of juries to gratuitous guests, the ate of Connecticut passed an act olding that a motorist could not held liable in case of injury, ath or loss, in case of accidents, less such accident was intention- on the part of the owner or rator or caused by his heedless- or his reckless disregard of rights of others," the A. M. A. tement explains.

The effect of the Supreme urt's decision, upholding the lity of the Connecticut act, will to afford motorists similar pro- tion in other states where simi- acts may be enacted in behalf he motorist, Weeks declared.

actory Operates Extensive School For Service Men

uick Motor Co. Gives Special Training to Employes at Flint, Mich.

Automotive service has always en a vital consideration in the oblems confronting the auto- obile manufacturer. The Buick otor Co. carries on an extensive aining program for service men rough the General Motors Insti- te of Technology, Flint, Mich.

As a part of this program, a ree-month course in Buick au- orized service has been conduct- d since 1923. The course is offer- to men who are already in the uick service organization and ho recognize the value of a more ecialized knowledge and training service station management and odern methods of maintenance d repair of Buick and Marquette tomobiles.

Since its conception, approxi- ately 600 men have completed 's course. In practically every se the graduates who were ex- erienced men before entering, ave been able, upon their return, do a very constructive piece of ork for their respective dealers. This has been especially true when he men have returned to respon- ible positions in the dealer's or- anization as inspectors, shop oremen and service managers.

Throughout the course service roblems are dealt with both in the class room and in the labora- ory. A complete technical founda- on in automobile construction, aintenance and adjustment is overed and special problems of ervice, such as closed body serv- ce—including closed body adjust- ents and repair, welding, metal inishing, and touch-up work— hop tools, equipment and layout, elements of service station man- agement and control, and prin- iples of service sales and promo- on are covered in detail.

More Involved.

Even in the days when carbure- ors were comparatively simple— and crude—mechanisms, the car wner was warned against trying o adjust them unless he knew pre- isely what he was about. To- ay's carburetor is just that much ore beyond the range of the av- rage motorist's ability to adjust it. e thought is a good one to bear mind especially since so many of e ills laid to the carburetor are used by something else.

Motor News From Detroit

By Fred Kingsbury.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 14.—Production of automobiles at the various plants in the Detroit district is gaining at a rapid rate, and will continue to increase the balance of the month and during January. It is not expected that the December output will be especially large, but it will be well over the figures for the past month and undoubtedly will be rather surprising to those not closely identified with the industry. A large proportion of this production is due to plants tuning up their production lines on the new 1930 models, the first of which will be displayed at the New York Automobile Show.

Practically every motor car manufacturer in the United States will show something new during January or the early part of February and several surprises are scheduled. There will be many new straight eights, a new V-eight in the medium price class and a new V-16, also a new front drive made in St. Louis.

Greater performance has been built into the majority of the new offerings and some of the features of these cars have never before been heard of which will make the various automobile shows more interesting than ever.

Then, too, there will be a small English type car which has features which are rather surprising to those who have had an opportunity to view the models. This car has been changed considerably from the conventional English type and, through engineering has taken on many American features and has been made fully adaptable to owners in the United States.

During the past two weeks great numbers of automobile dealers from all over the country have been coming to Detroit to visit the factories and study the new models. In the last week, several St. Louis dealers and some of their service men have been in Detroit. These dealers are making commitments for cars for their needs during the first month of the coming year.

Talks with these dealers show they are, for the most part, in an optimistic frame of mind and are looking forward to good business, at least for the first six months of 1930.

They admit there is a considerable number of used cars on the market in all sections of the country, but they do not seem to feel that the supply is excessive, except at a few points, especially for this season of the year when selling is at a low point.

Motor car prices at the present time seem to be on the upward trend. Already two companies — Cadillac and Buick have revised their prices upward and several other organizations are expected to make like announcements in the near future.

Last fall, during a speech in New York, Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said that he believed motor car prices were too low. Other experts of the industry appeared to concur in this opinion. They held that automobile manufacturers have continued to build more value into their products while continuing to maintain prices at a very low figure, in fact at an extremely low profit ratio.

This talk of price increases has been of great help to dealers throughout the country. Dealers throughout the country, generally, are taking advantage of the opportunity to get busy and sell cars.

Automobile makers have been making plans for a still further increase in export business during the coming 12 months. The manufacturers who maintain overseas organizations—as most of them do—have been building up the personnel of these organizations in preparation to canvassing the foreign markets more thoroughly than ever before in the history of the automotive industry.

Already gains are foreseen in South America and Australia, where they take very kindly to American cars.

Sales of trucks at various points in the United States have been very good during the fall months; in fact, much better than some of the manufacturers and dealers had anticipated.

Those identified with the truck industry foresee at least average business for the first three months of 1930, and they are making plans accordingly.

Check Plug Cables.

Car owners seldom think of spark plug cables when the ignition system seems to be functioning inefficiently. Yet, it should be remembered that the conditions under which the cable works involve high temperatures and escaping oil which affects the rubber. Cracks in the insulation permit the spark to escape before it reaches the cylinder or, at least, to diminish in intensity. The charge fires, but weakly.

Safety on Highways.

All motor trucks in Connecticut must be equipped with reflectors in the rear. No matter if the tail light of a truck is burned out or dirty, the head lamps of a car approaching from behind would shine on the reflector, warning the driver of the truck ahead.

Willard Brings Out New Battery

Announcement is made by C. W. Lockhart, St. Louis branch manager of the Willard Storage Battery Co., that Willard is bringing out a new line of automobile batteries, the Autex, for replacement purposes. Price of the 13-plate size is $7.95 and for the 15-plate $10.65.

"The Autex affords the same standards of workmanship and materials that have always identified Willard batteries," Lockhart declared. "Its low price is made possible by quantity production."

DANCING eyes . . . joyous shouts . . . and then a glad rush to be first in the car . . . when a new Buick or new Marquette arrives at your door on Christmas morning!

So much happiness . . . so many months and miles of unalloyed pleasure . . . and so comparatively easy to make the dream come true!

For with all their outstanding quality, Buick and Marquette cars are priced surprisingly low, due to the manufacturing economies resulting from Buick's tremendous volume production.

The motorists of America invest more money in new Buicks and Marquettes than in any other cars in their price range—because they provide the incomparable grace and luxury of new Fisher Bodies—because they offer greatest performance, comfort and safety—because they represent the highest dollar value ever offered in their respective fields.

Either of these cars, built by Buick, will mean far more than just a Christmas gift. It will promote health, happiness and utility. It will pay extra dividends of Christmas joy for weeks, months and years to come.

The day of days is drawing near. But there's still time to plan a wonderful surprise presentation of this gift of gifts. Order your Christmas Buick or Marquette now for delivery on Christmas day!

Buick offers 14 body types, priced from $1260 to $2070, f. o. b. factory.
Marquette offers 6 body types, ranging from $990 to $1060;
f. o. b. factory.

Special equipment extra. Buick and Marquette delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing. Convenient terms can be arranged on the liberal G. M. A. C. Time Payment Plan. Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values.

Killing of King Dramatized on WLW Tonight

Crosley Players to Broadcast Play Based on Sensational Historic Incident.

Intrigue in high circles, plots and counter plots that seem more like fiction than history, will be unraveled by the Crosley Players over WLW in a Great Adventure broadcast at 9:30 tonight, when they dramatize the murder of Gustavus III of Sweden.

Gustavus, a dramatist and poet of considerable ability, was merely a figurehead as a sovereign and had managed to incite most of his subjects to wrath against him.

Ankarstrom, a nobleman who had been wronged by the King, found it not difficult to form a conspiracy against Gustavus. Baron Bjelke, the King's most trusted adviser and friend, entered into the conniving with the idea of learning the plans and warning the King.

Gustavus, however, was enamored of the Baron's wife. The Baron discovered his wife's inconstancy on the eve of a masquerade ball planned for a court festival.

At the same time, another of the conspirators, weakening in purpose, sent an anonymous letter to Gustavus, warning him of the plot. But Bjelke, mad with rage at his sovereign's perfidy, advised the frightened monarch to go in another costume so the assassins would not know him, and then informed the conspirators of the change.

Gustavus was shot during the masquerade, Bjelke and Ankarstrom were captured. Bjelke told the whole story and would have been pardoned by the Judges but that he died in prison.

On KSD Tomorrow

GEORGE CEHANOVSKY, Russian baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, who is recognized as one of the finer radio artists. He will sing in the General Motors concert over KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Cehanovsky Soloist On KSD Tomorrow

Four songs, including the beautiful aria of Valentine in the second act of "Faust," will be sung by George Cehanovsky, the Russian baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, in the General Motors concert over KSD at 8:30 tomorrow night. Don Voorhees will make his debut as conductor of the orchestra.

Cehanovsky is one of the youngest of the Metropolitan stars. He became a member of that world famous organization in 1926, two years after he and his mother, Mrs. Sophia Cehanovsky, who had been Professor of singing at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, came to America as refugee. Cehanovsky had been a lieutenant commander in the Czar's navy.

In addition to the air from "Faust," Cehanovsky will sing the "largo al Factotum," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," Leoncavallo's lovely "Mattinata" (Morning Song) and "Serenade" by Vito Carnevali, the accompanist of Tito Schipa.

Frequency of Current.

Both "radio frequency" currents and "audio frequency" currents are alternating currents; that is, they consist of streams of electrons flowing in a conductor, first in one direction and then reversing and flowing through the conductor in the opposite direction. This reversal in the direction of flow keeps on indefinitely as long as the currents are turned on, but the reversals follow one another at definite intervals of time.

It is Miss Elise Aehle who plays "The Phantom Violin" over KMOX each Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. and on Thursdays at 10:15 a. m. She is accompanied by Miss Marguerite Reid, pianist.

ELISE AEHLE.

Miss Aehle is well known in musical circles, having been a soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. She played in concerts in the principle cities of Europe, including London, Paris and Prague, as well as in the larger cities of the United States.

John Willis, violinist, who gave weekly recitals for some time over KWK, is now playing nightly over WIL. He plays Monday evenings from 5 to 5:30 and other nights from 5:30 to 6 o'clock.

Franklyn Baur, who sings in the weekly Firestone program over KSD, has gone to Bermuda for a short vacation. The Firestone feature tomorrow night will be an all-Vaughn de Leath broadcast, according to present plans.

The Estudiantina quartet led by Mrs. Mary E. Daly is to sing over WEW at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Members of the quartet are Helen Breck, Mrs. H. D. McCabe, Winona Rives and Margaret Kern. Marguerite Shoen and Charline Oechner, pianist, will take part in the broadcast.

The Watch Tower chain program will be broadcast from New York by KMOX this morning at 9 o'clock instead of the Land o' Make Believe feature. The Watch Tower broadcast consists of music and a program arranged by Judge Rutherford, president of the International Bible Students' Association.

Tom Gerun's orchestra is now broadcasting over KMOX each night, except Sunday, from 11:30 to 12 midnight from the Hotel Jefferson. Blue Steele and his orchestra, which have been broadcasting from the Coronado Hotel from 11 p. m. to 12 o'clock are now heard over KMOX from 11 to 11:30 p. m. and again from 12 midnight to 12:30 a. m., following the half hour Gerun's band.

A new radio magazine and program directory, "What's On the Air," is on the news stands. It lists the programs of 100 stations, among them KSD, and carries carefully designed features calculated to help listeners pick and choose programs for every day and night of the week. It also has pictures and stories about radio celebrities.

Carmela Ponselle and Martha Atwood, both Metropolitan Opera sopranos, have joined the NBC Concert Bureau.

Luella Melius, a coloratura soprano, sang anonymously in an NBC concert, Nov. 24. Listeners were asked to guess who she was. Of 82 persons who wrote to NBC headquarters, 711 Fifth avenue, New York. Ten said she was Galli-Curci; four were sure she was Geraldine Farrar; three thought she was Mme. Frances Alda and three others guessed she was Maria Jeritza. Others suggested she might be Alma Gluck, Marion Talley, Mme. Tettrazini, Ganna Walska, Frieda Hempel, Lucrezia Bori, Mary Garden, Anna Case, Mabel Garrison and Maria Kurenko.

The Sylvania Foresters, who sing over KWK, are introducing an innovation. Instead of telling what song or piece of music is next on the program, the announcer waits until it has been sung or played, then tells what it was. The change was made on order from B. G. Erskine, president of the sponsoring company. "I am not much different from other broadcast listeners," Erskine says. "I seldom pay any attention to introductory announcements, and it makes me mad when I have enjoyed a number to discover that its name is lost forever, after it is over. I hope this improvement will be adopted generally for the sake of listeners."

The Diamond Oilers, an orchestra led by C. J. (Mike) Childs Jr., are broadcasting Tuesday nights from 7 to 7:30 over KMOX.

Miss Ruth Parker of New York, an authority on perfume and cosmetic problems, has been giving a series of radio talks to women over KMOX on Tuesday and Friday mornings at 10:30. Next Tuesday morning she will speak on "Escaping Perfume Boredom," and on Friday morning on "The Art of Making a Lasting Impression."

The Whittal Anglo-Persians are to be back on WDAF, Kansas City, Sunday afternoons, beginning Dec. 30.

David Mendoza, who conducts the Fada concerts over the Columbia chain and several features on NBC networks, has composed a new song, "Love's Chatter."

Jane Houston, who has played opposite John Drew and John Hodge, takes the role of "Vi" in Graybar's "Mr. and Mrs.," over the Columbia chain.

Ted Husing, chief sports announcer for the Columbia chain, has selected his own all-American football team, basing his selections on the games he has reported by radio. He picks: Ends—Riblett, Pennsylvania, and Fessler, Ohio State; tackles, Morrison, Chicago, and Perry, Army; guards, Barrager, Southern California, and Cannon, Notre Dame; center, Siano, Fordham; quarter, Wood, Harvard; right halfback, Wittmer, Princeton; left halfback, Cagle, Army; fullback, Bergherm, Northwestern.

WLS is to broadcast at 7:30 Monday night a debate between Purdue and Notre Dame universities on "Resolved that the prosperity of the farmers is more important to the cities than cheaper food."

Homer Rodeheaver, song leader for "Billy" Sunday, the revivalist, is to lead the Christmas "carol sing" over WLS at 10 oclock on the nights of Thursday, Dec. 19; Friday, Dec. 20, and Saturday, Dec. 21; at 3 and 7 p. m. Sunday, Dec. 22, and at 6:30 p. m., Monday, Dec. 23, and Christmas eve.

From a letter received by the NBC: "Will you please have Milt Coleman sing 'The Sweetheart of Sig McCoy' during his morning melodies program?"

Floyd Gibbons, who "hunts headlines," and tells about "Adventures in Science" over KSD, has written the preface for "Pilot's Luck," a book of war flying anecdotes written and illustrated by Clayton Knight.

Robert E. ("Uncle Bob") Sherwood, last of Barnum's clowns and principal in the Dixie's Circus weekly NBC program on WLW, says he originated the hatless fad. For 20 years "Uncle Bob," now more than 75 years old, has never worn a hat. Last summer he startled fellow artists around the studios by appearing in knickers and minus stockings.

To please his family, Frank Black, conductor of the Happy Wonder Bakers' orchestra Wednesday nights on KSD, was graduated from college as a chemist. But he wanted to be a musician and began conducting orchestras at the age of 16.

* * *

Gene Rodemich, diminutive conductor of the Prophylactic orchestra, when leading a St. Louis dance band a few years ago, worked out a series of trumpet and cornet mutes, including the "wah-wah" effect that every band now employs. He also learned that it does something to cornet music if one hang a derby on the end of the instrument.

Amos' N' Andy Figuring It Out.

AMOS (Freeman F. Gosden) and ANDY (Charles J. Correll) in make-up. ANDY, evidently, is trying to look either "hard" or determined.

Famous Team Hard Workers

Comedians Who Play Amos 'n' Andy Remain Modest and Likable—Interested in People As "Folks" As They Win Country-Wide Popularity.

"I HAVE known Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll a long time. I'm bragging now because I consider them two of the best showmen I have ever known," writes the radio editor of the Kansas City Star. "I've been back stage with them, watched them make up, discussed their characters with them, played with them in a studio minstrel show and spent hours with them when they were outside their characters.

"These two showmen, who probably have addressed more persons than any two men in the history of the world, are modest fellows, a virtue so lacking in the show world that it deserves first mention. Their rise has been rapid and prosperity has not hurt them. Their fan mail tops all other radio features, and yet they are as natural and unspoiled as on the first evening they faced a microphone.

"Bill Hay, their announcer, recently said this of Correll and Gosden: 'They are shrewd business men. They know the secret of public favor and its value. They drive a good bargain, yet they never hesitate to refuse anything which might lower the high standard of the entertainment they present, or jeopardize the friendship of the hundreds of thousands of radio listeners who depend upon their clean, human fun.'

Work Hard and Like People.

"When Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll were in Kansas City early this fall it was my opportunity to get the low down on what I consider probably the most important factor behind their success. They are serious about their job. They are devoted to their characters. They are not afraid of work. In one day I have seen them play four vaudeville shows, write five nightly radio episodes and rehearse and perform a minstrel show in the studios. An average trouper would offer Lightnin's distress signal at half such a routine. At the end of this minstrel show, which closed the busy day, Correll and Gosden were two happy lads, tired, but thanking everyone in the studio most graciously for the fine co-operation, when everyone in the studio was feeling mighty cocky over the privilege of doing an act with the great black-face team of Amos 'n' Andy.

"Correll and Gosden like people. That is why their characters are so human. They are democratic, equally at home with the big business man or the man on the street. Their copy is clean, the only real security for the showman in public esteem. They have a subtle sense of humor not of the wise-cracking type, but growing from a healthy, happy outlook. The purpose of this story is to show the Correll and Gosden behind the Amos 'n' Andy so beloved over a continent. To do so let's go back to the early environment of Freeman Gosden (Amos) and Charles Correll (Andy).

Gosden a Virginian.

Freeman F. Gosden is 30 years old. He was born in Richmond, Va., in 1899. Hence, Amos' natural Southern accent. Three generations of Gosdens lived in Virginia, and Freeman is said to be the first one to leave the State. Gosden was raised in true Southern fashion with a Negro mammy. Freeman's mother took a young Negro lad into her household who was raised along with Freeman. His name was Snowball, and he has been the inspiration for many of the Amos 'n' Andy episodes.

"Freeman enlisted in the navy during the World War. After the armistice, he went on the road as a salesman for a tobacco company. Later he returned to Richmond and in his home town appeared in a home talent show, clogging and speaking a few lines. The show was directed by a Chicago company that produced shows for local organizations, furnishing the script, music, costumes and scenery. The company directed the show and the town furnished the talent. This was the beginning of Gosden's stage career. Previous to this time his stage experience had been limited to a dive into Annette Kellerman's tank when a boy, and to holding eggs for Thurston, the magician.

Gets "Pointers" From Correll.

"After the home town show Gosden was offered a job, but before "The Follies of 1919" was ready for the Elks benefit performance, Gosden needed a bit of coaching. So his first task was to go to Durham, N. C., to learn some pointers from an older director, none other than Charles Correll.

Correll was born in Peoria, Ill., in 1890. He sold newspapers as a boy and grew up not at all unusually to become a piano player in moving picture shows. This boy, however, had from the beginning a natural flare for the show business. It was several years after he had been a director of shows that he met Gosden. Correll was rehearsing a show in Durham, N. C. when Gosden went to him for training.

"Correll and Gosden worked six years for the Chicago Production Company, not always together, but each following his own particular assignment from town to town. Gosden was made manager of the circus division and Correll, manager of the show division. Their headquarters eventually were in Chicago, so the boys took an apartment together, the beginning of their definite contact for a fruitful future. They found their voices blended and many evenings were spent together with ukulele and piano and a pile of popular songs.

"Soon Correll and Gosden were writing shows for Paul Ash in

Crooks Will Sing in KSD Eveready Hour

Richard Crooks, leading tenor of the Berlin and Hamburg operas, will sing in the Eveready Hour over KSD next Tuesday night. Crooks, although still in his twenties, has achieved the success which generally arrives much later in life.

His career began in 1922 after Walter Damrosch selected him for the unprecedented number of nine performances as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra.

Recitals in European capitals brought to Crooks praise of foreign critics and his operatic debut in Tosca at the Hamburg Opera was an artistic triumph, as were his subsequent appearances at the Berlin opera.

Crooks will sing "Dein Ist Mein Ganzen Herz," the "hit" of a new operatta by Franz Lehar which has created a sensation in Berlin: "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "One Alone," from the "Desert Song."

Under Nathaniel Shilkret, the orchestra will play Beethoven's Turkish March: Mozart's "Don Juan" Minuet; The Soldier's Chorus from "Faust"; the "Sylvia" Ballet Suite of Delibes and the Rakoczy March of Berlioz.

Trouble From Charged Aerial.

One common source of aerial trouble is a local discharge of smoke or steam in the neighborhood of the aerial. Smoke passing an aerial will charge it to extremely high voltage under favorable condition, that is dry air and a well insulated aerial.

All Recorded Programs Must Be So Announced

Listeners to Be Told When Those Made for Broadcasting Are Used.

An order by the Federal Radio Commission takes official cognizance of the new recorded programs made especially for broadcasting, such as the one put on the air over KMOX and some 40 other stations for two hours on Thanksgiving day. It must be made clear to listeners by the stations that such programs are "electrical transcriptions."

The order says:

"All broadcasting stations shall announce clearly and distinctly the character of all mechanical productions broadcast by them, the announcement to immediately precede the broadcasting of each record. In such announcement each talking machine, phonograph or graphaphone record used, whatever its character, shall be described by the use of the exact words: 'This is a talking machine record,' or 'This is a phonograph record,' or 'This is a graphaphone record'; each player piano selection used shall be described as played by 'mechanical piano players'; every mechanical reproduction shall be similarly described by the term generally understood and used by the public and meaning such mechanical reproduction.

"When a recording or transcript is made exclusively for broadcasting purposes and is neither offered nor intended to be offered for sale to the public, each such recording shall be immediately preceded and following by the following statement: 'This program is an electrical transcription made exclusively for broadcast purposes.'

"Broadcasting stations shall not use such records, transcriptions or piano player rolls when the length of the rendition thereof exceeds 15 minutes unless provision is made for the announcement of the station call letters which must be given together with the statement above set forth at least once every 15 minutes."

Leaks in Electrical Fixtures.

When an electrical "leak" in a house is suspected, to be causing interference in a receiver, look for loose plugs on floor lamps, defective heating elements, broken wires in an electric toaster, dirty motors with sparking commutator brushes, diathermal machines or any other household appliance.

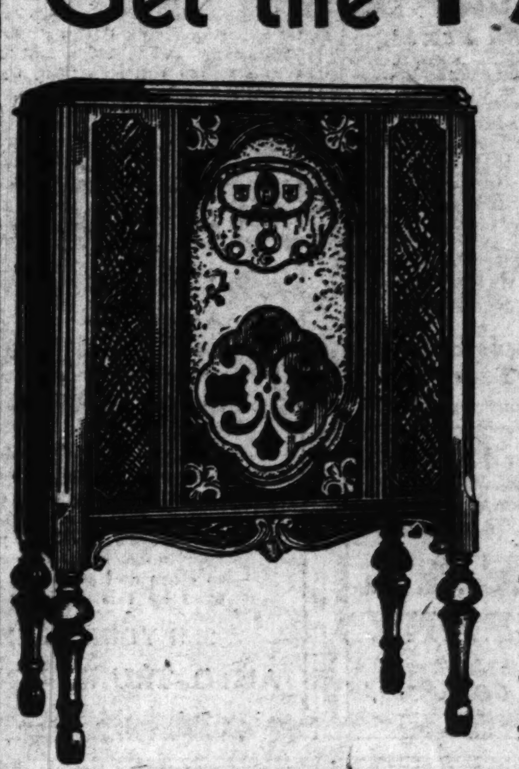
Get the FACTS on Radio



. . they're easy to get—from a dealer who has them and wants you to have them

Get these facts that are common knowledge among radio men. SILVER RADIO comes as the triumph of one of the few really famous radio laboratories—the laboratory which was the cradle of screen-grid quality (Silver-Marshall brought out the first screen-grid receivers in America). No wonder your SILVER dealer is a "dealer in facts"!—he simply shows you the things that SILVER RADIO actually does and other radios don't do.

SILVER RADIO, for example, with its 4 screen-grid tubes, is from 12 to 38 times more sensitive—that's why it needs no aerial. SILVER RADIO has all the things that make a radio ultra-modern—band-selector tuning, extreme selectivity, uniform strength all over the dial—as well as many features mighty hard to find anywhere else, such as screen-grid power detection, and the Overtone switch, for extraordinary tonal brilliancy and for minimizing static. Why be content with less yourself, when SILVER is priced so low?

The Concert Grand (at the top)—peerless in the beauty of its diamond-matched walnut panels flanking a center panel of figured bird's-eye maple—is priced absolutely complete, less only tubes, at $173. Other models $160 and $195.

Get the facts! Ask your SILVER dealer today to show you the "4 amazing Tests" which you can apply easily to any radio anywhere—and which show so clearly the far greater value you get in a SILVER.

SILVER ON RADIO IS LIKE STERLING ON SILVER

Sensitive Detector Tube.

The 200-A tube is a more sensitive detector on weak signals than a 201-A tube. This tube requires a more careful selection of plate voltage than does the 201-A. To some, its characteristic hiss is a little bothersome. There is a loud hiss for a few moments. This reduces to a mild hiss after the tube warms up.

Roxy Back on Air Tomorrow Evening

Roxy is to return to the microphone for tomorrow night's broadcast at 6:30 over KWK and other Blue chain stations.

Elizabeth Biro will make her debut with the "Zigeunerlied" from the "Gypsy Baron" of Johann Strauss, assisted by the Roxy chorus. Celia Branz, contralto, who has been away from the "Gang" for two years, singing in concerts and opera, will sing "My Message," by D'Hardelot. She is the wife of Josef Stopak, concertmaster of the Roxy Symphony Orchestra.

The "Drinking Song" from "The Gypsy Baron," will be sung by Harold Van Duzee.

Lucile Fields and the male quartet will sing Irving Berlin's "To Be Forgotten." Viola Philo and Wee Willie Robyn will sing "Oh, Lovely Night."

Locating Power Noise.

When radio reception in a neighborhood is poor due to deal of interference one should notify the electric company and ask that "trouble shooters" be sent.

Mario Chamlee, Rethberg—to Sing In Radio Opera

Two of Metropolitan's Stars Will Be Heard in Performances Over KSD.

Grand opera apparently is to play an increasingly important role in broadcasting, and more and more of the operatic great are to sing the roles that hitherto have been left to singers of the second rank.

For example, the Radio-Victor broadcast over KSD at 9 o'clock Thursday night, Dec. 28, will bring a tabloid performance of "Aida" with Elizabeth Rethberg, the great Wagnerian soprano, in the title role; Marion Telva, St. Louis' own Metropolitan Opera contralto, as Amneris, and Giocomo Lauri-Volpi, tenor of the Metropolitan, as Radames. While Mario Chamlee, one of the leading tenors of the Metropolitan, will sing the role of Mario in the radio production of Puccini's "La Tosca" over KSD from 6 to 7 o'clock next Saturday evening, Frances Alda, who is planning to devote most of her time to radio, will be the Tosca, and Pasquale Amato, baritone, will be the Scarpio.

These are in addition to the broarcast of an hour from the Chicago Opera production of "Tramata" at 9 o'clock next Saturday night over KWK, and the regular weekly broadcast by the NBC grand opera company over KSD at 10 o'clock Thursday nights.

The radio adaptation of "Tosca" is by Genaro Papi, musical director of the series of Puccini opera broadcasts, while Deems Taylor, composer and critic, again will be the narrator.

"We have retained all the beauties of the music," says Papi. "Mario's solo in the first act, where he dwells on his love for Tosca; the quaint loveliness which picturizes the sacristan; the duet between Tosca and Mario, with its love and coquetry; the chorus of the sacristan and the choir boys, the religious processional—we have them all.

"In the second act, Scarpia's monologue; the music of the news of battle; Tosca's exquisite prayer, the music of Scarpia's brutality to her and of her murder of him—it is all there. The last act we will broadcast is practically complete—Mario's farewell to Tosca; her message of deliverance; their duet of hope; then the crash of guns; her frantic efforts to awaken her dead lover and her despair as she throws herself from the battlements."

"Tosca will create a new standard of radio enjoyment. It will be the musical highlight in all radio up to now. Nothing ever done before can approach its artistry or wealth of beauty. No one who owns a radio set should dream of missing it. If anybody doesn't own one, he ought to get one for that occasion."

Modern Music in Roxy Concert Today

Modern symphonic music is programmed for the Roxy concert at 1 o'clock this afternoon over WLW. Works of Ravel, Debussy, Schelling, Griselle and Casella will be played.

The program is announced, as follows:

La Valse .... Ravel
A Victory Ball .... Schelling
Fetes .... Debussy
Two American Sketches .... Griselle
(a) Nocturne
(b) Marche
Italia .... Casella

There are 1221 broadcasting stations in the world.

Radio fans in Norway are demanding more religion and less sport broadcasting. They say that the broadcasting of athletic events interferes with church services.

Great Singer in Opera Broadcast

CLAUDIA MUZIO, soprano, as Violeta in "La Traviata," part of which will be broadcast over KWK at 9 o'clock next Saturday night.

What's New In Radio Industry

Talkie Projector, Radio Set and Record Reproducer in Single Cabinet to Be Introduced by Sonora—R.C.A. to Concentrate Facilities at Camden, N. J.—Trade Notes.

A COMBINATION of radio receiver, talking movie projector and records reproducer is to be placed on the market by the Sonora Products Corporation. The combination will be housed in a single cabinet. In preparation is a library of 2000 films that can be bought or rented for use in the device. Amateur-sized film will be used, the film being marked to make synchronization easy.

Radio Manager for Laclede Co.

J. E. Kaemmerer, formerly associated with the Kaemmerer Music Shops, Inc., is now in charge of the radio department of the Laclede Gas Light Co. The gas company recently was appointed dealer for the Temple radio receiver.

De Forest Offices Moved.

The executive offices of the De Forest Radio Co. have been moved from the Jersey City plant to the main factory at Passaic, N. J., where most of the De Forest tubes are produced.

Triple Tuning Control on Crosley Sets.

A triple range control device on the new Crosley screen grid receivers makes these sets more applicable to a range of local conditions and produces a balance that can be set by the operator for his own location. By a turn of the switch dial, the listener may get three separate and distinct ranges, for local, nearby or distant stations.

The first tap cuts down sensitivity of the set for local stations. The middle position is for average use with stations of average strength both local and distant. The third tap gives an added sensitivity for weak, distant stations. It's much like having three speeds forward on an automobile.

R. C. A. Production Facilities Centered at Camden, N. J.

The engineering, research and manufacturing facilities of the Radio Corporation of America and its subsidiaries are to be established at Camden, N. J., the first of the year. The Radio-Victor Corporation will do the manufacturing, engineering and research for production of sets for R C A and Radio-Victor under E. E. Shoemaker, who will become president of the new company Jan. 1. Joseph L. Ray will be vice president and general manager. Other officers will be Maj. I. E. Lambert, vice president and general counsel; E. C. Grimby, treasurer, and H. C. Grubbs, in charge of the Victor talking machine division.

Fada Has Copper-Sheathed Test Room.

A copper-sheathed room in which receivers are tested at the Fada plant at Long Island City, N. Y., completely shuts out radio interference. It is lined with copper a sixteenth of an inch thick. The ventilators are doubly shielded. Even the nails with which the copper is fastened are soldered over.

The single heavy door is covered with continuous copper sheeting, soldered at all nail heads and bevelled at the edges and equipped with icebox clamps. Thus, when the door is wedged shut, its copper envelope makes contact with the copper interior.

Vacuum in Radio Tubes Is of an Extreme Degree.

An aviator would have to ascend to a height of perhaps 200 miles to find a degree of vacuum equivalent to that produced by pumping in a well-made radio tube, according to George Lewis, vice president of the Arcturus Radio Tube Co. "The aurora borealis," says Lewis "is an ionization phenomenon occurring probably 50 to 100 miles above the earth's surface, which indicates a degree of gas or atmosphere unsatisfactory for tube purposes. A tube having this degree of vacuum would be a 'gasy' tube and would show a blue haze—a miniature aurora—in a set."

Home Economics Lectures on Air

Josephine B. Gibson, director of the Home Economics Department of the H. J. Heinz company, Pittsburg, Pa., is broadcasting a series of 15-minute food talks at 9:45 Tuesday and Friday mornings over KWK, WREN, WAHS, WSM, WMC and other NBC stations.

Miss Gibson, who is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology with a degree in home economics, has had extensive experience in food research and food lecturing work. She will give practical lectures on the preparation of family meals, will include several recipes in each talk and will deal with food problems of listeners.

The University of Florida is giving lectures and courses of study by radio.

Actors Who Play Amos 'n' Andy Are Modest and Likable

Chicago and appearing personally in these shows. And then, just as has happened to thousands of others, they got the radio fever. It was in 1925 the radio career of Correll and Gosden started in earnest. WGN, radio station of the Chicago Tribune, hired the team for their harmony work together. It was not long, however, until the station manager suggested a try at a comedy dialogue act. And so were born—Sam 'n' Henry.

Then the NBC Takes Notice.

"At the close of the 586th episode of Sam 'n' Henry over WGN the boys' contract ended. It was at this time Correll and Gosden conceived the idea of enlarging their field of radio listeners and popularity by making records of their dialogues and syndicating them to radio stations throughout the country. The broadcast feature of Sam 'n' Henry belonged exclusively to the Chicago Tribune, just as the Nighthawks belong to WDAF. The new idea therefore necessitated a change in title and a new contract, this time with the Chicago station, WMAQ.

Soon Amos 'n' Andy were at it—and how the idea did work! Their popularity seemed to mount over night. WDAF was one of the first stations to buy the new feature. It placed an easy first in the WDAF popularity contest of 1928. As months passed and Amos 'n' Andy became more and more the talk of radio fans, the National Broadcasting Co. began taking notice. A representative was sent around the country to see if the stories New York was hearing about a certain blackface radio team were true. That representative was in Kansas City on the trail of Correll and Gosden when they were here last July. Incidentally, Correll and Gosden's present contract with this network was signed while the boys were showing here at Pantages Theater. The figure, given me in confidence, was nothing short of astounding.

Hard work, and years at it—but Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll had arrived."

Speaker Weighing Ton Can Be Built Into a Residence

According to engineers of the National Broadcasting Co., the time is not distant when radio speakers will be built into houses as chimneys are now built. One type of speaker can be made from poured concrete. It is an air column sound reproducer, 14 feet long, and weighs almost a ton. It is not practical to install this speaker after a house is built. However, it is comparatively inexpensive and not difficult to install if it is considered a constructional part of the home, according to engineers.

This huge speaker is designed so that its base is in the cellar and the mouth comes out of the living room wall. The opening can be concealed by a piece of tapestry or a screen.

Radio engineers point out that it is now possible to wire a house when it is being built so that there is an outlet for a radio speaker in every room. Thus it is possible to have a radio program in every room though the receiving set is at a central point. Speakers in two or three rooms can be turned on at the same time. If four or more speakers are operated from one set, however, special amplifying equipment is necessary.

St. Louis Symphony Will Play Over Columbia Chain

Concert for School Children Next Thursday to Be Broadcast From Coast to Coast.

A concert by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra is to be broadcast over KMOX and the entire Columbia chain at 2:30 next Thursday afternoon. The concert will be broadcast from The Arena, and will be played for the children in the public and parochial schools of St. Louis. Frederick Fischer will conduct.

During the program 20,000 school children will sing two Christmas carols and there will be a chorus by 1000 students selected from the St. Louis public high schools, led by Eugene Hahnel, supervisor of music.

The musicians of the Symphony Orchestra are donating their services for the occasion.

The program follows:

Introduction to Act III. "Lohengrin" ....Wagner
Orchestra.
"The Hour of Rest..........Beethoven
Chorus.
Angelus and Fete Boheme......Massenet
Orchestra.
Silent Night ....Gruber
Sung by the audience.
Dance of the Hours...........Ponchielli
Londonderry Air and Shepherds' Hey ....Grainger Orchestra.
Come, All Ye Faithful...........Reading
Sung by the audience.
American Fantasy ....Herbert
Orchestra.

Howls, Squeaks and Whistles.

Howls, squeaks and whistles generally arise in the radio frequency stages. One of the greatest contributing causes of feed-back or back-wash is inter-electrode capacity of the tubes.

Interference on Antenna.

When interference is picked up by the antenna, the only way to overcome the trouble is to change the antenna location. Run the antenna at right angles to all other wires. A shorter antenna is an aid to sharper tuning.

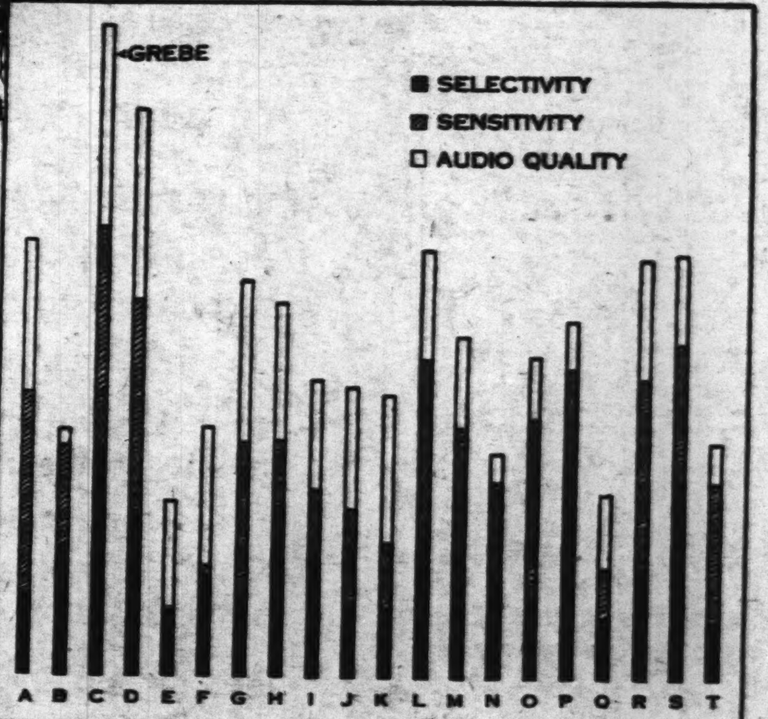
ANY radio set costs too much to buy carelessly

Model 21950—Attractive lowboy design. Price, without tubes . . . $219.50
Other models $270 to $450
Models available for both AC and DC current.



ANY radio set costs too much to buy carelessly. You cannot afford to buy at any price a set you may grow tired of in a few months. You soon tire of inferior music or entertainment in any form. You will quickly tire of the mere novelty of any new radio receiver. After that only the finest of performance can insure your permanent enjoyment.

Recent scientific tests have shown startling differences in the performance of many well known radio receivers. Examine the accompanying chart. Notice the wide difference in performance. Even price is no guarantee of quality.

You can be sure of the New Grebe. Before you buy, have one installed in your home on trial—without obligation. You will know then why you need never tire of a truly fine radio.

Explanation of Chart

20 of the most popular receiving sets are compared. All are current models of the popular tuned radio frequency type ranging in price from over $300 to approximately $100 in the order shown. All but three employ the new screen grid tubes. The relative height of the bars indicates the relative merits of each set.

Overall rating is the sum of the ability of each set:—first to separate powerful stations on neighboring channels without "overlapping," from end to end of dial (the set's selectivity shown by black portion of column)—next, the set's ability to bring in feeble distance stations clearly (its sensitivity: shaded portion of columns)—and finally, the set's audio quality (the fidelity of its audio amplifying system).

*Briefly, 100% selectivity is given a set able to show absolute 10 K. C. channel separation from end to end of the dial even though the interfering signal is twice as powerful as the wanted signal (40 K. C. band, measured with 100 times input at resonance at 1,400 K. C.). Sensitivity is considered 100% in a receiver requiring one microvolt per meter average input (measured at 600, 1,000 and 1,400 K. C.). 100% audio quality rating is given that set amplifying equally all frequencies over the useful frequency range (measured at 60, 500, and 5,000 cycles).

Under this exacting test the Grebe Receiver as shown in the chart rates 93% for selectivity, 88% for sensitivity and 82% for audio quality, a total average overall rating of 87-6/10%. The next nearest performance delivered by a set measured 74%, the next 58-7/10% and so on down the scale.

*(Full details, together with quick conversion chart, will be forwarded to any individual interested technically.)

No Advertising During New Filmland Series, Announcement Says

A "Voices from Filmland" series over the Columbia chain is planned to begin Monday, Jan. 6, and to continue for many weeks.

The program will come from the studios of KHJ, Los Angeles, and special wires will be run to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. In addition to movie stars, three orchestras are scheduled on each program, including Earl Burtnett's Biltmore orchestra, as well as two vocal quartets and the Biltmore Trio. The programs will be sponsored by the Purity Bakeries Corporation.

"There will be no advertising during the chain program itself," says an announcement. "Every minute will be devoted to high-grade entertainment."

Ohio School of Air Off Until Jan. 6

Ohio's School of the Air was dismissed for the holidays on Dec. 13, to resume broadcasts again through WLW, on Monday, Jan. 6. The Monday and Friday periods, however, will be conducted by B. H. Darrow, radio director of Ohio.

In the interim, WLW will adopt the following schedule from 1 to 2 p. m.:

Tuesday.
1 p. m.—Crosley Cossack Orchestra.
1:30 p. m.—Harriet and Ted in a Little Bit of Harmony.
Wednesday.
1 p. m.—The Doodlesockers.

At St. Louis Airfields

SALES agencies for Ryan planes are to be established in every town with a population of 10,000 or more, John C. Nulsen, head of the Ryan Aircraft Co., announces.

With a view to establishing agents capable of giving service on planes, Nulsen is seeking successful automobile dealers as representatives of his company. According to present plans, dealers in the larger cities will be required to maintain a demonstrating plane. In the smaller towns a factory demonstration plane will be placed on exhibition periodically. All agencies will be authorized to sell planes on time payments.

Nulsen also announced that a smaller Ryan brougham is to be manufactured after the first of the year. Details concerning this plane will be announced later.

Aircraft Exposition.

Plans for the International Aircraft Exposition, to be held at The Arena Feb. 15 to 23, will be discussed at a meeting Wednesday of the Chamber of Commerce at which Maj. Clarence Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, will be the principal speaker. Cliff Henderson, promoter of the recent air races at Cleveland, who will be in charge of the exhibition, has opened headquarters at Hotel Jefferson. He will be assisted by a committee of 100 business men. The show is expected to attract 250 exhibits.

Finding Jobs for Students.

The Von Hoffmann Flying School is planning to advertise its graduates to prospective employers. Monthly bulletins describing graduates will be sent to airplane factories, operating companies and plane owners.

Price of Course Increased.

The cost of the transport course at Parks Air College will be increased from $3715 to $4500 effective Jan. 25. In defense of the high tuition, officers of the school point out that the course can be completed in a year and that the student is then ready to find a job, while in other professions demanding college training students must devote four or more years to their studies before going to work. New equipment costing $18,000 has been added to the Parks Air College shop.

Air Line Has 20 Rail Connections.

T. A. T.-Maddux Airlines now exchange passengers with more than 20 railroads. Air travel tickets are now sold by the Wabash, Kansas City Southern, Norfolk & Western, New York, New Haven & Hartford, Illinois Terminal, Missouri Pacific railroads, Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroads. In addition, 15 railroads are under agreement to accept reservations for the T. A. T.-Maddux service.

A two-day service between New York and San Francisco was started Thursday by T. A. T.-Maddux lines. Westbound passengers complete the trans-continental trip to Los Angeles and board a late afternoon plane for San Francisco. Eastbound passengers leave San Francisco at 7:15 a. m. and connect with the transcontinental plane at Barstow, Cal.

Lambert Field Visitors.

Visitors to Lambert-St. Louis Field during the week included: L. E. Stone, Huntington, W. Va.; W. A. Winston, New York City; L. H. Rhiner, Kansas City; J. L. Kinney and E. L. Ryan for Latin America.

The Pickwick Latin American Airways, Inc., bought its eleventh Ryan brougham last week. Pilot Russell Young ferried the plane to the Mexican border.

Two Dispatchers Sold.

Sales of two Parks Dispatcher biplanes was announced during the week by Ray Brown, sales manager. One ship was bought by W. T. Ponder, World War flyer of Fort Worth, Tex., and the other by Charles Waters of Alexandria, La., a graduate of Parks Air College. The Dispatcher, with Whirlwind engine, is priced at $6350.

Air Sickness Reduced.

Records kept by T. A. T.-Maddux airlines show that the number of airsick passengers has decreased from 7 to 3 per cent in recent months. There is no record of a passenger being forced to leave a plane at an intermediate point because of air sickness.

"Quiet Birdmen."

A St. Louis chapter of "Quiet Birdmen," a national pilots' organization, is to be established. Membership is by invitation. Col. Lindbergh is a member of the society.

New Pilots Graduated.

Seven graduates of Parks Air College were licensed as limited commercial pilots following examination by Inspector Wiggs last week. The new pilots are: William Mark, Toronto, Canada; Harold Koehler, Overland, Kan.; Roy Dodd, Zanesville, O.; Dwight Gordon, West Peru, Me.; Frank Auernig, Newark, N. J.; Charles Woodruff, Sidney, N. Y., and Erle Ricks, Waldo, Ark.

New students enrolling at Parks during the week included Isadore Romano of Cuba.

Graduate Buys Plane.

James Gillette, a graduate of the Von Hoffmann Flying School, was licensed as a transport pilot during the week. He plans to fly in Florida during the winter.

Nelson Gay of Winchester, Ky., another Von Hoffmann, graduate has purchased a plane and plans to carry passengers in his home town.

Back in School.

P. A. Eklund of Attleboro, Mass., is taking his recent course of study at Universal Flying School. He completed his primary training last March, engaged in commercial flying during the summer, and has returned to take the refresher course designed for licensed pilots.

Takes Robin to New York.

Gentry Shelton ferried a new Robin to New York last week for the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co.

Gliders for Students.

Two gliders have been purchased by Parks Air College for use of instructors and indications point to the addition of a glider course to the curriculum. Edward S. Evans, president of the Detroit Aircraft Corporation, of which the Parks College is a unit, estimates that 1,000,000 persons will be piloting gliders within five years.

Six Canadians Enroll.

Six Canadians are now enrolled at the Universal Flying School. The latest additions to the Canadian contingent are Charles Pascoe, Fairview, Alta., and Albert Detert, from Saskatchewan.

Seeking Plane Dealers.

Jack McMillan, test pilot, and A. E. McManus Jr., sales director for the St. Louis Aircraft Corporation, are touring Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas in a Cardinal monoplane seeking dealers for the Cardinal.

To Exhibit Dispatcher.

J. W. Williams, a salesman for Parks planes, departed Wednesday in a Parks Dispatcher for Mexico City, Mexico, where the plane will be exhibited during National Aerial week.

Testing Wasp-Engined Ryan.

The second Wasp-engined Ryan brougham is now being tested by "Red" Harrigan. The Wasp-Ryan has a top speed of 150 miles an hour and is expected to become popular with transportation companies using single-engined planes.

Upper Air Weather Tests.

Director Schmidt of the Lambert-St. Louis Field weather observatory is awaiting instructions from Washington to make the high altitude weather tests announced last month. Balloons carrying instruments recording pressure, temperature and other conditions will be sent up and are expected to reach an altitude of eight miles.

Aviation Show Here to Attract Foreign Builders

Nine-Day Exhibit at Arena, Feb. 15 to 23, Will Be Largest of Year.

The International Aircraft Exposition sponsored by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., will bring the latest products of the world's aeronautical engineering genius to St. Louis, Feb. 15 to 23, for a colorful exhibition.

Plans for the aircraft industry's biggest show of the year are being whipped into shape by a corps of workers under the direction of Clifford W. Henderson, manager of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce show section. The Arena will provide space for 250 exhibits of aircraft, engines and accessories.

Several foreign exhibitors have signified their intention of shipping planes to St. Louis for the show.

It will be the first time since December, 1928, that the Aeronautical Chamber has staged an international show. The 1928 exposition was held at Chicago in conjunction with the International Civil Aeronautics Conference called by President Coolidge to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first flight.

The St. Louis exposition will be the only class A show sponsored or sanctioned by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce during 1930, according to Charles L. Lawrence, chairman of the chamber's Show Committee. This is in conformity with the policy adopted by the committee for one national or international exposition a year, two or three class B regional shows, and such local class C shows as the committee deems profitable to the advancement of the industry and its promotion of interest in aviation.

An elaborate pageant portraying the evolution of transportation from its earliest history to man's triumphant conquering of the air is being planned as one of the features of the exposition. The pageant will be staged in the central building of The Arena amid the largest planes on display, and will provide a historical background for the exhibits.

Two wings extending from the central building of The Arena will house dozens of exhibits, showing the 1930 refinements in accessories and equipment for airplane operators. The air transport lines, which link almost every large city in the country and serve a territory with a 90,000,000 population, will have elaborate exhibits showing the progress that has been made in raising air transport to a new level of luxury and service, unexcelled by any other mode of transportation.

Arrangements are being made to provide an aerial taxi service from a field adjoining the exposition buildings to the larger St. Louis airports, where demonstrations of all planes on display will be made to prospective buyers and connections with the scheduled transport lines can be made.

Durant Heroes of the World drama, at 6 p. m. The tragedy of Gen. James Wolfe, who inspired the famous siege and capture of Quebec from the French troops under Montcalm but died in the hour of his triumph, will be dramatized. At the time in American colonial history the French and English armies were wrestling for the vast territory now known as Canada. Wolfe conceived a plan of assault on the mighty fortress of Quebec, a plan so daring that his advisers seek to discourage him. His will prevails, however. Listeners, it is said, will be given an arresting word picture of that thrilling day when British mastery of the great country to the north was definitely established on the Plains of Abraham.

Pictures of the heroes portrayed in these radio dramas, among them Franklin, Lincoln, Lafayette, John Paul Jones and others, are to be presented to public schools by the company sponsoring the broadcasts. Angelo Patri, in a statement, has said that these broadcasts serve a useful purpose in taking to the people of America clearer pictures of almost legendary characters.

Use of Old Automobile Generator.

An automobile generator may be used for charging "A" batteries. Generally the output of an automobile generator varies from 10 to 20 amperes. This is a higher rate than required by a radio battery, due to the heavier drain imposed by the starter in a car.

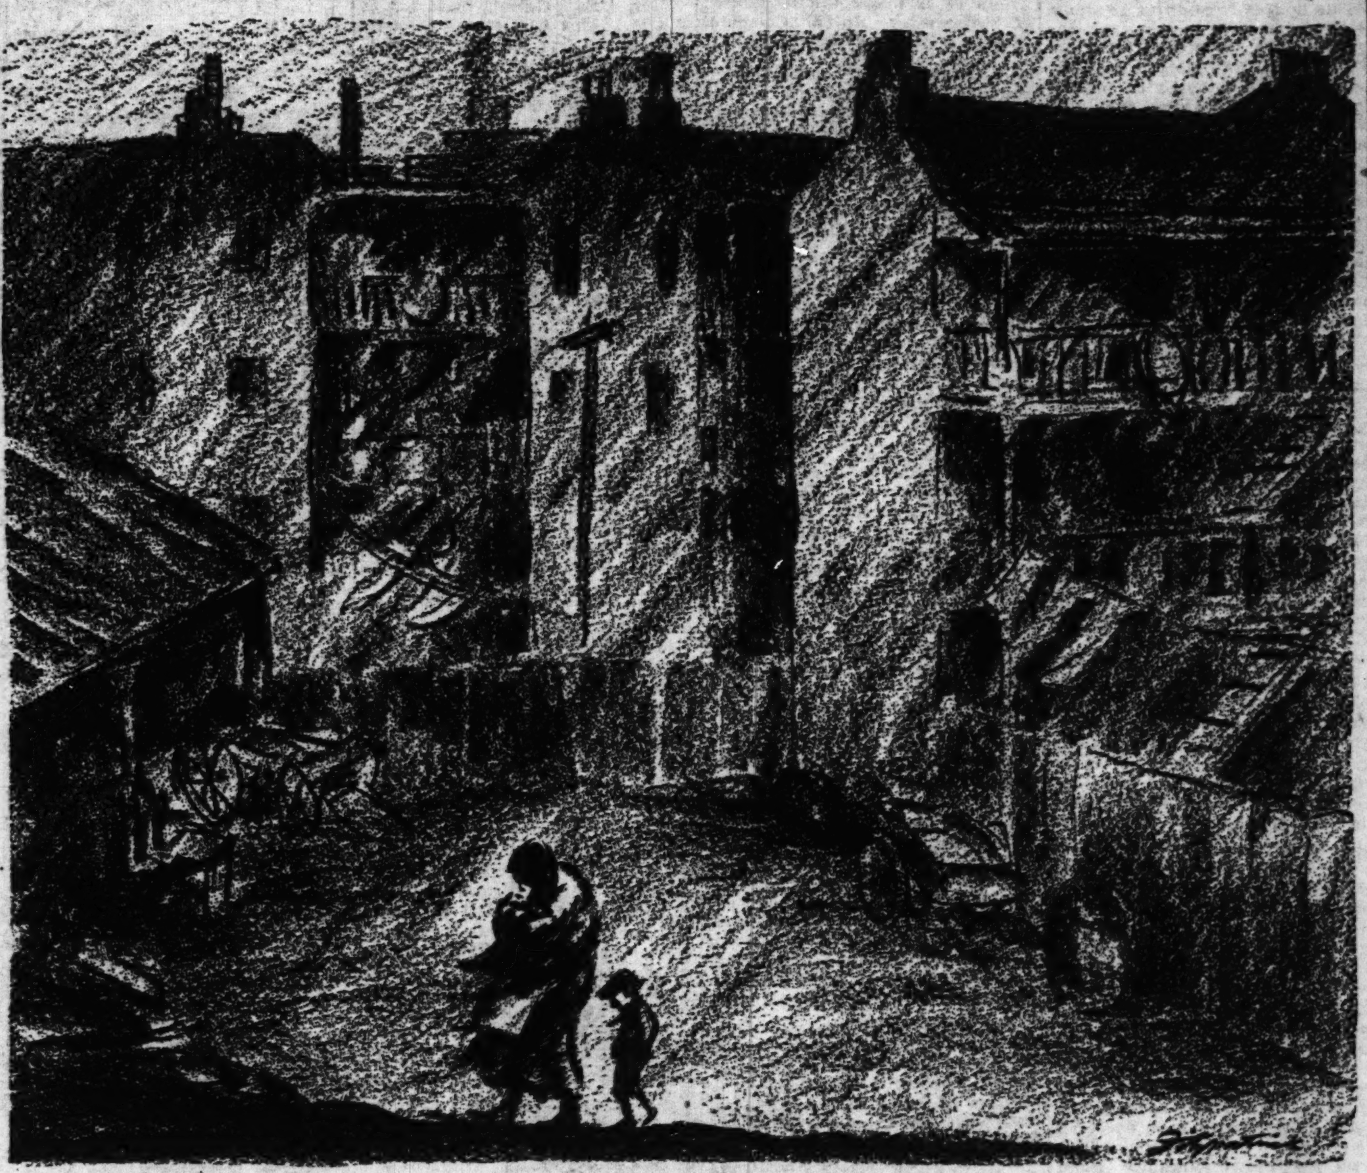
"Why Don't We Have a Santa Claus?"



N THOUSAND boys and girls f St. Louis would have none of he joys belonging to Christmas were not for the Post-Dispatch stmas Festival.

hink that over and try to prehend fully just what it ns.

your home—and in the homes your friends—there is not a on from the one with most hority to the most menial, and uestionably not a child who gifts on Christmas eve and istmas morning, who lacks m, clean clothing and the glad- of receiving the unexpected hoped for shares in Santa s' store of Christmas cheer.

t in other homes, thousands them, Christmas gifts are un- inable luxuries. There is no ghtly-lit Christmas tree, no glad lic about its drooping branches ghted down with presents for ryone.

he picture by Mr. Fitzpatrick, Post-Dispatch cartoonist, on page presents the situation in triking fashion. There is the dreary place to live. All the llings are the same. The fig- s in the alleyway foreground resent a typical case.

he mother, no doubt, is a ow. Her husband was killed he factory. She must care for small son and the baby in her s. She was left nothing for to live on.

Scrubs at Night.

t night after the people who downtown offices all day have e home to rest and recreation, scrubs hallways on the top rs. She is thankful for the essities of life when she has m. Christmas presents are in unemployed realm. No wonder little boy huddled over behind is asking, "Why don'e WE e a Santa Claus?"

t is for her children and the d ones of thousands of mothers and fathers like her in St. s that there is such an agency Christmas hospitality as the t-Dispatch Christmas Festival.

Obviously the work is one ich costs money. Picture and y books, dolls, fancy colored ber balls, bright and noisy ns, barrels of candy, warm caps hese things can not be had sim- y wishing. A large sum must raised through the contribu- s of all those who are able to re small sums with their needy ow-residents.

This is the thirtieth year of the tival. It has always been a mmunity enterprise. The Post- patch is the medium through ich the community is enabled provide this annual act of the ristmas cheer. Those who have e with those who have not. ly, the Festival makes certain t all children not otherwise pro- ed for need not experience ristmas without its joy.

30 Good Fellows.

The Executive Committee of 30 ominent citizens who handle the rious tasks connected with pro- ding such a large party as that the Coliseum likewise give their e and effort to make the Fes- l a joy-spreader among needy ildren.

The Festival needs your help. It eds whatever you can give. In e past the bulk of the fund has en made up of small coins given working people who at Christ- s time feel the urge to do for e least of these" and who are d to use the Festival as a means that end. The democratic na- re of the Festival fund makes ations of all sizes welcome. The ographer who spares a quar- and the banker who writes a eck for $100 are each doing their t toward making the Festival success.

It will not lessen your Christ- s joy to contribute; it will cause to increase. We find our Christ- s cheer—true Christmas cheer in what we give away. What u give will go to make that long of children from the Levee to e County, and their worn mothers d discouraged fathers more peful of the future on Christmas y. The kindness of your act ll make the pleasure of your enty a sweeter joy.

During the last week 30 young omen have been distributing sub- ription lists throughout St. Louis. These lists are the sole means of aising money for the Festival. The tention is to see that every one ho desires to contribute has the portunity to do so. Lists have en left in offices, stores, fac- ries, shops and other business es- blishments. No doubt, through advertance, some who would like give have been missed in the tribution of lists. A phone call o CEntral 5683 will get a list to yone.

No Solicitors Hired.

Donors are reminded that the ost-Dispatch does not employ so- itors. All contributions should mailed or sent by the donor's messenger to the cashier of the Post-Dispatch. In case the contributor desires to have a representative of the Post-Dispatch call, that can be arranged by ringing the above number. Every contribution will be acknowledged in the columns of the Post-Dispatch.

For the last month the executive committee, headed by A. M. Roth, general chairman, has been meeting regularly to plan the Festival. Under direction of Fred W. Pape, Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, the Coliseum entertainment has been arranged.

The Coliseum doors will open at 8:30 o'clock Christmas morning, a half hour before the band concert begins. After a half-hour program of band music, more than 50 clowns and acrobats will flock into the arena to amuse the throng of children until 10 o'clock when the doors will be closed and the first moving picture begins. Thereafter movie reels and pieces of band music will alternate.

Tickets which will be distributed at places designated elsewhere on this page will also provide transportation. The Public Service Co. contributes to the success of the Festival by providing free passage to and from the Coliseum to all children who hold tickets to the Festival.

Some More Who Help.

There are many other donations. The Universal Film Co. will provide the moving pictures. Office space for the list distribution headquarters was furnished by the management of the Paul Brown Building. The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has donated phone service.

The use of busses to convey crippled children to the Coliseum has been offered by the Pickwick-Greyhound Bus Lines. In order to cheer homeless men of St. Louis and those in its institutions, such as the Municipal Lodging House and the Workhouse, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. has volunteered to donate 1440 packages of tobacco.

Robert D. Corlett, chairman of the Gifts Committee, and his assistant, George Menkel, have brought and will supervise the distribution of toys and candy. C. J. Kehoe and C. L. Cunningham will see that pipes and tobacco get to the homeless men.

Many members of the Executive Committee have been at their work each Christmas for years. Veteran chairmen of the door, hall, lost children, auto transportation, medical aid, ticket distribution and general transportation committees and their aids will see that their duties are handled smoothly.

Two Chiefs on Job.

Fire Chief Alt and Chief of Police Gerk as in the past will lend their help to the success of the Festival. As a matter of precaution, an ambulance from the City Hospital will be in readiness at the Coliseum for an emergency call. The St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts will be represented by details from several troops to help in handling the throngs of boys and girls who will descend on the scene of the Festival.

The personnel of the various committees which are planning and will direct the Festival are as follows:

How Last Year's Fund Was Spent.

A report on the audit of the books of the Festival for last year as made by Ben S. Lang, member of the Festival Committee and auditor of the accounts, has been made as follows:

"To the Executive Committee of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund:

"As chairman of the Audit and Finance Committee of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Fund, I submit the following statement of receipts and disbursements for the festival of the year 1928:

Receipts.
Contributions	$16,955.54
Post-Dispatch contribution	500.00
From Post-Dispatch to pay administration expense	3,552.98
Balance in bank with interest	1,209.70
Deficit paid by Post-Dispatch	3,574.18
Total	$25,792.40
Disbursements.
Baskets	$14,109.87
Toys and gifts	4,604.33
Coliseum festival	3,525.22
From Post-Dispatch to pay administration expense	3,552.98
Total	$25,792.40

"I have examined the book and accounts of the treasurer of the fund, Dumont Jones, cashier of the Post-Dispatch, and find them correct. All contributions to the fund were received, entered on the books and acknowledged in the columns of the Post-Dispatch.

"All supplies, labor and other necessaries for the festival were on requisition of the chairman of the various committees, ordered by the chairman of the Supply Committee after the approval of the Executive Committee.

"All bills were approved by the chairman of the committees and paid on vouchers signed for the Executive Committee and the Post-Dispatch by George S. Johns.

"Every dollar expended, therefore, is accounted for by an approved bill and a signed and approved voucher.

"The accounts show that besides its contribution of $500 the Post-Dispatch paid all the expense of the administration, including salaries of office help, distribution, etc., typewriting, stationery, postage and committee expenses, which amounted to $3552.98 and the deficit in contributions of $3574.18. Thus all of the money expended from the fund was applied to the actual necessaries of the several divisions of the festival.

"I was pleased to note the efficient system of which the festival was conducted and the economy and accuracy with which the fund was administered.

"BENJAMIN S. LANG,
"Vice president Franklin-American Trust Co.
"Chairman Audit and Finance Committee.
"St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30, 1929."

PATHETIC NOTE IN MANY LETTERS SENT SANTA CLAUS

Consideration for Others Shown in Many Missives to Post-Dispatch Festival Committee.

To many St. Louisans, both large and small, Santa Claus and the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival, are one and the same, or at least so closely allied that they think of them together.

That fact has been strongly apparent in the mail which the Post-Dispatch has been receiving. Youngsters just barely able to write have printed their messages to "Santa Claus, North Pole, Post-Dispatch." Mothers who know that they will not be able to provide Christmas cheer for their loved ones write the Festival Committee for assistance.

Nearly all the children remind Santa Claus that they have been good little girls and boys. Many a thoughtful child has written not only for himself but also for grandmother and auntie and the other "poor children in our block."

The faith of childhood is a feature of the letters, as witness the following:

"Dear Santa Claus:

"Please do not forget us. We are four children and Mother and Dad. If you forget us, I know we won't have any Christmas."

"Dear Santa Claus:

"My name is Andy and my brother name is William. I am writing you, so if in any case there should be too many other little boys and girls, that you will not forget us. We love toys but we need clothes more, but we would be very glad, Santa, for anything you give us."

"Dear Santa Claus:

"I have the chicken pox and won't get to come down to see you this year. Please bring me anything that you want to. I should like a steam shovel."

"Dear Santa Claus:

"I would be very glad if you would send me something for Christmas. I would like a new pair of shoes, coat and some candy. If I could have these I would be very happy.

This is from a mother:

"Please see that my four little children get something for Christmas. Their father is in the hospital, and it is all that I can do to feed them. Anything you would do for them I would surely appreciate."

Two little boys have sent in brightly colored drawings of Santa Claus. Not all the letters have come from St. Louis. One little girl as far away as New Madrid, Mo., has written to tell what she wants.

These indications of faith in something that is fine is what the Festival endeavors to foster and keep alive among a class of boys and girls whose circumstances in life tend early to break down childhood's idealism.

Contributors to the Festival fund share in this work.

SPANISH-PORTUGUESE PIG ROW

Lisbon Market Glutted With Pork as Result of Embargo.

LISBON, Dec. 14.—A pig war has broken out between Spain and Portugal. The crisis, though of long standing, came to a head only recently when Spain began discriminating against Portuguese pigs.

As the result of the Spanish embargo, the market is glutted with pigs, causing a sharp fall in prices. Many hog breeders have been ruined. The Spanish Government claims that Portuguese pigs are tainted with disease and says they will be forbidden admittance until they can produce clean bills of health. The Lisbon Government retorts that there is nothing wrong with the pigs, and refers to the fact that nearly half of the population of Portugal consumes pork daily without ill-effects.

Washington U.-Y. M. H. A. Debate.

A debating team representing Ken Mair, Washington University debating society, will meet a representative girls' team of the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A. next Saturday night in the latter's auditorium. The subject will be "Resolved: That this house condemns the influence of the Church on American politics." Washington University will uphold the affirmative.

Missouri Census Supervisors Named

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Supervisors for the 1930 census, their districts and headquarters, announced yesterday by the Director of the Census, included Robert J. Grover, Warrensburg, Mo., for Bates, Cass, Cedar, Dade, Henry, Johnson, St. Clair counties, with headquarters at Warrensburg.

IRISH EMIGRATION DECLINES

Movement to U. S. Last Year 8000 Under Quota.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Dec. 14.—The rate of emigration from the Free State to the United States is steadily declining. For the year ended June, 1929, there were 8000 fewer emigrants than the quota allowed. In July of this year the quota was reduced to 17,000, and the figures for the succeeding months show that even this exceeds the number of emigrants. The number of visas granted dropped to 200 below the quota estimated for each month. Even if every applicant were passed the quota would not be filled.

The American Consul-General in Dublin, Cornelius Ferris, stated that lately intending emigrants have been of a lower type, and he has rejected many for physical defects or illiteracy. He suggested that the reason for a lower type of applicant is that able-bodied men are able now to make a decent living at home.

CLASSES IN SIGNALING TO BE HELD EACH WEEK

Boys Will Receive Instruction Every Saturday to Aid Them in Tests.

Instruction classes in Morse and semaphore signaling, and in the Indian sign language will be conducted every Saturday hereafter this winter in each of the four districts of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council in order to assist scouts who are working to pass tests in this subject during the achievement roundup being held by the council, according to Educational Director William Puffer.

The signaling classes which start next Saturday will be part of a series intended to help scouts with the more difficult tests, Puffer said. This series will include such subjects as first aid, nature study, cooking and map-making, while the classes are not intended to make it possible for the students to pass the tests immediately, they will furnish enough knowledge so that the scout may work up his test requirements more easily and rapidly than if he were forced to learn by himself.

The classes will be held at 10 o'clock each Saturday morning in all districts. Those in the North District will meet at the Farragut School; those in the South at the Fanning School; in the West at the Ben Blewett Junior High School, and in the Suburban at the First National Bank, Webster Groves. The West and Suburban district meeting places were first announced at the Clark School and the Webster Groves High School, respectively, but the council was unable to obtain use of these two places for every Saturday morning.

The Achievement Roundup, a preliminary to the annual Boy Scout Circus, which will be held at The Arena, Feb. 28 and March 1, was started Dec. 1 with a drive to obtain new members. The second phase, the passing of tests, was announced last week, while two more parts will be announced later.

Meeting of the scoutmasters to discuss the progress of the roundup were held in the North, South and West Districts last week. Two troops in the North District, Troops 56 and Ferguson 2, have already completed their membership objective, Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss of that district reported. Seventeen other troops are due to re-register this month: Troops 50, 53, 89, 103, 114, 120, 145, 146, 156, 172, 190, 196, 222, 237, 238, 239 and 243. The district objective is 2000 scouts enrolled by Dec. 31.

Leaders of the South District met at the Winnebago Presbyterian Church, Tuesday evening to receive further details of the test-passing phase of the roundup. This latter was presented by Puffer, while talks also were made on the membership roundup by Scout Executive Earle W. Beckman of the council. Scouts from Troop 155, under the leadership of Scoutmaster C. S. Pollack, gave a stunt entitled "Amos and Andy."

The West District meeting was held at the Pilgrim Congregational Church Thursday evening. Both Puffer and Beckham gave talks similar to those made at the South District meeting. Field Executive S. C. Reaves reported that three West District Troops, Troops 23, 54 and 138, have already attained their quota of new members. Troop 138 was only recently organized at the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, and consists entirely of crippled boys, most of them bedfast.

Troop Notes

North District.

Seventy-five parents and friends of the scouts attended a Parents' Night conducted by Troop 8 at Grace Holy Cross Church Monday evening. The troop departed from the usual procedure of Parents' Nights in that in addition to stunts being performed by each of the three patrols, the Bob Whites, the Wolves, and the Flying Eagles, the entire troop combined to present another stunt, while the Bob Whites and Flying Eagles also gave another joint demonstration. The troop orchestra played several numbers on kazoos, and contests of different kinds were held. Talks were given by E. H. Schultz, chairman of the North District; Commissioner William Crusius, Field Executive H. M. Nusser and Scoutmaster Simons. The troop has almost reached its quota of new scouts in the membership roundup.

A play, "School Days," was staged by Troop 130 of Zion Evangelical Church, in co-operation with a Girl Scout troop meeting at the same church Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Both nights the play drew capacity audiences. Field Executives H. N. Nusser and L. L. Hotchkiss attended Wednesday evening. Troop 130 reregistered 100 per cent of last year's membership. The scouts are now working to enlist 10 new recruits before the end of the year.

Troop 156 of St. Casimer's Church is working on its reregistration for 1930 and in addition is attempting to increase its membership over that of last year. As one of the steps of reregistration, Scoutmaster Sumers and Assistant Scoutmaster Sullivan are reorganizing the patrols.

Troop 199, which is sponsored by the Men's Club of Nelson Presbyterian Church, Pine Lawn, has already obtained two of the six new members taken as its quota to be signed during the membership roundup. In the advancement phase of the achievement roundup, four second-class Scouts are working to become first-class; five tenderfoot Scouts are endeavoring to advance ot second-class, and the one first-class Scout of the troop is trying to win a merit badge. The Scotus of this troop have accepted the good turn of circularizing Pine Lawn for the Community Fund drive.

Patrol Leader Edward Knollman of the Rattlesnake Patrol was promoted to senior patrol leader of Troop 206 at the meeting of the troop at Ames School last week. Scout Wilfred Taylor was advanced to leadership of the Rattlesnakes to fill the vacancy left by Knollman's appointment. The troop is planning an open meeting to be held in the school kindergarten tomorrow evening. Parents of the Scouts have been invited to attend. Ten "mavericks" have been selected by the troop for its quota to be obtained in the membership roundup before Jan. 1.

A reregistration meeting to reorganize the troop for next year was held by Troop 243 at Salem Reformed Church last Monday evening. Deputy Commissioner J. P. Simons conducted the meeting, while Chairman Fred Hackmann of the troop committee was also present and gave a talk. A campaign for new members was also started.

South District.

Fifty parents and friends of the scouts of Troop 68 attended a parents' night conducted by the troop at its headquarters, the Mount Pleasant School, a week ago Friday evening. Each of the three patrols gave scouting demonstrations and had charge of an exhibit of scout work. Prizes were awarded for the best booths in the exhibits. Dr. R. C. Coleman, who is chairman of the South District, talked to the parents on the membership roundup being conducted by the St. Louis Council, and urged them to help the troop reach its goal of six new scouts by Dec. 31. Troop 68 is under the leadership of Scoutmaster Ralph Coleman, who took it over a few weeks ago.

Although the membership roundup being conducted by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council is only two weeks old, Troop 107 of Ebeneser Evangelical Church has already obtained its quota of five new scouts. The new members are: Philip Fabick, Roland Hargrove, Joseph Hartman, William Mann and Raymond Ziegler. The troop also has several other prospective recruits that will probably join before the roundup is over. By a coincidence, the troop had just started an achievement contest very similar to the one being conducted by the St. Louis council when the latter was announced, so the two were merged and are being run together.

A hike to Windsor Springs was taken by the troop last Sunday. Scouts Philip Fabick and William Mann passed their firebuilding and tracking tests; Roland Hargrove passed firebuilding, cooking and tracking, and Raymond Ziegler, James Wilcox, Orville Borchard and Kenneth Hehner passed firebuilding. Scout Hehner also passed second class cooking, while Dalmont Ziegler passed first-class cooking and Joseph Hartman passed tracking.

Scouts of Troop 168 of St. Pius Church acted as pallbearers and took part in the funeral services for Scout Joseph Callahan, a member of the troop, who died last Monday morning. Scout Callahan had only recently been taken into the troop—so recently that he had not yet been invested with his Tenderfoot badge. Although unconscious before he died, Scout Callahan was heard to repeat the scout oath and scout laws while in that state.

West District.

Deputy Commissioner E. N. Birge gave a lecture on and demonstrated artificial respiration at the meeting of Troop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregational Church a week ago Friday evening. Committeeman Evans took charge of the troop during the meeting, in the absence of Scoutmaster Langenberg. Patrol projects were exhibited at the meeting by the first, second, third and fifth patrols, the subjects covering silhouettes, basketry, leather work and insect study. A knot-tying contest was also held and games were played.

An overnight hike to Big Chief Inn on the Manchester road was taken by Troop 11 of the Y. M. H. A. two weeks ago. The scouts left Maplewood Saturday afternoon in a special bus, and after an hour's ride reached the place at which they were to camp. Games and contests were held, and dinner was cooked. A program of stunts and patrol entertainment was held around a council fire in the evening. Taps sounded at 9:30 o'clock. A hike through the woods to a quarry five miles away occupied most of Sunday morning.

The third annual parents' night of Troop 101 was held at the West Park Baptist Church, the troop headquarters, last Tuesday evening with the largest attendance in the history of the troop. The feature of the evening was comedy drama presented by the Scouts. The scene of the drama was laid in Pigeon Milk Canyon, the "home of contented meadow larks." After the play, speeches were made by Deputy Commissioner Audrey C. Lindsley, Field Executive S. C. Reaves and Chairman E. N. Birge of the Troop Committee. Executive Reaves awarded prizes to Scout winners of a troop achievement contest. First prize, which went to First Class Scout James Stoddard, was a silver medal engraved with the winner's name and a free trip to the winter camp at Irondale during the Christmas holidays. Patrol Leader Arthur Boroughs of the Flaming Arrow Patrol, won second prize, a haversack and a promotion to the post of Assistant Scoutmaster, to take effect as soon as he reaches his eighteenth birthday next September. Third prize, a hunting knife on which the winner's name is engraved, was awarded to Scout Honor Simpson. Scout George Baggott received honorable mention.

The troop has planned a hike for today, to be held regardless of weather. The Scouts will meet at the church at 6 o'clock this morning.

The Tiger Patrol demonstrated signaling, the Silver Foxes presented scouting activities and the Beavers demonstrated pioneering at a parents' night conducted by Troop 113 at the Church of the Messiah two weeks ago. A report of the troop activities for the last year also was read. It showed that at the 46 meetings held so far during 1929, the average attendance at each meeting was 21. A total of 76 visitors attended these meetings.

Elevator in Windsor Castle.

EIGHT NEW GIRL SCOUT TROOPS ORGANIZED

Mrs. Correll Quits Leaders' Association to Direct Council in East St. Louis.

Mrs. Althea Correll, president of the St. Louis Girl Scout Leaders' Association, has resigned her position to become director of the East St. Louis Girl Scout Council. She was formerly captain of Troop 1, Kirkwood.

Mrs. Correll will be succeeded by Miss Cecelia Orr, captain of Normandy 3, until the present term expires, Jan. 9, as Miss Janice Fenton, vice president of the organization, is unable to take over the presidency at this time. The next meeting of the association will be held at the St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, Jan. 9, when a new president will be elected.

Eight new Girl Scout troops were organized in St. Louis and vicinity during November, according to Miss Sampson, local director. They are: Troop 1, Luxemburg, meeting at the Hancock School under Capt. Lucille Oesterle; Troop 1, Baden, Baden School, Miss Ethel Achemeyer, captain; Troop 6, Biddick School, Mrs. Mary Nuckles, captain; Troop 14, Temple Shaare Emeth, Mrs. Genevieve Friedman, captain; Troop 42, Woerner School, Miss Gladys Kennel, captain; Troop 58, Longfellow School, Miss Carolyn Ansbro, captain; Troop 67, St. Francis Xavier School, Mrs. Louis Printy, captain; Troop 69, St. Stephens Church, Miss Etta Koester, captain.

Three other troops, Troops 47, 19 and 63, were reorganized and are now active again.

Forty prospective leaders of Girl Scout troops received Tenderfoot pins at the final meeting last Tuesday evening of the St. Louis Girl Scout leaders' training course, conducted for the last two months by the local Girl Scout Council, at Pilgrim Congregational Church. Those who had completed the course received pins from Miss Ruth Sampson, director of the council. The address of the evening was given by Miss Jenny Wahlert, deputy commissioner of the council and a member of the Council Educational Committee.

Another training course, for advanced leaders, will hold its final meeting of the year next Thursday, concluding its program with a "Christmas Whim Whams" festival at St. John's M. E. Church. The festival will include games, stunts, songs and folk-dancing. The class will resume its meetings Jan. 16.

SCOUTMASTERS' TRAINING COURSE ENDS THIS WEEK

After Vacation During Christmas Holidays It Will Be Resumed Jan. 6.

This week's meetings of the scoutmasters' training courses conducted by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council will be the last held this year. Two weeks' vacation will be taken during the holiday season, the courses resuming the week beginning Jan. 6.

Three different training courses are given by the council: One in the elements of scoutmastership, one in the principles of scoutmastership, for men who have taken the elementary course, and the third in the principles of first aid.

The eighth meeting of the elements course will be held in the auditorium of the Michael School tomorrow evening, and will be devoted to first-aid problems. The principles' course will hold its seventh meeting in the auditorium of the Stix School, also tomorrow evening, while the first-aid course will conduct its seventh meeting in the chemistry lecture room at the Washington University Medical School Wednesday evening.

Dr. William B. Lampe will speak on "Education for Character" at the principles' class, and Chester B. Curtis on "Character Values of Scouting, and How Obtained."

Why French Want to Visit U. S.

LAYS QUEER CRASHES OF PLANES TO METEORS

French Authority Thinks They Also May Cause Strange Explosions and Fires.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Meteors may be to blame for mysterious airplane accidents, strange explosions, forest fires and even bad weather, a noted French authority, Gen. Frederic Chapel, retired, declares.

He is the author of several works on meteors and astronomy and evolved his theory from investigation of many queer occurrences.

Red-hot meteors, or "falling stars," he thinks probably set up electrical disturbances as they sizzle through space. To illustrate their power, he has calculated that a two-ounce meteor, the size of a hazel nut, would travel 30 miles a second when approaching earth and have the force of a 500-ton train.

Meteors, says the General, are so numerous that they often form "bombardments." Most of them go into space or hit other planets, but on earth enough arrive to cause accidents such as that at Budapest recently, when a Hungarian girl was killed by a meteor on her way to a wedding.

In such fashion, the General reasons, airplanes may have been struck down or ships destroyed. He suggests also that meteors might explain many other phenomena such as the recent explosion at T of an army magazine when its of powder blew up without any parent cause.

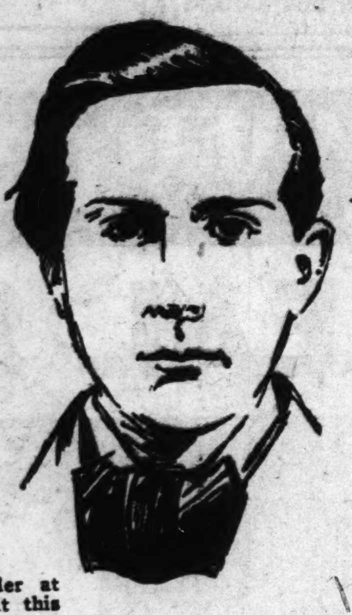
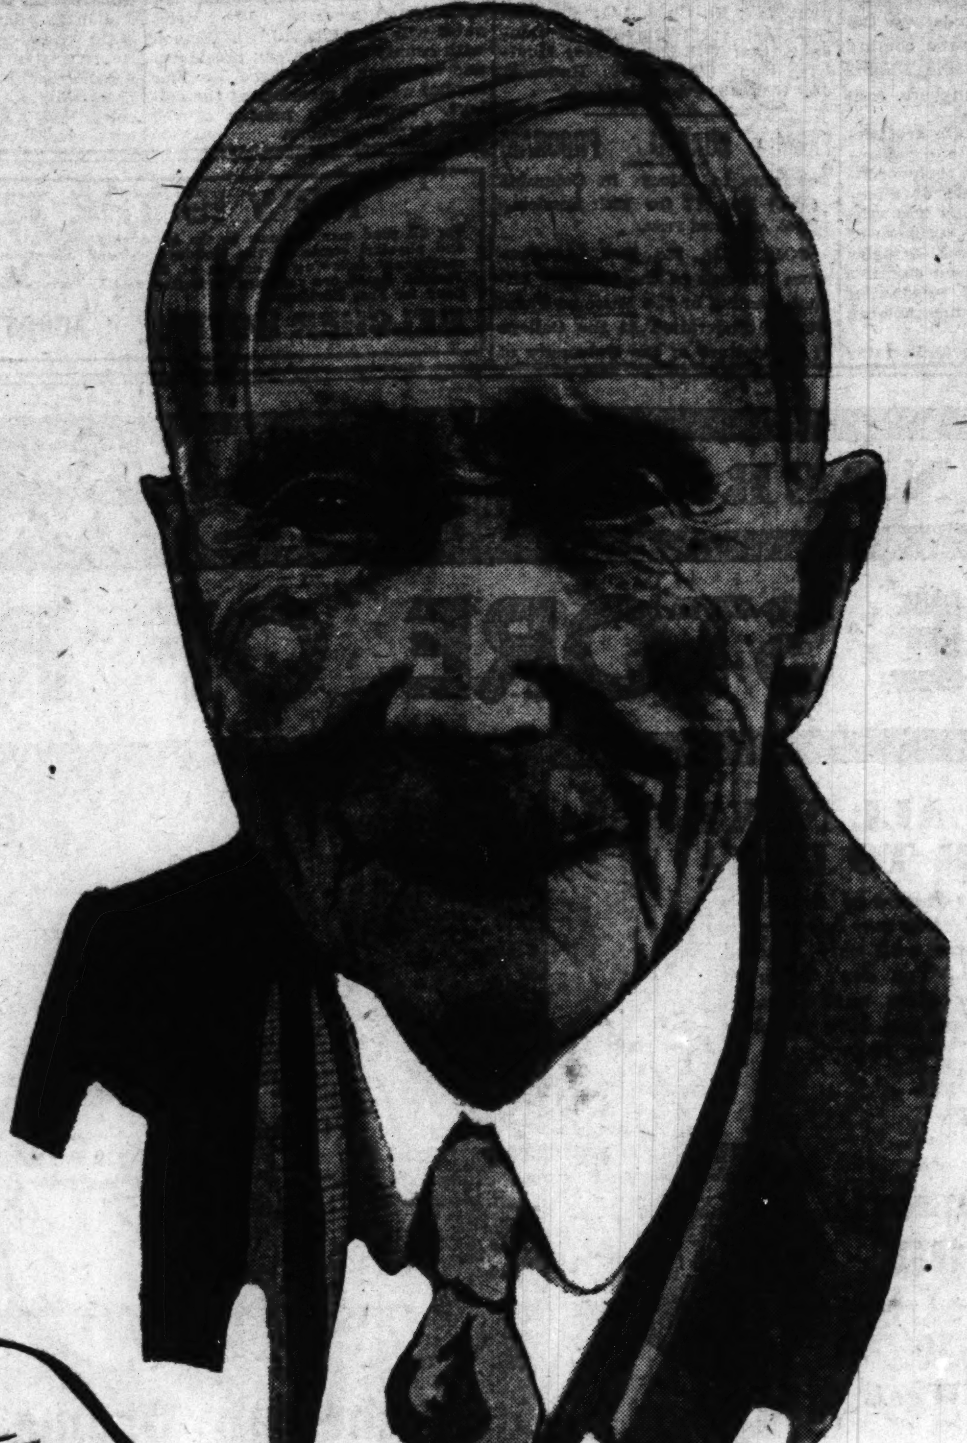
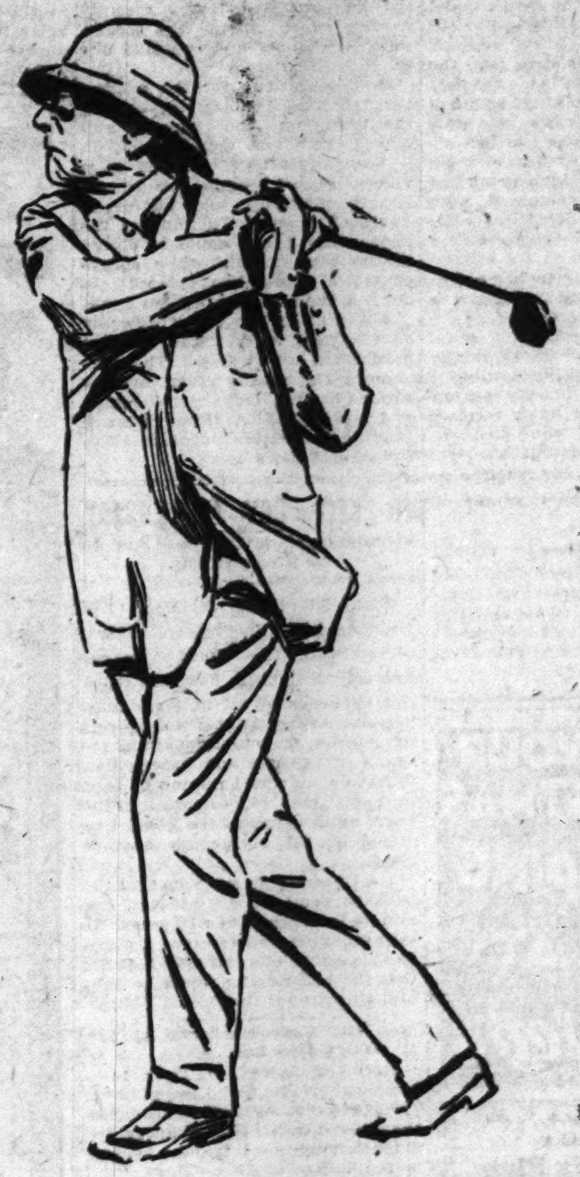
The Story of the Richest Man in the World

In the Post-Dispatch tomorrow begins the biography of one of the most amazing figures in the history of American business—John D. Rockefeller.



John D. Rockefeller at the age of 18. At this time he was working as a clerk in Cleveland.





In his ninetieth year Rockefeller still has the vigor to drive a golf ball 150 yards.

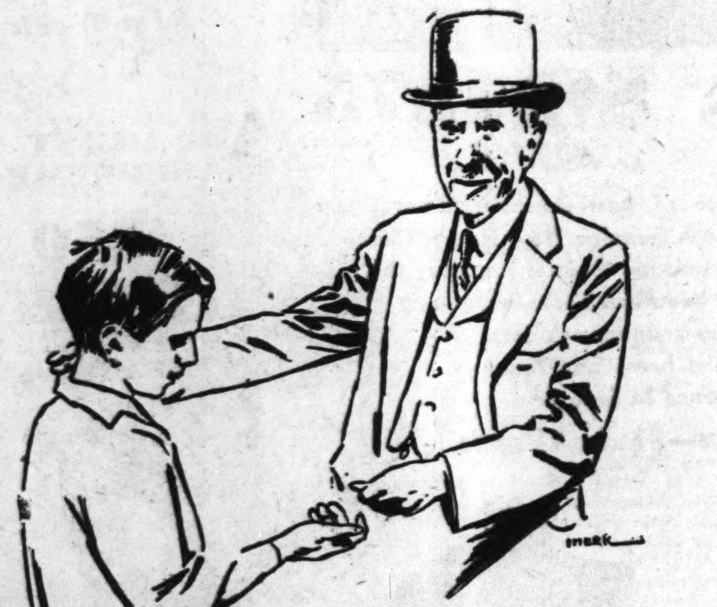
The Life of

John D. Rockefeller



Giving away a bright new dime—an act which has become a Rockefeller tradition.

Beginning with nothing, this shy, quiet, almost colorless man amassed the greatest personal fortune in the world. At the peak of his career, he dominated 33 oil companies and influenced the policies of more than 500 corporations, employing directly and indirectly 1,500,000 persons.

The lives of few men have aroused so much controversy. He has been called a public benefactor and a public enemy. He has been accused of mercilessly destroying men and organizations . . . of using his vast power with wanton corruptness and injustice. And he has been blessed for the half billion dollars he has given to philanthropic works and science.

What is the truth about this remarkable man? How did he make his fortune? What was his start in life? Why was he universally disliked at one time? Why did the world change its opinion of him? What does he think about at ninety? Why does he give dimes away? Is he happy?

John K. Winkler answers a lot of interesting questions about "John D." His information comes from intimate and reliable sources, and his biography is as vividly dramatic and interesting as the career of the "Oil King" himself.

Popularity of Roast Pig As Christmas Dish Gains

Little Demand for "Peewees" Throughout Year, But During Holidays They Top Hog Market.

If receipts are any criterion, then the old English custom of serving roast pig for Christmas dinners is reviving. Practically every day these small pigs, which weigh between 30 and 70 pounds, are seen on the East St. Louis market, ranging in price from $8.25 to $9.25.

While the "peewees" come from all sections, the supply is most abundant in the South. The proximity of St. Louis to the pig-producing sections of the South make it a favorable marketing center for "peewees." Although hog receipts are lighter this year than last, the supply of "peewees" is heavier, causing the prices to range as much as $1 under the prices paid this time a year ago. The run has included as many as 2000 in a single day this year. The high point last year was $10.50, compared with $9.50 for the high point this year. Both prices were given before Thanksgiving.

However, both seasons hog prices were better preceding Thanksgiving than they were afterwards. As a result, with the decline of hogs, peewee prices were in sympathy with them and declined accordingly.

Outside of the holiday season peewee receipts are light, farmers preferring to raise the stock to maturity than to accept the low prices. On occasions, near the holidays, the salesmen at the hog market will sort "peewees" from the loads and sell them separately as they sometimes bring better prices than do hogs. This was more true last year, when "peewees" sold up to 75c per hundred higher than hogs. In seasons after New Year's, particularly in the summer, they sell as much as $6 per hundred under the hog top. In these seasons the buyer may insist on sorting. Heavy receipts usually start about the second week in October and continue until New Year's.

In preparation for the market the "peewee" is dressed, leaving the head on the carcass, and placed, with feet outstretched, on a board. In this position it is placed in cold storage and frozen. Length of storage may be for 24 hours or longer. To improve the appearance a red apple is placed in the pig's mouth, while sprays of green parsley are placed to form a vivid contrast to the apple.

While shippers buy "peewees" on the local market, the heaviest purchasers are packers. The purchasers are usually clubs, organizations having large memberships, and large families, although small families sometimes purchase them for several day's use.

TO KEEP DRY ANNIVERSARY

Prohibitionists to Celebrate Jan. 16 by Ringing Bells.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WESTERVILLE, O., Dec. 14.—Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, has sent out a call to heads of all national temperance organizations; to officers of church denominations and to heads of colleges and universities, to have a universal ringing of bells at noon Jan. 16, celebrating the tenth anniversary of the going into effect of the eighteenth amendment.

Dr. Cherrington suggests that the bells be rung for 10 minutes, one minute for each of the 10 years. He said today he had received a sufficient number of replies to indicate that the bell ringing would be general throughout the United States.

Casey Goes to the Bat

Mary Hart to Be Leading Woman of Stock Company at the Orpheum Theater on Christmas Night—Genevieve Hamper Coming to the American in a Shakspearean Repertory Next Week, While the Shubert Will Present "Journey's End"—Both Local Legitimate Houses Are Without Shows This Week.

FOR the past 10 days a force of workmen have been engaged in re-vamping, if that is the word, the Orpheum Theater and getting it into shape for the coming of the Casey Stock Company, which will move into the house on Christmas night. Arthur Casey, who will conduct the venture here, has been in St. Louis for some days superintending that part of the work, and in the meantime Miss Mary Hart, leading woman of the company, has been conducting rehearsals in New York for the opening bill. She, and the other members of the cast, will arrive here during the coming week and continue their rehearsals on the Orpheum stage.

Casey, one of the best-known stock company managers in the country, is making a brave gesture. Getting away from the old line resident company idea of putting on a different old drama each week, he will devote two weeks to each play and, in this way, be able to provide the best of the latest successes which are available for stock work. The two weeks' royalties which he will pay will incline New York managers to release dramas for his use which they would not consider renting out for a single week. In addition, he plans to bring in visiting stars or members of the original casts to play with the stock company retained here. Two weeks' work will interest a good many New York actors in these perilous times of the stage where one week would not.

CASEY'S contract with the Orpheum Theater people calls for an opening season of 22 weeks and he will start the ball rolling with "The Bachelor Father," a comedy which was a great hit at the American Theater last season. Three members of the cast, seen here at that time, will be here for the first two weeks. Cyril Redmond, a well-known New York director, will act in that capacity with the local company.

And, in these days of declining legitimate stage offerings and mounting prices of admission, the Casey experiment will be of more interest to local showgoers as a result of his fixing the top price of admission at one dollar. If he can give good, up-to-date plays, play them well and do it at that price, his success here is assured.

✡ ✡ ✡ ✡

BOTH the American and Shubert are again dark this week, but starting Monday night, Dec. 23, the former house will have Genevieve Hamper in a Shakspearean repertory. She will present "The Merchant of Venice," on Monday night and at the Wednesday, Christmas day, matinee; "Romeo and Juliet" Tuesday night and Saturday matinee; "As You Like It" Wednesday night; "Hamlet" Thursday night; "Macbeth" Friday night and "Julius Caesar," Saturday night.

THE same week the Shubert will present one of the big hits of the year in "Journey's End," a play which has broken, along with box office high water marks, most of the rules of play writing.

There exists a proverb among theatrical managers that a person who can successfully distinguish between hits and failures in plays judged from their manuscripts is worth a million dollars a year to any producer. The proponents of this theory are quite willing to admit that they cannot tell what will become a successful play from a mere reading of the script, yet these same producers have time and again maintained that they can give you a formula of what a potential success must contain. Producers will tell you that first a play must treat of an unusual subject. There is no stereotyped formula for the subject, but there are certain taboos.

The next ingredient in a play should contain plenty of what is known as "love interest." A stirring love story which, definitely planted in the first act should progress steadily to a happy climax in the third, is most essential. The inclusion of one or two other minor counter love plots aid in sustaining this interest in Eros. Another aid, although not extremely essential, is that the first topic must be pleasant. For, while certain tragedies may be successful, Cinderella still proves the most sure-fire of all intrigues.

To have a star, and in this case is meant not so much a great performer as one who has drawing power to a box office, is a tremendous advantage. Where a play calls for no star, but needs generally rounded-out performances, well-known featured players should be secured by the producer. To encourage the patronage of women, and in this instance one is told that it is the women who constitute the greater part of the theatergoing public, lovely gowns and costumes for the lady protagonists help dress the production. These

Making Her Screen Bow in "The Locked Door"

Barabara Stanwyck, Mrs. Frank Fay, in mystery picture at Loew's this week.

A DRAMATIST IS SURPRISED

By R. C. Sherriff

WHEN my first play, "Journey's End," was rather cordially received by the British press shortly after the British Stage Society gave it a production early in December, there was perhaps no one in the United Kingdom more surprised than its author. I had thought that I had written an honest play but surely not one about which the press would make the to-do that it did.

When there appeared an offer to take the play from the Arts Theater to the West End and to substitute the semiprofessional cast with well-known players, I was highly gratified, naturally, but I did have the feeling that it was a case of Alice in Wonderland and that I should wake up some morning and find that it had all been a dream and a pack of cards of which I was probably the deuce of clubs.

When at its second showing in London the very same critics who had witnessed the play before it came away from the Savoy Theater where Mr. Maurice Brown, who had but recently gone into management, made a presentation, unconvinced that they had made an error in their first reviews, I was almost beside myself with joy.

But it remained for Mr. Gilbert Miller, whose London productions I had enjoyed so often, to fill my cup of happiness to the overflowing. And that was when he announced that he had bought the rights for America and would make a presentation in the New World. For here after all was the last word (to me at any rate) or proof of a worldly success.

IN order that I may make myself thoroughly understood, I shall be forced to tell you a few things about myself and the play. To begin with, I am not an old hand at playwriting, nor am I, professionally speaking, of the world of the theater. Since the war, in which I served as enlisted man, and eventually became a Second Lieutenant, I have been engaged as insurance broker, making my offices in Eben Phillpott's old chambers in the Sun Building in the city. My interest in the theater has been confined to amateur dramatics. For seven years I have been an active participant in the activities of the Surrey Amateur Dramatic Society. Here I got my first taste of the theater, since I both took part as actor and playwright. I have seen some half-dozen of my one-act plays put on there, with two of them finding their way to the publishers and eventually coming off the press.

All this while I have been actively engaged in sports. I have been three-quarter back on the Rosslyn Rugger team, one of the best outfits in England. I have likewise been captain of the Kingston Rowing Club, a rather strong amateur crew. I mention these facts because it is from the boat club rather than to the Surrey Dramatic Group that my play, "Journey's End," owes its origin.

Once a year the Kingston Rowing Club gives an amateur theatrical performance, written by some member of the club. This year it became my lot to write a play for my fellow members. Since we have no ladies among the membership, I felt that my play should have its cast limited to men only I then began "Journey's End," which I finished and saw produced in the due course of time.

AFTER its presentation, which was praised with the faint damns of "Hum, very nice for a boat club," some of my friends persuaded me that I might have some success with it if I tried to dispose of it to a professional management. Accordingly, I sent the script around in substantially the same shape as it is now. But, unfortunately, I must report that it was rejected most unanimously in all quarters.

A friend of mine took the script to G. B. S., who was far from enthusiastic about it, although he did venture the opinion that he "saw no reason why it should not be produced." This, to me, was another case of faint damning.

Finally it was taken to the London Stage Society, a semiprofessional organization. But not even at this last harbor was "Journey's End" given safe refuge. As a matter of fact, it came mighty close to resting in perpetuity in my own library.

The Play Selecting Committee took a vote in deciding as to whether or not the play should be done, and at the first ballot the count stood three voices for and three against. The chairman cast the deciding vote in its favor and a production was assured.

My first keen reaction to the play came about during the Stage Society's presentation. I found that some of the scenes to which I attached no special importance were the very moments that seemed to impress the audiences most. I attributed this, at the time, that perhaps these particular people would be alone in its reaction. When later it appeared to have the same effect on the public furnished by Maurice Brown, I must confess that I did feel a bit dazed. This feeling has since changed to sublime ecstasy.

Florence Austral Is Soloist at Final Concert by Arbos

WITH an all-Wagner program of which Florence Austral is soloist, the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will bring to a close its pre-holiday season in the concerts to be presented at the Odeon next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. They mark not only the debut in St. Louis of the distinguished English dramatic soprano, but the departure, as well, of Senior Enrique Fernandez Arbos, who has guided the destinies of the orchestra through the important opening weeks of its season.

Miss Austral will sing the aria "Diehm teure Halle," from Tannhauser, and the Prelude and Love-Death fro "Tristan and Isolde." The purely orchestral part of the program is most interesting, including the "Meistersinger's overture," the "Good Friday Spell" from "Parsifal" and the "Tannhauser" overture in its first half and in the latter the "Siegfried Rhine Journey," the "Forest Murmurs" and the "Love-Death."

Senor Arbos, in the course of his visits to St. Louis, has distinguished himself by bringing out the inner voices of the orchestral works which he has interpreted, and those inner voices are the essence of Wagner. His first return to this country as a conductor, three years ago, was heralded in New York as a musical event because of the lucidity of his Wagner readings. The same experience followed when he conducted the Boston orchestra last year.

The detailed program is:

Prelude to Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg
Good Friday Music from Parsifal
Aria: Dich teure halle, from Tannhauser
Miss Austral
Overture to Tannhauser
Siegfried's Rhine Journey, from The Twilight of the Gods
Forest Murmurs, from Siegfried
Prelude and Love-Death, from Tristan and Isolde
Miss Austral

Ranch Show Ends Tonight.

The 101 Ranch Wild West Show concludes its 11-day engagement at The Arena with a matinee and a performance tonight. The show will depart tomorrow morning for its winter quarters near Ponca City, Ok. Col. Zack T. Miller, owner of the show, expressed satisfaction with the attendance and already has opened negotiations with Ben G. Brinkman, president of the National Exhibition Co., to bring the show back to The Arena next November.

Oh, Listen To The Band!

Music Back in the Skouras Houses and Ed Lowry Returns, as a Result, With the Stage Show Idea at the Ambassador—Local Fans Will Watch Barbara Stanwyck's Screen Debut at Loew's With Considerable Interest—Paul Muni, Who Plays Seven Different Characters in One Motion Picture, at the Fox.

By NIE.

WITH the return of the master of ceremony and stage band type of entertainment at the Ambassador and music again finding its way into the pit at the Missouri, the Brothers Skouras are again setting their houses in order after some 13 weeks of guerilla warfare in the downtown and Grand boulevard sectors.

Naturally, Ed Lowry represents the heavy ammunition in the new entertainment attack directed upon the femmes. Lowry, until a few days ago, was hibernating at the Bransford Theater, a Warner house, in Newark, waiting for the clouds to roll over. The minute the local difficulties were settled, however, Eddie headed the old car west, not even waiting for the usual farewell week to his Newark followers.

Publix stage shows will continue to furnish the Ambassador with its vaudeville. These are routed here from Indianapolis and consist of four or five acts, a group of dancing girls and a program which permits Lowry and his Ambassadonians to take a feature part in the performance.

Although the agreement with the musicians' union permits the theaters two weeks in which to select the personnel of its orchestra and stage band, it is not believed that the Ambassador will make many changes. At the Missouri, however, there is a different story.

Albert Roth, youngest of all local baton wielders, retains his post at the downtown house. Kenneth Albrecht is again arranging the scores. Buddy Heitz at the drums and Charles Schmadt on the hot trombone are again the leading band specialists. It is rumored that Stuart Barrie may soon return as the Ambassador's organist. Barrie is now a big shot at the Mastbaum in Philadelphia. Chester Markert, in the meanwhile, is holding forth at the Ambassador.

The Missouri has a new conductor in the person of Al Eldridge, the pianist; Irving Rose formerly wielded the baton. Rose, a popular personality, will doubtless be taken care of in another capacity. Milton Slosser, who, like Lowry, hastened out of town when the strike was called, will resume his organ solos at the Missouri.

✡ ✡ ✡ ✡

ELDRIDGE, the new conductor at the Missouri, has been prominent in local musical circles for some time. Familiar to Grand avenue audiences as the boy who did solo piano numbers in the Missouri's pit, he has achieved no small amount of success in the history of St. Louis music.

Eldridge started on his musical career by appearing in vaudeville with his own band. Isham Jones "caught" the boy's act in a small town, one night, and immediately signed him up as a member of his own organization. Then followed a tour of the country with a week in St. Louis at the Grand Central Theater, the first Skouras "De Luxe" house.

Gene Rodemich at that time was leader of the Grand Central band and was pioneering in the field of masters of ceremonies. He liked Eldridge's ability and induced him to remain as a member of the stage and pit orchestra. Eldridge has been with Skouras houses since that time.

Eldridge, a pianist of no mean ability, has composed several popular song hits which have achieved wide fame. These include "Think of Me," "A Little Bit Bad," "Old Missouri Moon." Two new numbers are "What a Fool I've Been" and "My New Baby Has It." He plans to do specialty and solo numbers each week. Slosser, long a local favorite, will have specialty solos, also.

✡ ✡ ✡ ✡

THE local fans will watch with considerable interest, also, the debut this week down at Loew's of Barbara Stanwyck. She is making her screen bow in "The Locked Door." This is the first of her talking pictures but she is making others out on the coast where Frank Fay, once a great St. Louis favorite at the Missouri, is also working in the films and is reported to have scored tremendously. Barbara and Frank were married here in St. Louis and, later, she impressed her great stage ability upon St. Louis audiences when she appeared in the play "Burlesque" at the Shubert Thea-

Operas for Puppet Theaters

Paul Bunyan as a Possible Operatic Character—Situation at the Metropolitan Reverts to the Status Quo.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN.

TWO American composers are said to be considering the body of literature that has grown up around the exploits of the mythical Paul Bunyan as a possible basis for an opera. Such a theme should be both congenial and appropriate, for, while the Giant of the North Woods, who could start a rainstorm by poking his finger into a low-hanging cloud, is perhaps a distant relative of Gargantua and Pantagruel, the atmosphere of those tales could have come from nowhere but the lumber camps.

The men who sat around in smoking bunkhouses and fabricated whoppers through the long winter nights were among the first American authors to practice the rhetorical device of gaining an effect by exaggeration. Traces of such a method are still to be seen in much of our literature. There is a whole school of humorous writing which uses nothing else, not to mention such comic strips as "Mutt and Jeff," "Count Screwloose of Tooloose" and others.

But Paul Bunyan is not only a thorough-going American in that he is a direct product of the American predilection for tall talk. He is an ideal operatic character. Unlike Gargantua and Pantagruel, who were men of thought as well as deeds, he is distinguished exclusively by his feats of strength, all of which are dramatic. Paul is also associated with nature, with trees, rocks, flowing streams, strong winds and the wild life of the forests. A composer who is capable of writing any sort of opera should find this subject particularly congenial.

One is immediately confronted, however, with the tremendous difficulties which would be involved in staging such an opera.

Richard Wagner's stage directions are so formidable that they can never be followed literally for where on earth is one to find, among other things, a dramatic soprano who is also a trick bareback rider. But Brunhildes immolation, the overflowing of the Rhine, the burning of Walhalla, and so on, are nothing compared to the problem of presenting a character who must seem 50 times bigger than anybody else in order to have any significance. Certainly it is no job for a five-and-a-half foot tenor or for any human being.

What would seem to be an ideal medium through which to depict the prodigious adventure of Paul Bunyan, is the puppet show. I am convinced that a technique could be worked out by which puppets of varying sizes could be manipulated on an ordinary stage but what is a more fascinating possibility is the opera in parvo. By that I mean an opera which would be enacted on a stage of reduced size, by puppets not much larger than those used by Tony Sarg and with an orchestra of not more than 15 pieces. The voice parts, of course, would be sung by artists who were hidden from the audience.

THE only composer who ever seriously undertook to compose an opera for a miniature theater is Manuel DeFalla. This was "El Retablo," a work built up around an episode abstracted from the adventures of Don Quixote. "El Retablo" was written at the invitation of the Princess de Polignac who produced it in her own puppet theater in Paris. Subsequent public performances were given in Paris at the Opera Comique, at Bristol, England, and in New York but the opera was never a success, partly because of difficulties involved in the synchronization of the dramatic action performed by the puppets and the singers' voices and partly because the auditoriums were too large.

If the conditions which existed in the Princess de Polignac's theater could be reproduced elsewhere the effect might be different. But even if "El Retablo" presented insurmountable technical difficulties it does not follow that the form is inherently unmanageable.

Puppet shows, such as are staged by Tony Sarg, create as complete an illusion as one finds in any theater. In fact all that an audience usually asks of any excursion into the make-believe is that it shall be true to its own logic—a demand that is not always met in the so-called legitimate theater and that is so frequently ignored in the talking pictures that even the Arrested Development twins are beginning to complain.

An opera written for a puppet theater, would not be exactly the same thing as a grand opera reduced in scale. An orchestra of 15 has a different timber from one of 110 pieces even when the volume is the same, not to mention the difference between a chorus of five and one of 60. But while the toy theater would undoubtedly require a special treatment for its materials there is no reason to believe that the artistic results would not be as rich as those obtained in the mammoth opera houses. Losses in one direction would be made up in another. And the costs of making productions in such a theater would be such that even the smallest community could support it.

JOSEF ROSENTOCK has gone back to Germany, Arthur Bodansky is once more in charge of German opera, and plans for the new opera house on Fifth avenue have been definitely abandoned. All of which is one way of saying that the Metropolitan Opera in New York has relapsed to the status quo with a bang.

Conditions at the Metropolitan have more than academic interest for the rest of the country. For good or evil, the New York opera has a formidable influence on operatic standards throughout the country and the prospective producer in the smaller communities is likely to feel that if certain difficulties can not be overcome by the efforts of Otto Kahn and associated millionaires why should he be expected to do so.

Post-Dispatch readers who are also fond of music may be interested, therefore, in knowing that a delicate sort of expose of the Metropolitan is being attempted by Top Notes, a magazine edited by Pierre V. R. Key.

An article in the current issue implies that performances at the Metropolitan are invariably dull and suggests a number of remedies therefor. The writer of the article would have the Metropolitan reduce the number of performances from nine or more to six a week or less, reduce the repertoire, reduce the staff of singers and retain them for the whole season instead of half, and increase the number of rehearsals, and not be so terribly concerned about making the opera pay for itself.

Ernest Newman, the English critic, said that the ensemble at the Metropolitan was often worse than in many obscure provincial opera houses in Europe. Without commenting on the justice of that criticism one can still say without hesitation that only St. Michael and the heavenly choir should attempt a performance of "Die Meistersinger" with only two hours' rehearsal.

THE writer of this column, like most newspaper writers, always pays his own stuff the tribute of reading it several times. This is not always an unmixed pleasure. In reviewing last week's symphony concert, I endeavored to point out the structural beauties of the Brahms E. Minor symphony, with particular reference to the last movement and in doing so spoke of the "prolixity" with which the chief theme had been developed. Where this fiendish word came from only Dr. Freud can say, since the idea which was racing around in my consciousness would have been more nearly expressed by "freedom." Music critics are sometimes guilty of prolixity, but Brahms never. Please take note that this confession is made with hanging head.

Facing the Music

At 3 o'clock this afternoon, at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University, Charles Galloway, assisted by the university choir of 50 mixed voices, will give the third of his current series of organ recitals, which are part of the extension course of Washington University, and are free to the public. The following is the program:

Christmas music by a vested choir at Lindenwood College in Roemer Auditorium at vesper service at 6:30 o'clock tonight, will be characterized by old hymns and carols. Among these compositions will be, "Lo, How a Rose," by Praetorius (1571-1621); "Here a Torch," Jeannette, Isabella, Old Provencal Noel; Sing We Noel, French carol of the 16th century; and "While By My Sheep," a Christmas hymn of the 17th century. President John L. Roemer will preside, Miss Cora N. Edwards will direct the choir, and Miss Mary V. Sterling will be accompanist.

The Morning Etude will present a Christmas program at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington, on Wednesday, at 10:15 a. m. The public is invited.

The Mel-Harmonic Club's meeting for this month will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at Baldwin's Recital Hall. Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, music director, has arranged a short musical program in the form of Garden selections.

A Christmas song festival will be given by the Lutheran Choral Society of Greater St. Louis, this afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock at Mount Calvary Hall, Wells avenue near Union boulevard. The chorus will be assisted by a string ensemble. Wm. B. Heyne is conductor of the society, and Lambert Mennemeyer is the accompanist.

The third of a series of Sunday afternoon musicals given by the Theta Chapter of the Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority will be held at the home of Miss Viola Reitter, 3971 Flora boulevard, this afternoon at 4:30. She will be assisted by the Misses Lillian Harien and Louise Evers.

Show at St. Louis for Children.

As an added feature the St. Louis Theater will present a pretentious attraction for the week starting next Saturday, when it offers "A Merry Christmas Revue" with a cast of 40 local children. Under the direction of Jack Hanley, these tots will offer a revue of 30 minutes' duration.

On the Screens or in Person This Week

Paul Muni in "Seven Faces" at the Fox.

Mary Brian in "The Marriage Playground," Missouri.

The Siamese Twins, on the stage at the St. Louis Theater.

St. Louis U. Club To Read 'Twelfth Night'

Tonight at 8:15 in the west lounge of the gymnasium the Playhouse Club of St. Louis University will give its third circle reading of the present season. Shakspeare's "Twelfth Night" will be the bill. The Playhouse Club decided some days ago to give over its December reading to the Bard of Avon, and all of the members of the various Shakspeare classes have received an invitation to attend the meeting.

Miss Florence Ryan, who last December read the role of Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet," has been cast as the vivacious Viola in "Twelfth Night." Miss Lucienne Deschodt has been cast as the stately Olivia. Fred Weber will be Malvolio. Among others in the cast will be Jack Casey, Robert Mattis, Garvey Bridgeman, Edward Walsh, George McDonald, Edgar Helbling, Jerome Munsch.

There will be a musical program furnished by the St. Louis University orchestra and a social half hour will follow.

Grand Opera House Has Changed Policy

A new policy involving two complete changes in shows each week, was inaugurated at the Grand Opera House yesterday. The first show under the new policy will open on Saturdays, with five acts of vaudeville and a feature picture. This show will run until Wednesday, when another new bill of five acts and a feature photoplay will be offered. Performances will be continuous, with three shows each day.

In announcing the new policy, Manager Quinby said the change was decided upon after a canvass had been made among Grand Opera House theatergoers regarding whether or not shows should remain a full week or be changed on Saturdays and Wednesdays. Seventy-five per cent of the patrons voted for the change.

Some Film Stars Who Could Make Good Without Acting

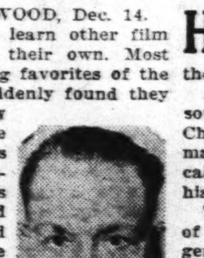
BEHIND THE SCREENS

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

De Wolf Hopper Out On Coast To Work in Talkies

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.

SCREEN stars learn other film trades beside their own. Most of the reigning favorites of the films, if they suddenly found they couldn't act any more, could make successful livings right in the industry, in callings they've followed as hobbies around the studios while acting.



LON CHANEY

For instance, Lon Chaney would be able to make good money as a camera man. As a hobby he's been filming movies for years with his own camera; wild animals, celebritries, and even a play he produced and directed from his own story.

Buster Keaton, frozen-faced comedian with a mechanical turn of mind, is as good a projectionist as any in a theater. He has his own machine at home, has experimented with it for years, can take it apart and reassemble it blindfolded, and has run millions of feet of film with it.

John Gilbert was a director before he became a star, and could go right back to directing if he wanted to and make a success of it, judging purely by the films he directed in the past. Cliff Edwards makes records as a hobby, and is very expert at it; enough so to hold down a job in the sound department with the best of the workers there.

Ernest Torrence, who likes to cut, edit and reassemble film as a pastime, would qualify as a cutter, and Eleanor Boardman, once an interior decorator, could be a set designer. In fact, she has often suggested effective settings which the studio artists have carried out.

THERE used to be only one kind of director in filmland. He was the man with the megaphone, which was his professional insignia. Today, since the arrival of talkies, filmusicals and screen revues, his number has been multiplied to six, and one almost has to take care not to stumble over directors on many of the movie sets.

The man who used to wield the megaphone still is there, although he no longer wields it, or anything at all, except his hands, and voice occasionally, when the microphones are idle.

He carries nothing to set him apart from the small army of other set workers except his air of authority and perchance, if he be Cecil De Mille, his riding habit.

The megaphone in talking picture making, is out.

HE, with or minus megaphone, is the personage meant when one says "the director." But there are others.

All-important is the director of sound, or sound technician. Choruses kick or sway to the command of a terpsichorean know-all called the dance director—and in his field his word is law.

There is, of course, a director of music, and an erstwhile stranger to the movies is there in the person of the director of dialog, found on many talkie sets, working with the "real" director.

Even he who once was simply the "head cameraman" has become the "director of photography" and incidentally, seldom touches a camera except in instructing his assistants.

These dozen hands all at work on a single picture may remind of the superfluous cooks who spoiled the broth—just the same, they all are required to produce most of today's spectacular talkies.

And odd as it may seem, he who was once the megaphone wielder remains the most important of all. The talkies, as many directors have learned through unhappy experience, are still movies.

MARY ASTOR, one of the few silent screen players of any prominence yet to appear in a talkie, is in a local stage production now with Edward Everett Horton, receiving critical applause for her "poise, charm, beauty and delightful voice."

MARY ASTOR

Which is another way of forecasting that the screen soon will claim her, as it has most of the rejected silent screen players who, following Bessie Love's example, hied themselves behind the footlights and proved what they could do.

There are still a few "silent stars," by the way, not yet seen and heard in microphoned pictures.

Norma Talmadge has completed her first, "New York Nights," but it is not yet released, while Lillian Gish's "The Swan" still is in production. Buster Keaton makes his entry into talkies in "On the Set."

HAROLD LLOYD'S "Welcome Danger" already has vindicated, through box-office returns, the comedian's opinion that dialogue would enhance rather than detract from his work, but Charlie Chaplin, kingpin of silent drama, has not yet changed his mind about dialogue pictures in general or about his own "City Lights" in particular.

In fact, a recent full-page advertisement in a special edition of one of Hollywood's film magazines emphasized his determination to remain "silent."

Chaplin's name does not appear in the ad, nor does the name of his picture appear in English. But a drawing of a lighted street lamp, accompanied by several foreign language translations of the title, drives home the point that its "silent brilliance" will flood all nations—the talkies can't do that, so there!—as is more plainly stated in a tagline in English.

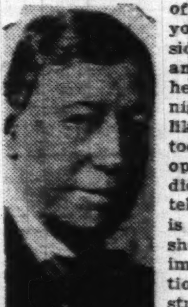
"THE roses that bloom in the spring, tra, la' are perfectly all right, but personally I prefer the roses that bloom in December, in California!" declared De Wolf Hopper, dean of American comedians as he descended the steps of the Santa Fe "Chief" last week to become a temporary resident of Hollywood.



DE WOLF HOPPER

"It's been some years since I've been west," said Hopper. "It looks to me as if Los Angeles is beginning to pop its vest buttons. Pretty soon some one will have to buy it a new suit."

The comic opera favorite was accompanied by Mrs. De Wolf Hopper. Hopper is here to take part in a big talking picture revue about to be started. Present at the train to greet him were other famous old-timers with whom he will be associated in the production. They include Weber and Fields, Louis Mann and William Collier.

ALMOST every movie star receives gifts from time to time from persons unknown to the recipient. Generally the gifts arrive anonymously. Louise Fazenda, perhaps the best-known and certainly the most experienced screen comedienne, has been getting letters and religious tokens for years from a woman who has never signed her name to any of these strange communications. Sometimes the gift is a scapular, sometimes a rosary or a tiny statue of a saint. And now and again the letters contain very elaborate comment and advice concerning roles portrayed in films by Miss Fazenda.

KAY FRANCIS

Bernice Claire, soon to be seen with Alexander Gray in "No, No, Nanette" and "Spring Is Here," has several times received packages from smart Los Angeles shops, containing expensive goods that Miss Claire hadn't ordered. Always the material had been paid for, but no card was inclosed.

Kay Francis, who has a prominent part in Billie Dove's next picture, "Faithful," hasn't been in Hollywood long, but already flowers and other presents have come to her dressing room at the First National Studio, addressed to her but with no indication of the sender.

Perhaps the queerest experience of all is that of Connie Lewis, a younger sister of Lois Wilson. Besides sending her things, her anonymous admirer used to call her upon the telephone every night. Sometimes he would say "I like that dress you are wearing today," or "You had a hard time opening the garage door tonight, didn't you?" But he would never tell her who he was, and Miss Lewis became so annoyed at last that she told the police about it. And immediately the undesired attentions ceased! How the mysterious stranger got wind of her appeal to the law Miss Lewis has no idea.

MANY admirers of Corinne Griffith are aware that her chief hobby is her garden, and their favorite gifts to the star of "Lilies of the Field," soon to be released, are lilies and growing plants. They are Corinne's favorites, too.

Dick Barthelmess usually receives books and statuary from his unknown friends. Just before he sailed for Europe recently a well-meaning friend sent him a globe of goldfish! He had to send it ashore from the ship.

The elaborate minature doll's house on which Colleen Moore has lavished so much time and affectionate interest has received widespread publicity, with the result that dolls and tiny furniture are usually inside the packages that come to her from sources unrevealed.

Once a Shetland pony was sent to Jack Mulhall. He hasn't the least notion why.

Practical jokers often take a hand in the game of mystification, and certain stars are apparently singled out rather than others. Again and again taxicabs, flowers c. o. d. and other unexpected objects have arrived at the house of Alice White, much to Miss White's surprise. Once a seven-piece orchestra turned up and informed her that they had been directed to come to the White apartment to play for a party.

MUSIC COMES BACK TO SKOURAS HOUSES AND SO DOES LOWRY

ter. A girl of tremendous charm and personality she should go far as a screen actress.

As a matter of fact Miss Stanwyck's career has been brief for she started her climb to fame just six years ago as a dancer. She left school quietly one day at noon and returned to her Flatbush, Brooklyn, home a full-fledged dancer in the ballet of the Strand Roof in New York.

She could dance and sing uncommonly well, with the result that she came to the attention of producers of musical extravaganzas who require versatility above all other things. Her first Broadway show was "Keep Cool," a fast musical operetta; then "Gay Paree," and after that engagement the fulfillment of all her dreams—a season with the Follies.

Despite her astonishing success, Miss Stanwyck was discontented. She considered her dancing and singing mere stepping stones to something better in the artistic firmament. She wanted to be a great dramatic star, thus sharing ambitions with thousands of other girls seeking honors on the legitimate stage.

Miss Stanwyck says that there was nothing unusual about the way she earned the lead in "The Noose," her first dramatic part. To use her own words: "I wanted the job, and they gave it to me."

Simple! She was a dancer and singer with no dramatic experience, except those strictly private rehearsals in front of her mirror. But she could not tell the producer that. She just wanted the job and they gave it to her.

Her performance in "The Noose" was one of the memorable bits of acting of recent years and over night she became established.

"Burlesque," a great play, followed, and during its engagement Joseph M. Schenck of United Artists saw her and signed her to appear in dialogue pictures for his organization. After the close of "Burlesque," Miss Stanwyck journeyed to Hollywood and was selected as the leading woman in "The Locked Door."

PAUL MUNI, who is appearing in person at the Fox today and tomorrow, where his picture, "Seven Faces," is running, plays seven distinct roles in the film. He, too, is a recruit to the movies from the stage.

Born of stage parents, Muni was brought to America from his home in Austria at the age of 4. Scanty fare, infrequent and often unpaid engagements in small-town theaters and sometimes walking the railroad tracks back to the larger cities are included in Muni's experience.

He played the violin at the age of 6, with his parents, in traveling shows. There were times, after his father died, that he and his mother slept in cold railroad stations when theatrical companies they were with went broke.

He picked up his education on the run, so to speak, haunting libraries in towns where his travels took him. He attended school in Chicago for a time, working after hours at a gas works to eke out a meager existence.

Always he was studying the art of makeup and finally his chance came in New York when Sam Harris discovered him playing in an obscure theater and gave him the leading role in "We Americans." He was an overnight find.

Then Muni was starred in "Four Walls" and was an even greater success. During the run of this play on Broadway, he was signed to a long-term contract by Fox and made his screen debut in the all-talking picture, "The Valiant." It was a sensation.

LUCIO AND SIMPLICIO GODINO, the boy "Siamese" twins, who are now headlining with their brides and a jazz band at the St. Louis Theater, were great men-about-town in Manila, it is said. Wards of Teodoro Yangco, multimillionaire shipowner and philanthropist, the Godinos have always been supplied with plenty of money and motor cars. Filipino girls found them gay companions in the night life of the island capital until the twins renewed their love affair with their school days sweethearts, Victorina and Natividad Motos, sisters.

Lucio dashed headlong into his courtship of Victorina, but Simplicio, despite his forced attendance at each rendezvous, progressed more slowly in his wooing of Natividad. But Lucio and Victorina proved adroit matchmakers, and the engagement of all four was announced in June. Five thousand people attended the wedding reception July 13. The sisters speak good English; the twins talk like American high school boys. They are dandies in dress.

Lucio and Simplicio are the first boy Siamese twins born since Chang and Eng, the famous Barnum couplet, who died in 1879. It is claimed there have been but four sets of male "Siamese" twins in the world, but there have been nearly a dozen girl couplets. Two are now living—the Hiltons and the Gibb sisters.

Kirkwood Club To Sing "The Messiah"

The Kirkwood Choral Club Tuesday night will present at its first concert of the season Handel's Oratorio, "The Messiah." The chorus of 60 voices, under the direction of William B. Heyne, will be assisted by Mrs. Raymond Henley, soprano; Mrs. George Jackma contralto; Mr. James Leroy Simmons, baritone; Mr. Alfred Friedl, tenor. The accompanists will be Mrs. Frank Parker, organist, and Lambert Mennemeyer, pianist.

This chorus, which was started and inspired by Mrs. James L. Blair, 31 years ago, is the oldest choral organization in the country. Although the personnel of the club has changed in those years, the enthusiasm and interest are the same. The club 30 years ago was a women's chorus, giving two or three concerts a season; in later years the men of the community were invited to become members and it has continued its existence as a chorus of mixed voices.

The concert will be given at the Kirkwood Methodist Church, corner of Clay and Washington. The public is invited.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.

SOME things you would never imagine:

Fannie Hurst suffers from an inferiority complex at dinner parties.

John McK. Bowman, the hotel man, has 150 sets of cuff links, all gifts.

Clifton Webb, the actor, is a crack pistol shot.

Charlie Chaplin likes to walk alone on country roads late at night.

The wife of one of New York's biggest jewelers has never worn a jewel.

A New York actor and his wife are living apart for a year by agreement because they quarreled the day after marriage.

The biggest dinner night in expensive New York cafes is on Tuesday.

Earl Carroll, who never before owned an automobile, has burst out in the highest priced car in town.

A cartoonist tried to quit smoking cigars for years without success. He has now succeeded by eating licorice after each meal.

Charles M. Schwab likes midnight lunches of cold milk and sardines.

"Coming out parties" for debutantes are passe. Luncheons are taking their place.

A Harlem cabaret sign reads: "No pawing of ladies at front tables."

Sightseeing bus passengers show more interest in the Andrew Carnegie home than any other mansion on Fifth avenue.

Ed Wynne's new play, under the Ziegfeld banner, will be called "Simple Simon," and Rodgers and Hart will write the music. Wynne is said to have gone under the biggest weekly salary contract up to date.

Mayor Walker received 5165 personal telegrams of congratulations over his election. Outside of New York State, most of them came from Hollywood.

One of the tragi-humorous offshoots of the market collapse was a broker who had 25 dressing robes in a haberdashery workroom when the blow fell. Yet that symbolized the luxury attitude of most of us until whatever it was exploded in our hand one day.

The high mark in bad journalistic taste was reached by a New York tabloid that ran a picture of the "sweetie" of a slain gambler removing flowers from his grave to make way for her own.

Antinoise investigators have found that New York attains its quietest hour of the week on Sunday between 5:30 and 6:30 p. m.

Sundry gentlemen rolling high in the stock market boom were not satisfied with the ordinary apartments in de luxe hotels. They had walls knocked down, huge fireplaces and pipe organs built in and installed costly French windows and onyx bathrooms. This required them taking leases for from five to 10 years. In one hotel five occupants of such apartments tossed in their keys in a single day. Said one: "I have nothing. The apartment is too expensive to maintain. And I'm on my way to my old rooming house and the hunt for a job."

Another phase of the depressing fog that gripped New York during the panic was the sudden sterility of humorists. Those who were in no way touched by the financial disaster found themselves unable to write a single funny line during a two-week period. Humor seemed to them a sacrilege.

* * *

Indeed, the stark, paralyzing effects of the fearful days are not entirely passed after these many weeks. There are any number of men whose fortunes were wiped out in a day who went home when the blow fell—and have not gone beyond their front door since. They sit all day staring into space.

It's Time YOU tried one!

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS F. A. Stuart Price 25 Cts.

For that INDIGESTION

For 36 years, men and women by the million have settled stomach disturbances with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. A reliable remedy; a real relief. And you have never tried them! In 1894 a druggist sold his first package of Stuart's. Today they are a drug-store staple. The first thing that comes to mind when the stomach needs a sweetener. No bitter soda! Just a happy combination of Calcium Carbonate (2½ times more effective than soda) Magnesia and other valuable ingredients. In ten minutes—or less—acidity is overcome; all that sourness dispelled. Many parents have come to realize these tablets are ideally suited to children's digestive disorders. The tremendous sale of the family size boxes is proof of that. Next time a young stomach is complaining, think of Stuart's.

MAKE THIS TEST!

Purchase a 25c, handy pocket tin of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets from your druggist, use after meals and be convinced it is not necessary to suffer the distresses of indigestion.

The Season's Best... GRAYBAR SCREEN GRID RADIO

Just wait till you hear the Graybar's fluid, true-to-life tone. Wait till you know how it gives even ordinary programs a sort of "go" and dash and color all its own. Wait till you see that delicately-molded cabinet... set off by a truly gorgeous tapestry cover for the speaker opening!

Then you'll agree... here is a gift!

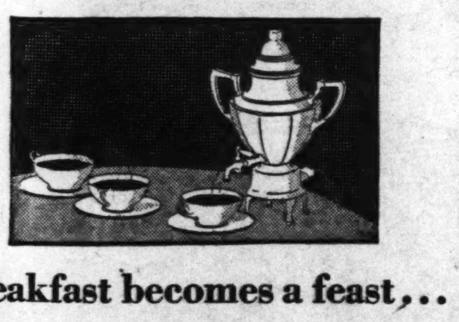
Truly, "the season's best"... backed by a company with most unusual radio experience: Graybar, outfitter-complete to over 150 leading broadcasting stations in this country.

Cabinet model 550 (with improved electro-dynamic loudspeaker) is moderately priced. A splendid value at . . . $130

Table model 500... same powerful Screen Grid tube, same splendid circuit, is also an unusual value at $75.00

(Prices less radiotrons)

Tune in on "Mr. and Mrs." ... Briggs' characters, the "comic section of the air"! Graybar Hour, 8 to 8:30 every Saturday night. Columbia network.



Breakfast becomes a feast...

If coffee "makes the breakfast" (and lots of folks claim it does!) . . . then breakfast is indeed a feast when a Manning-Bowman percolator "does the honors" . . . Charming gifts, the gleaming Manning-Bowman percolators, toasters, waffle irons at your Graybar dealer's... Many models... many prices. To suit every taste and purse.

Give HEALTH this Christmas ..with the Graybar Sunshine Health Lamp

BRING "sunshine" into somebody's life this winter! Bring it by giving this remarkable Graybar Sunshine Health Lamp!

It approximates natural sunlight. Full of the same health-building rays. Full of essential vitamins. Full of resistance to disease!

'Most everybody needs it...Because today 'most everybody stays indoors a great deal more than Nature intended. In offices. In homes. Away from the strength-building sunshine!

This Graybar Lamp is a double carbon-arc type. Surprisingly easy to use! Plugs into any electrical wall outlet. Brings its beneficial rays whenever and wherever they're wanted.

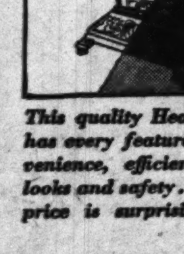
Pleasant to use, too. Such soothing, relaxing warmth! Size? Exactly right! Just shy of twenty inches in height.

And another important point: One can use it with confidence... no danger of over-exposure. The light goes off automatically after 7 minutes. To start it again, one presses a handy lever.

It bears a name which gives confidence, too: Graybar, the oldest electrical distributor in the world... noted for all that's new and smart and practical in household appliances. The price is only... $49.50

There's a coupon below... Mail it now!

(Note: This Lamp is not offered as a "cure-all." In case of any specific ailment a doctor should be consulted)



This quality Health Lamp has every feature for convenience, efficiency, good looks and safety... yet the price is surprisingly low.

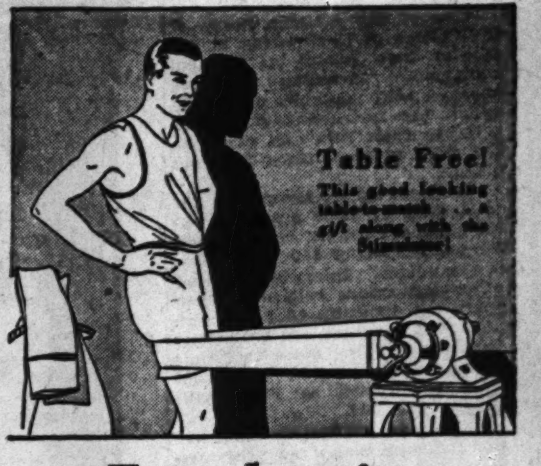


Table Free!
This good looking table-to-match ... a gift along with the Stimulator!

For a happier, healthier New Year

Good wishes have a way of coming true... when they accompany a Graybar Stimulator!

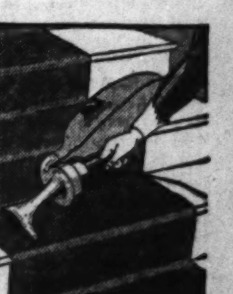
Packed into this rugged little health motor is a vibratory-massage action that does wonders for people! (Just ask anybody who has tried it.)

It does things to excess weight. That "all-tired-out" feeling vanishes into thin air! In their stead come slenderness, pep, poise!

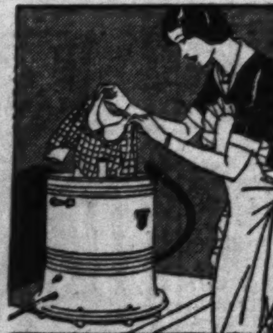
It works that way for men and women, both!

The Stimulator gives exactly the type massage one wants . . . has varying gradations of speed.

Simple to operate. Lots of fun to use. Very easy on the giver's pocket-book, too (as health motors go) $59.50



A little gift with big possibilities. This wee vacuum cleaner certainly goes after difficult corners in a big way! Curtains, upholstered furniture, stair carpets, car interiors . . . it makes them spick and span. A practical gift... yet a delightfully novel one... $13.50



Years of cheer for Mrs. Housewife... No more fussing with baby clothes, and other "odds and ends" of washing! Not for the lucky lady who gets a Graybar Whirl-dry Washer for Christmas! This little washer fairly romps through the job! $64.50

CALLS ENGINEERING BUILDINGS UNSAFE

Dean Says Missouri U. Structures Are Fire Hazards; Urges $3,600,000 Appropriation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 14.—"While other States are greatly enlarging the size and scope of their colleges of engineering," the University of Missouri College of Engineering "has been forced by lack of funds to restrict its efforts to limited activities and to a limited number of students, far below the demand," Dean E. J. McCaustland informed the State Survey Commission in his report just made.

"Added funds are badly needed to carry on even with the present enrollment," Dean McCaustland continued. "But, more serious still is the impossibility of co-operating with industry and of increasing the number of engineers available to the State and to her cities.

"This is an industrial age and while Missouri is to some extent an agricultural State, her prosperity as a whole, including her cities, depends largely on her industries. Because industry is increasingly technical in nature, Missouri must have an adequate supply of trained engineers in order to hold her own with adjoining progressive communities.

"One of the pressing needs of the College of Engineering at the present time relates to physical equipment, including building space. Also, suitable offices in which the instructing staff may preserve their files and carry on the work in preparation for their classes.

"A recent survey shows that the total area of floor space in our buildings exclusively used for our purposes is about 110 square feet per student. Information from other institutions collected a few years ago indicates that the University of Arkansas had 120 square feet per student. Since that time a new engineering building has been constructed at Fayetteville costing $300,000.

"At other institutions information indicates that a few years ago Wisconsin had 149 square feet per student, Iowa State College 169, Kansas University 183 and Illinois 280. No doubt these areas have been increased. While the figures may not have a great significance when taken alone, they do indicate our relative position in a group of comparable institutions so far as available building space is concerned.

Library Space Inadequate.

"The Engineering Library now has more than 9000 volumes of standard works and a large number of bulletins and magazines are housed in a single room which is less than 50 feet square and which leaves space at the reading tables for approximately one-tenth of our students. When one recalls that a student's recitation schedule may be distributed throughout the day with a number of vacant hours between classes the advantages of a convenient and commodious reading room several times as large as the present one is obvious.

"The general lecture room, the largest single room in the building, will accommodate only 140 men. This limitation in space makes it impossible for more than one-third of the student body to be conveniently brought together for lectures of common interest or for the general instructions to which all students should have free access.

"The drafting room space is also quite inadequate. The rooms are not particularly well located and are generally poorly lighted. Not one of the rooms thus used was originally designed for drafting purposes and consequently they are all more or less unsuitable.

"Those of our needs which may be met by additional buildings are more adequate library and reading room space, a lecture room large enough to accommodate the entire student body, drafting rooms designed and located with regard to modern understanding of their purposes, and additional and better equippment class rooms and laboratories.

"More generous office and study space for the individual teachers is greatly needed since none of the present offices are adequate either as to space or facilities for lighting, ventilating or heating. The lavatory facilities are entirely inadequate. It is sufficient to state that two wash basins and three water closets include the sum total of the sanitary conveniences for the use of approximately 450 persons.

Calls Buildings Fire Hazard.

"The most sinister situation is found in the abnormally high fire hazard affecting all of the old buildings used for our purposes. When the age and present state of disrepair of the main engineering building and Switzler Hall are noted the extent of this hazard is made clear. Add to this situation the close proximity of the Engineering Annex, which is a mere shell of the cheapest type of construction with wooden floors, partitions and stairways and the indictment is complete and unanswerable.

"The library, our choicest possession, is especially exposed to the danger of fire and the books and library equipment which might be destroyed would mean not only a large loss in money but a loss of books and journals that cannot be replaced at any cost. Should a fire occur, it would be difficult or impossible to carry on much of the work of the college.

"A recent study of the possibilities of building expansion has raised the question of a possible removal of the Engineering College from its present site to more spacious grounds. Such removal, however, is not at all necessary. There is plenty of space adjacent to the present engineering building to allow for an expansion to the extent of satisfactorily housing from two or three times the present enrollment as well as providing all facilities needed for the staff required to take care of this number.

"The enrollment in the College of Engineering has not increased materially during the last five years and this is probably due to a gradual raising of scholastic standards made necessary by limited finances. Many young men have been denied the opportunity of gaining an engineering education because of inability to provide special instructors who could give personal attention to students finding it difficult to span the gap between the high school organization of curricular work and the standard set up by the university.

Would Increase Salary Budget.

"The present salary budget is only $58,700. This should be at the present time increased by at least 10 per cent and with this increase, allowing the very conservative estimate of only 20 per cent increase in students, the salary budget at the end of 10 years would be $78,000, making the total salary needs for 10 years $750,000.

"We need a type I building which should be constructed at once. An estimate of the cost of this building on the present site extended to include the main rriage to Be Made Occasion for Display of "Sacred Shroud."

NCE HUMBERT WILL TAKE BRIDE TO TURIN

e Associated Press.
TURIN, Italy, Dec. 14.—The an- capital of Piedmont, from ich the heir to the Italian one derives his princely title, is a state of fevered preparation the day when the tall young n in question returns here with Belgian princess-bride.

News that the young pair will ke their residence in Turin has led all the inhabitants with sat- action. The Crown Prince, own in military parlance as Col. mbert di Savoir, will continue his mmand of his own regiment, the nety-second Infantry, which with Ninetieth and Ninety-first is tioned here as part of the per- nent garrison.

The private apartments of the ace here, which Prince Hum- rt has made his residence ever ce attaining his majority, have en overhauled in anticipation the arrival of the princely pair, esumably about the middle of nuary. As now planned, they ll pass about a week of their oneymoon in the royal family's nting lodge at San Rossore, near a, before coming here.

Turin society, according to pres- t arrangements, will have its st glimpse of the newlyweds at a a performance in the Royal Op- a House. The day following it is derstood the Prince will formal- present all the local authorities, vil and military, to his bride in e course of a grandiose reception the palace. The evening follow- g a grand ball, first of its kind in any years, is due to take place, ith the attendance of the Prince's ters and their husbands, his cousins of the Savoy-Aosta and other branches, and all the titled Turinese families.

In accordance with century old tradition, the occasion of the marriage of the heir of the House of Savoy will be marked by a public display of the "Sacred Shroud," the winding sheet that is said to have been wrapped about the body of Christ after the descent from the cross, and alleged to bear the marks of his body till this day. The shroud, known in Italian as "Lasacra Sindone," is the property of the Royal family, though conserved in Turin Cathedral.

With solemn ceremony it will be exposed to the veneration of the Piedmontese and Pilgrims from all over Europe at a service to be presided over by Cardinal Gamba, Archbishop of Turin, and attended by the Crown Prince and his bride, other members of the reigning house and of the bride's family. Thereafter it will be exposed in the cathedral for eight days.

"Drunkenness Is a Disease and I Can Cure It"
—Leslie E. Keeley, M. D., LL. D.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR THOSE IN NEED

Toy Shop for Families Unable to Buy Gifts—Other Seasonal Activities.

The Community Council has established a Christmas Bureau at 2221 Locust street, CEntral 6900, under direction of Eleanor Myers, as a clearing house where the gift may be suited to the needs and taste of the recipient.

Secretary Myers pointed out that no philanthropist could give any one type of gift equally suitable to different children, and that often it was best simply to finance Santa Claus and let the father and mother advise him on the best gift for each child.

Social agencies, she said, in their daily work, have learned the varying Christmas requirements of hundreds of families. The bureau's motto will be "Strengthen the family ties at Christmas." It is prepared to "put you in touch with the definite needs of real people."

A Christmas toy shop to aid families unable to purchase toys will be opened Wednesday at 1706 Olive street by the Board of Religious Organizations. The board's Christmas parties will be given at 7:30 Thursday evening at Bishop Tuttle Memorial by the Americanization department for foreign-born students, and Friday evening at headquarters in the Equitable Building by the Girls' Protective Department for the Little Sisters, girls who are being aided in finishing high school.

The Downtown Lions' Club will give a Christmas party, with a turkey dinner, Wednesday at American Annex Hotel for 200 children from Madison and Patrick Henry Schools and the Goodwill industries.

Carols will be sung by 1000 children in processional at 2 p. m. Friday at Samuel Cupples School, where Christmas parties will take place at 2 p. m., Dec. 23, for afternoon kindergarten children and at 9:30 a. m. Dec. 24 for morning kindergarten pupils.

The annual Christmas party and trade dinner of St. Louis Association of Manufacturers' Representatives will be held at 6:30 p. m. Monday at American Annex Hotel, with 300 wholesale dealers from Missouri, Southern Illinois and Western Kentucky and Tennessee expected to attend.

building, Mechanic Arts Building and Switzler Hall on each side, would total $1,000,000.

"There should be special mill type construction laboratories built for agricultural, chemical, electrical and mechanical engineering departments. These buildings should be in general character like the present civil engineering laboratories and their construction together with necessary fixed equipment is estimated at $75,000 each, or a total of $300,000.

"A type I building should be constructed for agricultural engineering at a cost of $200,000. The equipment for laboratories for all departments should not be less than $50,000 per year amounting for the 10-year period to $500,000.

"The Experiment Station needs for its best service to the State an annual appropriation of about $75,000 per year, a total of $750,000 for 10 years. The Engineering Library should be expanded by the purchase of many more books if we had a suitable place to keep them. Assuming the construction of a proper building to house this library, we should expend at least $10,000 per year for books and magazines, a total for 10 years of $100,000."

An itemized statement of the needs of the College of Engineering over a 10-year period as prepared by Dean McCaustland is as follows:

Salaries	$ 750,000
New Type I Building	1,000,000
Four laboratories	300,000
Agricultural Engineering Building	200,000
Laboratory Equipment	500,000
Experiment Station Appropriations	750,000
Books and magazines	100,000
Total	$3,600,000

SIGN BOARD IN FRONT OF SPHINX

Avenue to Pyramids Disfigured by Outdoor Advertising.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 14. — Pills and whisky have almost obliterated the ancient glory of the Sphinx and the Pyramids.

The avenue to the Pyramids has been disfigured by huge signboards proclaiming the virtures of pills, whisky and other modern commodities. A sign board has been erected directly in front of the Sphinx, and some advertisers have plastered the walls of monuments with legends extolling their wares. The Government has ordered the fire department to wash the defacement off the buildings, but the sign boards will have to remain until abolished by a special law.

NEW SUPREME COURT BUILDING

House Group Approves $9,740,000 Fund for Structure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—In line with the plan of the Coolidge-Hoover administrations for beautification of the national capital, the House Public Buildings Committee has given its approval to the Elliott bill to provide $9,740,000 for erection of a building to house the Supreme Court.

The structure will be erected to the east of the Capitol Building and will fit in with the plan of development that calls for public buildings lining a mall stretching from Union Station, past the Capitol, by the Washington Monument, the Lincoln Memorial and extending to the Potomac. Since erection of the Capitol Building, the Supreme Court has been in that structure.

Health, Happiness, C At Disposal of C Winston

Garden Cities, Cathedral of Temperament, Even England, Impress

By Winston Chu

THE State of California is nearly 10 sured that its whole population— get into the motor car they own an he other at any time they had the ainly be well advised to try the expe egion I have hardly ever seen. The l ng country, rising often into mountain egrees of latitude, a smiling and va ards, orange groves, olives and every he natives desire, crowns or cloth alleys.

The Pacific laps the long-drawn hores, and assures at all seasons f the year an equable and temerate climate. The cool ocean nd the warm land create in their ontact a misty curtain which eils and mitigates the vigor of he sun. By a strange inversion, ou ascend the mountain to get arm, and descend to the sea levl to get cool. Take it for all in ll, the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains offer a specious, delectable land where the white man may work or play on every day in the year.

The prosperity rising from the calm fruitfulness of agriculture has been stimulated and multiplied by the flashing apparition of gold and oil, and is adorned by the gay tinsel of the Hollywood film-land. The people who have established themselves and are dominant in these thriving scenes represent what is perhaps the inest Anglo-Saxon stock to be ound in the American Union. Blest with abundant food and leasing dwellings, spread as idely as they may wish in garden cities, along the motor roads, r in their farms, the Californians ave at their disposal all the atural economic conditions necessary for health, happiness nd culture.

Respect Toward England

Their easily gathered foods afford a diet in which milk, fruit, vegetables and chicken predominate; while endless vineyards offer grape juice in unfermented, or even sometimes accidentally fermented, forms. A buoyancy of temperament, a geniality of manner, an unbounded hospitality, and a marked friendliness and respect toward Old England, her institutions and empire, are the characteristics most easily discerned among them. Poverty as we know it in Europe, slums, congestion, and gloomy abodes of concentrated industrialism is nowhere to be seen.

It was my good fortune to spend nearly a month in these agreeable surroundings and conditions, motoring through the country from end to end; and certainly it would be easy to write whole chapters upon the closely packed procession of scenes and sensations which saluted the journey. Here I can only give a few thumb-nail sketches on which, however, the reader may care to cast an eye.

Entering California from the north we travel along the celebrated Redwood Highway. The road undulates and serpentines ceaselessly. On either side from time to time are groves and forests of what one would call large ir trees. As we go on they get aller. The sense that each hour finds one amid larger trees only grows gradually. Health, Happiness, Culture At Disposal of Californians, Winston Churchill Finds Garden Cities, Cathedral of Trees, Buoyancy of Temperament, Even Respect for Old England, Impress Traveler.

By Winston Churchill.

(Copyright, 1929, by Winston Churchill. Quotations not allowed.)

THE State of California is nearly 1000 miles long, and I was assured that its whole population—man, woman and child—could get into the motor car they own and drive from one end of it to the other at any time they had the inclination. They would certainly be well advised to try the experiment, for a more beautiful region I have hardly ever seen. The long strip of hilly or undulating country, rising often into mountain ranges, presents, through 15 degrees of latitude, a smiling and varied fertility. Forests, vineyards, orange groves, olives and every other form of cultivation that the natives desire, crowns or clothes the sun-bathed peaks and valleys.

THIS is the fifth of ten articles by Winston Spencer Churchill, British statesman, on his impressions during a recent visit to the United States. Churchill, who was First Lord of the Admiralty at the beginning of the World War, was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Conservative Cabinet which went out of office when Ramsay MacDonald became Prime Minister. In next Sunday's article he will write about Hollywood.

The Pacific laps the long-drawn shores, and assures at all seasons of the year an equable and temperate climate. The cool ocean and the warm land create in their contact a misty curtain which veils and mitigates the vigor of the sun. By a strange inversion, you ascend the mountain to get warm, and descend to the sea level to get cool. Take it for all in all, the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains offer a specious, delectable land where the white man may work or play on every day in the year.

The prosperity rising from the calm fruitfulness of agriculture has been stimulated and multiplied by the flashing apparition of gold and oil, and is adorned by the gay tinsel of the Hollywood film-land. The people who have established themselves and are dominant in these thriving scenes represent what is perhaps the finest Anglo-Saxon stock to be found in the American Union. Blest with abundant food and pleasing dwellings, spread as widely as they may wish in garden cities, along the motor roads, or in their farms, the Californians have at their disposal all the natural economic conditions necessary for health, happiness and culture.

Respect Toward England

Their easily gathered foods afford a diet in which milk, fruit, vegetables and chicken predominate; while endless vineyards offer grape juice in unfermented, or even sometimes accidentally fermented, forms. A buoyancy of temperament, a geniality of manner, an unbounded hospitality, and a marked friendliness and respect toward Old England, her institutions and empire, are the characteristics most easily discerned among them. Poverty as we know it in Europe, slums, congestion, and gloomy abodes of concentrated industrialism is nowhere to be seen.

It was my good fortune to spend nearly a month in these agreeable surroundings and conditions, motoring through the country from end to end; and certainly it would be easy to write whole chapters upon the closely packed procession of scenes and sensations which saluted the journey. Here I can only give a few thumb-nail sketches on which, however, the reader may care to cast an eye.

Entering California from the north we travel along the celebrated Redwood Highway. The road undulates and serpentines ceaselessly. On either side from time to time are groves and forests of what one would call large fir trees. As we go on they get taller. The sense that each hour finds one amid larger trees only grows gradually. At length we stop to take stock of the scene, and one is surprised to see how small a car approaching round a bend 100 yards away appears in relation to the trunks which rise, close together, in vast numbers on either side. Still, full realization does not come. Another hour of swift progression! Now we are in the heart of the redwoods.

Cathedral of Trees.

There is no mistake about it this time. The road is an aisle in a cathedral of trees. Enormous pillars of timber tower up 200 feet without leaf or twig to a tapering vault of somber green and purple. So close are they together that the eye is arrested at 100 yards distance by solid walls of timber. It is astonishing that so many vast growing organisms find in so small a space of air and soil, the nourishment on which to dwell and thrive together. If a battle were fought in such a forest, every bullet would be stopped within 200 yards, embedded in impenetrable stems. At the bases of these monsters men look like ants and motor cars look like beetles. Far above, the daylight twinkles through triangular and star-shaped openings. On the ground is vivid green or yellow bloom and leafage. These scenes repeat themselves at intervals for perhaps 80 or 100 miles.

Suddenly we reach a notice with a finger point "The Big Tree." We turn off the well-oiled turnpike, and jolt and bump eight miles through sandy tracks, surrounded by enormous trunks, and ceilinged by brooding foliage. We walk gingerly across a river bed, on a bridge formed by one fallen monster, and here at last is "The Big Tree." They tell us it is more than 400 feet high. At its base some hospitable Californians are entertaining the petty officers from a British cruiser. We all join hands around the tree. It takes 15 of us stretched to the full to compass it! After compliments, jokes and photographs the guide remarks that this tree is certainly between 3000 and 5000 years old. It has been growing all this time and is still full of life and vigor.

Giants Unharmed by Fire.

Devastating fires have swept through the forest scores of times during its existence, and have licked up the undergrowth and all ordinary trees and vegetation; but they could not harm the giants. Sometimes a large ring of burnt wood from flames extinguished 1000 years ago is found when redwood trees are cut down. They can survive everything, and heal every wound they receive. These trees were already old "when the smoke of sacrifice arose from the Pantheon and camelopards bounded in the Flavian Amphitheater," and, but for the timber companies, they may "still continue in undiminished vigor" when Macauley's traveler from New Zealand "takes his stand upon a broken arch of London Bridge to sketch the ruins of St. Pauls." They have been growing as long as the Pyramids have stood. They will grow as long as the Californians allow them.

Let me turn another page of my scrap book. I am at the top of the tallest building in San Francisco. Dizzy depths yawn beneath the window sills. The chairman of the telephone company has invited me to have 10 minutes' talk with my wife in England. I take up the instru-

British Jurist Discusses American Prohibition

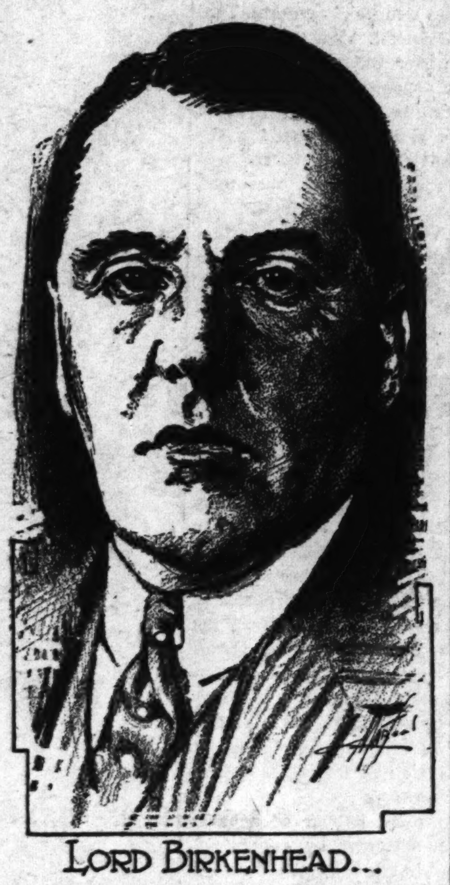
Reformers Have Infected the Nation With Hysterical Madness, Says Lord Birkenhead

Believes United States Ought to Take Steps to Save Souls of Own People Before Sinking Foreign Liquor Ships Far From Shores of This Country.

Forbidding of Public Sale of Spirits and Permitting Wines and Beer Would Satisfy 99 Out of 100 Persons, Former Lord Chancellor Thinks.

By the Earl of Birkenhead.

(Copyright, 1929)



LORD BIRKENHEAD...

FREDERICK EDWIN SMITH, Earl of Birkenhead, distinguished barrister and former Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, has written numerous books on international law and politics. Born a poor boy, he won a scholarship at Oxford and made a swift success in law. Lord Birkenhead gained prominence for his prosecution of Sir Roger Casement for treason during the World War and by taking a leading part in crushing the 1926 general strike. He opposed Ramsay MacDonald's Labor Government and helped effect the overturn of November, 1924, after which Premier Stanley Baldwin made him Secretary of State for India. Although a staunch opponent of prohibition, he once won a wager by remaining a teetotaler for 12 months.

IT is never very seemly to attempt to pass final judgment upon the social institutions of a friendly country. There is so much danger that, by ignorance or prejudice, one may overlook or overstress certain aspects of a controversial subject to the exclusion of others; moreover, a foreigner may so easily and so unwittingly affront national pride. For this reason, though I have never concealed my views on the subject of prohibition as a whole, I have never attempted to criticise its workings inside the United States.

This has not been altogether from lack of material; it has been difficult for the last few years either to speak to an American or to anybody else about America, or to read any form of literature about the United States, without sooner or later being confronted with the latest information and scandal about the workings of prohibition in that country. I am assured that imported liquor was never so good or so cheap in America since the war as today; that home brewing has reached an unprecedented pitch of perfection; that even the apparently most unappetizing of liquids, home fermented grape-juice, is now so produced as to be drinkable. However, as I say, it seems to me none of my business to seek such information; still less, to impart it to others. But during the last few months prohibition has, not for the first time, ceased to be a purely internal concern of the United States. The sinking of the I'm Alone has brought it once more into the sphere of international relations.

I am not concerned here to discuss the actual circumstances of the pursuit of the I'm Alone. The two nations chiefly involved, Canada and the United States, have decided to refer the whole incident to arbitration; I have no information about it except what has appeared in the press.

What seems to be undisputed is that the I'm Alone was observed on March 20 by the revenue cutter Walcott when it was no less than eight, and possibly as many as 14, miles off the shore of Louisiana. The officer in charge of the Walcott ordered the I'm Alone to heave to; when the master refused, on the ground that he was "on the high seas," the cutter set off after it in pursuit. The chase continued for two days, when the I'm Alone was sunk, "about 215 miles south by east from the entrance to New Orleans," by another revenue cutter which had joined in the chase. One of the crew of the I'm Alone was drowned when the vessel sank. The others were picked up and taken to New Orleans, where they were lodged in chains, pending proceedings. However, the charges were soon withdrawn and the men were released. It is also not denied that the I'm Alone was a rum-runner. Her captain, with a frankness worthy of a better cause, has gloried in the fact. She cleared from Belize, British Honduras, for Bermuda; but she was, it is stated, 500 miles off her course when she ran into the first revenue vessel.

Point on Which Case Hinges Is True Position of Craft.

WHAT are the international agreements governing such incidents as these? First, of course, there is the old territorial limit of three miles, recognized by every civilized country; had the I'm Alone been within three miles of the shore there could be no question of doubt in the case. But, she was farther out.

The activities of rum-runners ever since prohibition was introduced in the United States have led to various adjustments. Congress once attempted to set up a 12-mile limit, instead of the original three miles, for the purpose of prohibition; this change has, of course, never been accepted by either the British or Canadian Governments, but by the treaties of 1928 between the United States and the British and Canadian Governments the latter undertook to "raise no objection" to the search and possible seizure of vessels suspected of rum-running, where these are not "at a greater distance from the coast of the United States, its territories or possessions, than can be traversed in one hour by the vessel suspected of endeavoring to commit the offense."

The actual point, therefore, upon which the present arbitration chiefly turns is the true position of the I'm Alone when the "hot pursuit" began, and the validity for the continuance of this pursuit and its termination by a different pursuer long after all territorial limits were passed. And this, I repeat, must at present be left to the arbitrators who have the full material by which to judge.

But the underlying question is a broader one. It is whether prohibition can be held to be an ideal of such supreme importance to the world that offenses against it convert the culprits into humane gentis hostes—mere pirates. Is the world ready to declare this? I am on the whole doubtful whether the drink trade can properly be compared with the old slave trade. Bottle is not torn from bottle amidst the heartrending shrieks of the maternal cask. No immortal soul is delivered over to bondage and condemned to the horrors of moral deterioration when a case of wine is flung into a cellar; on the contrary, the wine usually improves by keeping.

On the other hand, can liquor be compared with opium and cocaine and other drugs whose misuse all civilized nations are banded together to destroy? The essence of their danger is that it is found impossible to use them in moderation; wherever they are self-administered in white countries, they are invariably abused. I must really deny that this is the case with drink. The white countries which have the largest proportion of drinkers are notoriously the most sober. I refer to France and Italy. Lest it should be thought that this may be due to some special virtue in wine above other alcoholic products, I hasten to add that in my experience, Germany, with its colossal consumption of beer, is also among the soberest countries I have ever visited.

One thing is quite certain: Whatever may be my moral burden, as a white man, in relation to my black brothers, I certainly do not feel myself under any obligation towards the American people in regard to drink. They may be a young nation, but they are quite old enough to be able to taste liquor without immediately becoming drunkards. If they are not, I grant they are perfectly well entitled to guard their shores from the wicked substance by every means in their power; but, before they attempt to justify sinking British ships two hundred miles from the coast, it is reasonable to suggest that they should take more domestic steps to save their own souls.

It is, for example, notorious that drink is still available for anybody who can afford to pay high prices for it in practically every hotel in every city of the United States. The lift-boy is understood to be the usual channel of approach to the bootlegger. It is clear that by closing all hotels—or, alternatively, putting out of action all the lifts in them—a grave source of moral infection would be removed. Then again it cannot be denied that a certain number of Americans, leaving their own country for Europe, almost immediately fall a prey to foreign temptation, and are seen to indulge in strong liquor.

Indeed they are understood to express a liking for such temptation, positively even to lay themselves open to it by traveling rather on foreign boats which carry liquor than on American-owned vessels which do not. Hence we have lately been treated to the spectacle of a controversy whether or not American-owned vessels should buy liquor in France to last the journey back to America, where, at the 12-mile limit, the residue is to be thrown overboard, to the same moral advantage of the American people as that famous jettisoning of another baleful drink one hundred and fifty years ago in Boston harbor.

Suggests Fence Be Built Around Country to Help Enforce Law.

IT is surely clear that there is only one way by which the American Government can hope to save its people from contamination by the drink-sodden foreigner. This is to forbid Americans to leave the United States under any circumstances at all; only thus, by the reinforcement of the revenue services and by the erection of an electric ring fence all round God's own country, will it be possible to keep out the foreign virus and to exterminate the germ inside the country.

If this seems extreme, it is surely more proper that the rigors of moral enforcement should fall upon the people whom they are designed to benefit than upon foreign sailors. When one remembers that importance which the American Government attached during the war (until they came into it) to the enigmatic doctrine of the Freedom of the Seas, it is surely not too much to suggest that some respect for the rights of vessels on the high seas should remain even now. The I'm Alone, by a frank confession that its business was rum-running, has prevented the recent incident developing into too dangerous an international episode. At the same time I am dubious whether the whole moral worth of prohibition is great enough to be weighed in the balance against the loss of the I'm Alone and the drowning of its colored boatswain.

Thinks That Opposing Forces in U. S. Are 'Nicely Divided.'

THERE is, for example, no evidence whatever that the better elements of the American people are solidly in favor of prohibition, or the worse elements massed against it. The forces would appear to be nicely divided: on one side, in favor of prohibition, the moral fanatics and the bootleggers: on the other, against it, the mass of ordinary men and women who resent the inconvenience to which they are put by the agents of the unpopular side.

With a situation so complex, and a position so admittedly obscure, for it has yet to be proved that prohibition has not spread the practice of excessive drinking from a small class to a great and substituted bad liquor for good, it seems monstrous that the American enforcement officers should be in a position to cause fantastic inconvenience to masses of people and to precipitate international difficulties. Every normal foreigner who visits the United States becomes automatically either a law-breaker or a dyspeptic, depending upon his maintenance or abandonment of his customary habits of light drinking. Every passenger on a ship to the United States finds himself treated, by inference, as a dipsomaniac lunatic, as the vessel nears New York and the stock of liquor is locked away from his thirsty gaze.

The more I ponder the rise and phenomena of prohibition, the more I wonder at the hysterical madness with which professional reformers can infect an intelligent people. If ever there was a controversy which shrieked for the solution of the Golden Mean, it is that surrounding prohibition. Everybody knows that there is one solution which would satisfy 99 out of every 100 is that, while the public sales of spirits remained prohibited, that of beer and wines should be allowed. Only the bootleggers would suffer for this; the health of the nation would, by all but the most fanatical criteria, vastly benefit.

France's Faltering Attitude Menace to Success of Young Plan in Germany, Says Marx

Definite Decision on Saar District Would Clear Atmosphere—Nationalist Party Comes to Inglorious End.

By Wilhelm Marx,
Thrice Chancellor of Germany.
(Copyright, 1929.)

BERLIN, Dec. 14.

DECEMBER first was a day of jubilation for the Germans in the occupied districts. At midnight on Nov. 30, the bells of all the churches in the Second Zone—Coblenz, Andernach, Euskirchen, Dueren and Aachen—began to peal and happy people filled the streets. At "German Corner" in Coblenz, where the Moselle joins the Rhine, and in Aachen, the ancient imperial city, Ministers of State and other high officials congregated to celebrate in a worthy manner the liberation of the Second Zone from foreign occupation.

Only they who lived through the years of occupation by foreign troops after the conclusion of peace can fully realize the greatness of the sacrifices on the part of the inhabitants or estimate at the full value the heroic strength of character with which the people, with almost superhuman self-mastery, for so long a time have been able to avoid any conflicts with those foreign troops.

No Important Clashes.

Apart from the petty collisions, which on only the rarest occasions have even aroused a suspicion of purposeful intention, and which were mainly due to free indulgence of strong drink, no important clashes between the inhabitants and the foreign military forces came to pass. Even the departure of the troops passed off without a single cry of derision or insult.

Only a great people conscious of its worth conducts itself thus even when suffering under the blows of fate.

The officials of the district did everything possible to bring this about. But the evacuation itself—and history will leave no doubt about this—is due to the immovable will and to the understanding of German governments, of Chancellors Fehrenbach and Wirth and also of Foreign Minister Stresemann, whose all too premature death was a loss for the world and with whom I had the privilege of working for three years in complete harmony and mutual trust.

The evacuation of the Second Zone will be followed at the latest on June 30, 1930, by the evacuation of the Third Zone, and thus the way will be made free for understanding and reconciliation between the French and German people whom fate has made such immediate neighbors. One has a right to expect of the French people and their statesmen that they will measure up to their great tasks and that, remembering the great past, France's statesmen will also give more heed to the welfare of humanity in general than to petty and temporary advantages of their own nation.

Up to French People.

It will rest with the second Hague conference to demonstrate whether the French people and their leaders are inspired by this world-encompassing spirit. France's responsible politicians could regard with justified anxiety the course and success of Herr Hugenberg's effort—so senseless and opposed to the interests of the German nation—to prevent by referendum the adoption of the Young Plan. With an incomparable decisiveness, the German people have foiled this comedy. The number required for holding a general plebiscite was exceeded only by 7411 votes, and this result was absolutely depressing even for many members of the German National Party.

But now the German Reichstag has had to pass on the measure proposed by Hugenberg, and only the National Socialists, who have but 12 members in parliament, voted for it with enthusiasm. The outcome gave new proof of the real sentiments of Germany's parliamentary representatives and hence of the German people themselves. The very first paragraph of the proposed law was rejected by a vote of 317 to 82 and this was the best showing that could be made by Hugenberg's followers. The notorious paragraph four, which would punish for treason any Minister who accepted the Young plan, was not even supported by all the German Nationals. Only 60 deputies voted for it.

The inglorious end of the referendum is being followed by the inglorious end of the German National party. The next few days will see the formation of a new party to which it can be said without fear of contradiction the most tried and intelligent members of the old party will belong. This will be a party which by virtue of its whole make-up, will be in a position to carry on a calm, sensible and truly national plebiscite itself, which will be held on Dec. 22. So far from obtaining affirmative votes of the requisite more than 20,000,000 voters, it will probably not secure so many votes as were cast for the petition for a plebiscite. With the exception of the National Socialists and part of the German Nationals, all other parties will remain away from the polls.

Real Will of People.

And as a result of all this, the real will and desire of the German people is again demonstrated beyond all shadow of doubt, and Germans now have the right to demand that other nations of the world, insofar as they have not yet formed a decision, shall confide to the uttermost in the good-will of the German nation to continue unfalteringly its policy of understanding and insofar as it lies in its power to support and further the peaceful co-operation of all nations. It cannot, to be sure, be said as yet whether the Young plan will secure a majority in the Reichstag. This continuing uncertainty is without doubt highly regrettable and damaging. But it is in part and most obviously due to the Cabinet crisis in France and to the uncertain attitude of the French Government.

In view of the tremendous and extraordinarily heavy financial burdens which this plan imposes on the German people the parties that are determined to carry on an honest and responsible policy must consider very seriously whether such burdens can be borne even for the coming ten years. A warning signal of special significance is contained in the memorandum of Doctor Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank. Dr. Schacht wants to show foreign countries that he has with justice to present the Young plan as the utmost that the German people can carry in the present situation. In the meantime, additional burdens have been placed on the German nation. These do not include only the compulsory fulfillment of the demands entered at The Hague conference nor the necessity of taking over payment of thirty million marks for occupation costs, but in addition to those must be included many hundred millions in the war claims that Germany must take over from England and Poland.

Young Load Increased.

Let us speak frankly: The Young plan load has already been increased by perhaps five to six millions. Dr. Schacht is convinced that his Paris judgment and his Paris signature do no longer correspond to the actual situation. Dr. Schacht turns also the German Government. He wants the Government to bring out its fi-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mr. Hoover's Revolutionary Action.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MR. HOOVER proposes an economic council to maintain a permanent watch over the progress of national production and the distribution of wealth. "There will be a roll call of 32 of the nation's distinct industries."

In the past, and up to the present moment, there has been a volunteer, invisible, irresponsible Soviet, and it has been a flop. The Government has attempted always to keep the nation in its pristine condition of anarchy—every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost. It has attempted to prop up the decaying system of "competition" and has penalized efforts toward co-operation.

Today some 3,000,000 working people are unemployed. Small business men are as helpless as the unorganized working people. The time payment system of purchases has merely been so much strychnine in the veins of commerce. Mass production must have markets. The supreme contradiction of the anarchistic, competitive system shows itself—hard times at the moment the country is at the height of productive efficiency. Not because of famine, not because of poor crops, not because of lack of labor or lack of machinery, this country faces the grimmest Christmas in many decades.

Hoover is an engineer, with an unparalleled experience in administration, and a public servant, rather than a retainer for any private or special interest. He sees that the fault lies in "distribution" and that this fault can be corrected only by human control of economic process. Hoover proposes that this human control shall be established.

Russia started operating the "assembly" or Soviet system under the worst possible conditions for the test. America takes up the scheme under the best possible conditions for success. It means a new world. Hoover says, "We must abolish poverty." It can abolish poverty.

In this crisis, as in all other crises, parliamentary government based on geographical representation by politicians shows itself to be utterly futile. Hoover's action is revolutionary. That's just what the situation needs. And unless I miss my guess, everybody, capital and labor, Republican, Democrat and Socialist, merchant, farmer, wage-earner, will say, "Go to it, Herb!"

Give us an American system of production and distribution control that matches the efficiency of the American automobile. We don't want England's "doles," Italy's dictatorship of the capitalist class, or Russia's dictatorship of the proletariat. What we want, Herb, is the preservation of the marvelous system of production the U. S. A. has developed, used full time, with expanding production, united with the American idea of democratic control.

Art in Reverse.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SPEAKING about the picture which was awarded the $500 prize at the academy in New York, in spite of hanging upside down, reminds me that there are only two things in art which are just as good upside-down as rightside-up—a fragment of a Grecian statue and a modernist picture.

Guess that will hold you for a while!

VEESAICH.

Mr. Appelbaum Amplifies His Suggestion

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REPLYING to Charles Anderson's letter in answer to the writer's regarding fraudulent trust deeds and the advisability of changing the law so as to make it less easy to commit fraud, the writer wishes to state that the changes also contemplated the following:

At present when a deed of trust is foreclosed and the purchaser at the auction sale presents his trustee's deed to the Recorder for record, nothing is done about the original deed of trust and notes on which foreclosure was had. They should be demanded by the Recorder and stamped "Foreclosed." It is very easy now for an unscrupulous person acquiring possession of such deed of trust and notes (with the security gone) to sell them to an innocent purchaser who thinks the property is still behind the notes.

Similarly, when a partial release is made, the law now does not require the Recorder to make a notation on the original deed of trust and notes that part of the property has been taken away from the mortgage. Cases are by no means rare where a sharper, who sells a trust deed and notes to an innocent purchaser, fraudulently releases a large portion of the property behind the notes by filing a deed of partial release.

There would seem to be no logic in the present law, which says that when a FULL deed of release is offered for record the notes must be produced and canceled before the Recorder, but which does not require similar action in cases of partially released and foreclosed deeds of trust.

The provision for the identification of notes by the Recorder was designed to prevent the fraudulent duplication of sets of notes covered by one trust deed. This identification is now optional.

The changes proposed certainly will be beneficial. They are based on many cases of sad experience. Clapping the culprit into jail does not restore the spoils to the defrauded victim.

ALBERT J. APPELBAUM,
Member Mo. House of Representatives.

MR. HOOVER AND POWER REGULATION.

In abandoning his position against any kind of Federal regulation of electric power companies, Mr. Hoover took refuge in a half-way measure. He proposes, in cases involving interstate transmission of power, that the initial regulatory action be taken by the states themselves acting jointly, this joint action to be made effective by the Federal Power Commission; in cases of nonaction or disagreement, the Federal Commission would be authorized to act on its own motion.

This is no new idea. It reflects a suggestion made in the Federal Power Commission's 1928 report, which, in turn, borrowed it from an ill-considered section of Gifford Pinchot's giant power plan. Authority for compacts between states is expressed negatively in the Constitution, Section 10, Article I, thus:

> No state shall, without the consent of Congress * * * enter into any agreement or compact with another state.

Since 1789, Congress has given its consent to only 39 compacts between the states, the great majority of which related to boundary disputes. In only three cases has the compact clause been used with relation to public utility matters, none of any pertinence in the present connection.

To exhume this moribund device seems to us to be an apologetic and half-hearted way of attacking a great and growing problem. Ordinarily the Federal Government is not so reticent in assuming responsibility. For it to surrender voluntarily the direct regulatory action which it must in the end assume over interstate transmission of power is an unnatural and evasive procedure.

There is no reason to believe that an untried method of regulation by joint state action would be successful. States are necessarily jealous of their own interests, as has been proved in the long and tumultuous history of railroad rate regulation. So unfair were the states in setting up discriminatory intrastate rates that the Supreme Court, in a long series of decisions from the Shreveport case to the Dayton-Goose Creek case, has established the principle that, insofar as the intrastate portion of the business is so intimately connected with the interstate part that the regulation of the interstate part cannot be obtained without controlling the intrastate part, then the latter falls within the constitutional scope of the Federal power.

Many problems in electric power regulation arise where a distributing company buys its power from a generating subsidiary across state lines. The state where the power is distributed is immensely interested in the price paid for this power, as well as the subsidiary's costs. Under Mr. Hoover's plan, it could suggest joint action to open the subsidiary's books. But the state in which the generating subsidiary is located, having no interest in the matter and desiring to protect a local industry, could, and in all likelihood would, block joint action.

The point we have in mind is that Mr. Hoover advocates a roundabout and indirect method of regulation, derived from the compact clause of the Constitution, when a direct method, derived from the interstate commerce clause, is at hand. It is indisputable that the interstate commerce clause gives the Federal Government full authority to regulate directly interstate transmission of power.

It is frequently asserted that, since power transmitted across state lines is only 10 per cent of the total, this phase of electric power regulation is comparatively unimportant. Nothing could be more absurd. In the space of five years interstate power transmission has doubled in volume. If the growth and centralization of the electrical industry continues at its present rate, regulation of interstate transmission will soon become of commanding importance.

Partaking of the magic of electricity itself is the meteoric rise of the electric power industry. High tension transmission, paving the way for a rebirth of the electric industry, dates back only 30 years. From 1902, when Census Bureau figures showed the investment in electric utilities to be $628,000,000, the investment grew in 1922 to four and a half billion dollars. In 1926 the investment was estimated at more than six and a half billions.. The electric industry is now larger than the automobile industry, and nearly one-half as large as the railroad business. Its gross earnings were $86,000,000 in 1902. In 1922, doubling in each five-year period, they rose to $1,072,120,000. They now approach two billions a year. In the meantime, control has been passing into fewer and fewer hands, to the end that now the industry is practically in the hands of four or five massive combinations.

It is high time that the principle of regulated monopoly be applied to this young Gargantua, which, even yet, has not reached the crest of its growth. State regulation, besides being limited in scope, has proved inefficient and incompetent. The electric utility companies, moreover, have found it easy to escape from state jurisdiction to the protecting arm of the Federal courts, where public utility law is being made. There remains only the Federal Government to bring order out of chaos; to protect the people, on the one hand, from exorbitant exactions and the electric utilities, on the other hand, from what they consider their greatest enemy, namely, the specter of public ownership. As ex-Gov. Pinchot says:

> If we ever have public ownership of public utilities in America, it will be solely because the public utilities themselves have refused to accept in good faith such reasonable regulation as the public interest requires.

We applauded Mr. Hoover, who, as Secretary of Commerce, was the utilities' chief spokesman against Federal regulation, for reversing himself in his message to Congress. We now urge him to make that reversal complete by substituting for the joint-state-action proposal a thoroughgoing system of direct Federal regulation.

OLD ALEX.

It's au revoir and not adieu for Old Alex. He is to toil next year for the Phillies and will, we trust, make many appearances on the mound at Sportsman's Park. Last year the Phillies, by virtue of the resounding bludgeons of Chuck Klein and his mates, bounded from their old home in the cellar and made a headlong dash for first division. With the cunning of Alex's arm there is no telling what miracles the ex-lowly ones may perform.

Alex, we all remember, was all washed up, as the phrase goes, in 1926. He failed at Chicago and was put on the market. It seemed he was destined for the Smithsonian Institution or some other repository of paleozoic specimens; instead he came to St. Louis and played a major role in winning its first pennant in 38 years. If he rises to plague us as he rose to plague Chicago, it is not because we do not know the habit this ancient prodigy has of rising from the dead.

CHINA'S DISORDERS.

What will happen if Chiang Kai-shek, titular head of the Kuomintung, the People's party and the Nanking Government, is overthown, as now seems probable?

The armed revolt is not against the Kuomintung party, the Nationalist movement or the form of government in China; it is against the control of the party and the Government by Chiang and his associates in the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintung.

Since his victorious march from Canton to Pekin and his setting up of the Nanking Government, Chiang has maintained his place and power by the use of two kinds of ammunition—the "lead bullet" and the "silver bullet"—by fighting or bribery, as circumstances required. There is a limit, however, to bribery, and apparently his soldiers, in arrears of pay as are most Chinese soldiers, are deserting him.

The situation is indicated by the fact that Gen. Feng, the so-called "Christian General," and Gen. Yen, the "model Governor" of Shan-shi, Vice Commander of the Nationalist Army under Chiang, are close friends and allies. All the opponents of Chiang profess devotion to the Kuomintung, founded by the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and his platform embodying the three principles—government of, for and by the people. The downfall of Chiang will mean, therefore, what we would call a change of administration. Chiang and his supporters would be succeeded by another political leader and his friends.

Gen. Feng is the leader in line for the succession. He is rough and democratic in manner. He lives and dresses like a coolie and he proclaims himself the friend of the people. He is popular with the masses. He accuses Chiang of neglecting the people's interests and of enriching himself and his friends. Feng is more radical than Chiang, but does not profess Communism, but his opposition is supported by the Communists and the Russian propagandists, ruthlessly crushed by Chiang. Under Russian propaganda, Communism nearly captured China, and is now a menace to orderly government.

Of course, the successor to Chiang will have to fight over his battles against the jealousies, ambitions and intrigues of the war lords and political leaders. What the outcome will be no one can tell. If a strong enough leader gets to the top there may be a dictatorship, for a time at least. Many well informed men in China think there will be a division of China into several states, the vast territory and population, diversified in language, customs and interests, making unification a difficult achievement.

Meanwhile, there is imminent danger of anarchy and massacres, looting and outrages by unpaid soldiers, bandits and mobs. That is why the warships and soldiers of other nations are hurrying to Chinese ports to protect foreigners and why the Chinese themselves are trying to get within the bounds of guarded foreign concessions. In a thickly populated country whose people are suffering from war and famine anything may happen.

Of course, constructive progress is checked while the political factions fight, but it is unbelievable that a people of the superior quality of the Chinese, who have been started on the progressive road, will turn backward.

THE MODERN AESOP.

A Kansas Turtle one fine day wanted to see what his friend the Badger did underground, so tried to enter the Badger's hole. Soon he found himself caught head downward in the hole, unable to move in either direction. He would have perished had not a high school Boy passing along the road seen the Turtle and pulled him out to safety. The Boy took the Turtle home and made a pet of him. Then he heard of the County Fair at which a Turtle Derby was to be held. The Boy paid a dollar fee and entered his pet. The Turtle was put in a large ring with many others of his kind. When he heard the Boy cheering for him, he began to make tracks as fast as he could. Soon he was outside the circle and the Judges said he had won the race. The proud Boy took home his Turtle and his winnings of $300.

Moral: One never knows what a grateful Turtle will do.

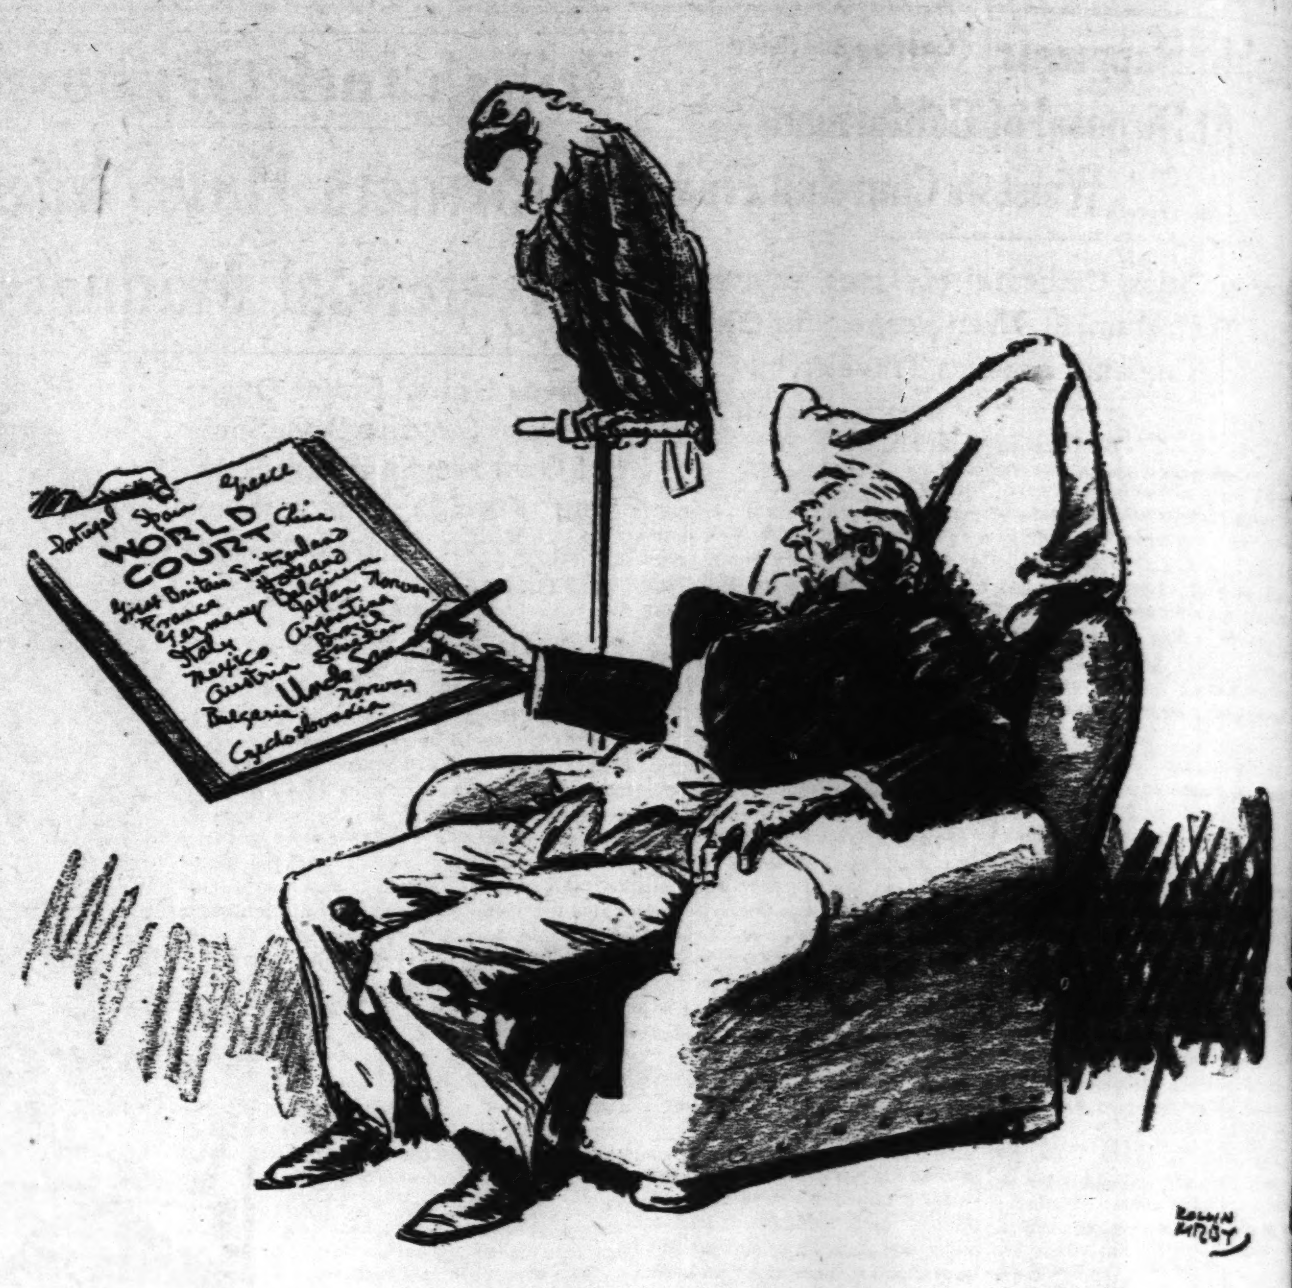
DEFINING STATUTE AND LAW.

The differences between the living body of the law and the mass of obsolete statutes were brought out in an article by Albert Jay Nock recently reprinted on this page. The Kansas City Star now wishes to amend his definition, although admitting that "there is perhaps a loosely definable difference between a statute and a law." Mr. Nock, quoting Jefferson, says the evolution of the law is dictated not by the activities of public servants but by the public conscience, the will of the people. The Star, on the contrary, says a law remains law as long as the authorities are actively attempting to enforce it.

Many moribund pieces of legislation continue to function feebly through the artificial respiration of the professional enforcers. An instance is Missouri's Sunday hunting law, forgotten in most counties, vigorously enforced in others. The Sheriff of Lincoln County and his deputies spent last Sunday running down hunters. Eleven or more were arrested and fined $1 each.

The Pennsylvania blue laws are conspicuous legal senilities. Dating back to 1794, they are enforced to prevent the citizens of that great State from enjoying Sunday recreations permitted elsewhere in the country. These laws expressed the public will when they were passed. They were a great advance over the code of preceding generations, which had such provisions as forbidding a man to kiss his wife on Sunday. But now opinions and customs have changed. Even the devout will agree that such laws have become ridiculous.

The loopholes in the Pennsylvania law show the wide gap between the public will and the law. The owner of an amusement park near Philadelphia continues to operate on Sunday by appearing in court every Monday morning and paying a fine of $4. The law gives the authorities no other power over the individual. But with a corporation it is different, as the Philadelphia Athletics found on attempting to play a Sunday baseball game. Just now a Pennsylvania organization which claims almost a million active members is seeking repeal of the Sunday laws. This is the rebellion of the people against archaic laws that remain in use. Pennsylvania knows that enforcement alone does not give a law applicability and force.



COMING OUT OF HIS COMA.

Why Britain Keeps a King

Excited London crowds who hurrah the King are merely the victims of suppressed desire, says English writer; "common people" dearly love a lord to look at; they revel in all details of royal weddings and births; one smile from Prince of Wales is worth $1000 in extra trade; British crown, in short, is a mere fetish.

Mark Starr in The Advance, Organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

HUMAN frailty plus certain historical factors explain the continuance of the British monarchy. England, as the first country to strike the modern capitalist trail, was ever the land of compromise, of rule of thumb methods, of freedom slowly broadening down from precedent to precedent. The Tudor monarchs allied themselves with the traders and so paved the way for the rejections in the seventeenth century of "the divine right of kings," which the Stuarts foolishly insisted on to the point of death and exile respectively for King Charles I and James II. There was nothing like the alliance in France between the King, the nobility and the church until the middle class broke its bonds with volcanic energy and set up what became the French Republic. The English scene was not so clear of feudal junk as that in which the Fathers of the American Republic found themselves when they made all men equal by the Constitution and then gave the final say to the Supreme Court.

England set up a limited monarchy and retained the House of Lords, but its bourgeoisie secured control over the money bags and the power of taxation, which had in Stuart hands been used to hamper trade. All down through the nineteenth century the intervention of the Crown into politics continued to grow less. Indeed, the only awkwardness created by the royal family for many years was when "Wales" (as press headlines call him) told the world recently that he had found all that had been said about the sad plight of the miners was confirmed by his personal visits. If the Prince of Wales had to be elected, he would not have got the coal owners' vote for many a long day after he had so revealed their mismanagement.

The House of Lords and the official Church of England are other relics which should logically have been swept away. Since they survive, the Labor party has to create peers to be spokesmen in this sort of Second Chamber and Senate, which has few teeth, and fears to use those against the Commons. Mr. MacDonald will also have an opportunity of appointing bishops in case of vacancies and so chances of advancement and the acceptance of Labor's ideals may well coincide, for some of the clergy now support the Labor party.

The common people still dearly love a lord to look at and to have at meetings and on a company prospectus. That is why the whisky, coal, iron and newspaper magnates and their wives thought it worth while to buy feudal flourishes for their names by paying considerable sums of money into the secret funds of the Liberal and Tory parties—which funds, by the way, Mr. MacDonald now proposes to have officially investigated. Out of all the peers and bishops only 100 of those who are the sons of their ducal fathers or who have been kicked upstairs or have purchased their titles, take their places regularly in the House of Lords. The chief use of peers now seems to be to speak in an aristocratic neighborhood and so get a hearing for the Labor party's case. If the House of Lords ever threatened trouble, the Premier could simply ask the King to create enough new peers from a list to overcome the opposition or a drastic reform, if not abolition, would be applied.

Some of the Liberals of the nineteenth century, in their extremist days wanted to remove the monarchy, but later it was, and still is, argued that the British Empire needs an Emperor. The Crown was claimed by Kipling and others to be the golden link which kept that very heterogeneous collection of dominions and dependencies together. If self-government is given to Egypt, India and other places, presumably an enlightened British commonwealth of nations will not need such a fetish. Have Americans, by the way, at the present time calculated the worth of the Prince of Wales as a traveling salesman or as a sort of mascot for British trade? One British journal, after the last visit of the Prince to South America, reckoned that each smile made by him worked out at over $1000 for extra trade.

So much for the history; but here is where human frailty comes in. Fancy dress balls indicate that a love of "dressing-up" is not confined to childhood. We seek for escape from the drudgery of our work and from ourselves. Often this is done vicariously. The suppressed desires of would-be lovers and mothers impel the ordinary newspaper reader to lap up avidly all the details of "York's" wedding and of Princess Mary's babies. Puny, limited human beings, fettered by circumstances, find release and compensation in a ruling monarch "whose word is law." The excited crowds who wait overnight and jam the streets of London to hurrah the King, are escaping from a dull world and unconsciously glorifying themselves by identifying their personality with the object of so much homage. In the same way, the timid clerk and domestic servant reads avidly the confessions of a Don Juan or a murderer whose story has been bought at great price by the popular newspaper, sure of the appetites of its Sunday readers.

The moral of my sermon is that a superficial view of the forms of government is often misleading. There is some truth in:

For forms of government let fools contest.
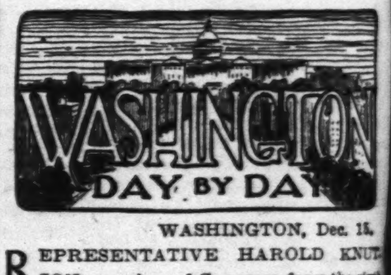
Whate'er is best administered is best.

With a King as a rubber stamp and a House of Lords which fears to take action, constitutional changes and measures of far-reaching social reforms can be adopted in smaller England in a fraction of the time necessary for Congress, Senate, President and Supreme Court to function in the United States. Among influential intellectuals, H. G. Wells alone consistently has advocated republicanism. Only the British Communist party—which prefers the mausoleum in the Red Square at Moscow to the tombs in Westminster Abbey—put the abolition of the monarchy in its program for the recent election. Royal processions are a variation of the "bread and circuses," and why should the Labor party unnecessarily provoke increased opposition?



WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.

REPRESENTATIVE HAROLD KNUTSON, member of Congress from the sixth district of Minnesota, has four canes in his Washington apartment that nothing could induce him to give up.

One is a beautiful amber colored stick that he picked up while on a visit in Costa Rica several years ago. It is made of melted fish scales, poured into a mold.

Another is one carved entirely from the backbone of a shark. He ran across this one in a remote section of the West Indies.

The third is a sword cane stained with blood. This one came from Port-au-Prince and was bought only after Knutson and a Marine officer, stationed in the port, had used much persuasion on the original owner.

The last is a bamboo cane presented him by a Philippine commissioner in Washington, who is a close friend.

The sword cane he prizes the most. He has never been able to learn its exact history, but his difficulty in getting possession of it and the presence of blood stains satisfies him that it has a background.

REPRESENTATIVE KNUTSON long has made a hobby of collecting canes. He has had in his possession canes from almost every country in the world, gathered during the course of his travels.

At the present, however, his collection has dwindled to seven or eight. At one time he had in the neighborhood of 100, but a part of his hobby is giving them away almost as fast as he collects them.

Every evening he takes a long walk. Usually he starts from the Capitol, walks down the hill to Pennsylvania avenue, thence up the avenue to the White House. When he leaves the Capitol he has a cane. But it is rare that he returns from his walk still carrying the cane.

As he swings along Pennsylvania avenue he keeps a sharp lookout for cripples and aged people—men and women. Soon he singles out one who looks deserving. He stops, greets him and makes his little set speech:

"Here's a cane I picked up in the West Indies (or wherever that particular cane came from). I have more than I need. Won't you take it with my compliments?"

He thrusts the cane into the person's hand and continues on his way.

"Sometimes they look at me as if I were a bit off," says Knutson, "but I am usually well up the street by that time. I don't give them an opportunity to refuse."

Approximately 100 canes, many of which came into his hands after much difficulty, have been disposed of in this manner.

KNUTSON'S interest in canes dates back to the time when he was a child. A beautiful and rare old cane that belonged to his grandfather was one of the most valued possessions of his family.

When he grew older his interest found expression in his hobby. As other people gather souvenirs in the various countries they visit, he gathers canes.

ment: My wife speaks to me across one ocean and one continent—one of each. We hear each other as easily as if we were in the same room; or, not to exaggerate, say about half as well again as on an ordinary London telephone. I picture a well-known scene far off in Kent, 7000 miles away. The children come to the telephone. I talk to them through New York and Rugby. They reply through Scotland and Canada. Why say the age of miracles is past? It is just beginning.

In Lick Observatory.

Turn over. We are in the Lick Observatory. A broad, squat cupola has been built by the munificence of a private citizen at the summit of a conical mountain 4000 feet high. All is dark within the observatory. The telescope, its girth not unworthy of the giant trees, peers through a slit of pale but darkening sky.

The dome rotates, the floor sinks, then rises slightly. I sit upon a ladder. The planet Saturn is about to set; but there is just time to observe him. Of course, I know about the rings around Saturn. Pictures of them were shown in all the schools where I was educated. But I was skeptical. We all know how astronomers have mapped the heavens out in the shape of animals. We can most of us—by a stretch of imagination—recognize the "Great Bear;" but still one quite sympathizes with those who call it "The Plough," "Bear" or "Plough"—one is as like it as the other. So I expected to see, when I looked at Saturn, a bright star with some smudges round it, which astronomers had dignified by the name of rings.

In this mood I applied myself to the eyepiece. I receive the impression that some powerful electric light had been switched on by mistake in the observatory, and was in some way reflected in the telescope. I was about to turn and ask that it might be extinguished when I realized that what I saw was indeed Saturn himself. A perfectly modeled globe, distinct with rotundity, with a clear-cut lifebuoy around its middle, all glowing with serene radiance. I gazed with awe and delight upon this sublime spectacle of a world 800,000,000 miles away, which one might almost stretch out one's hand and grasp.

Again the dome rotates, and the floor rises or falls. I am told to look at the heavens with the naked eye. Can I see a very faint star amid several bright ones? It is very far off and quite an achievement to discern it. I see the faintest speck or rather blur of light. Now look through the telescope. Two pairs of lovely diamonds, dazzling in their limpid beauty, gleam on either side of the field of vision. "You are looking," says the astronomer, "at one of our best multiple stars. That faint speck you saw with the eye consists of these double twins, each pair of which revolves on its own axis and simultaneously revolves around the other pair." Celestial jewelry! I forget how long they take to revolve, if, indeed, it is yet known to man, or how far they are apart. Perhaps the light would pass from one to the other in four or five years. But it is all in the books.

Then we return swifter than light across the gulfs of space, and come to the moon, where dawn has just risen on the mountains, tipping them with flame, and casting their silhouettes in violet shadows upon the lunar craters. Thereafter for some time we talk about the heavens and my kindly teachers explain all—or perhaps not all—about nebulae and spiral nebulae. It appears that outside our own universe, with its thousands of millions of suns, there are "at least 2,000,000" other universes, all gyrating and coursing through the heavens like dancers upon a stage. I had not heard of this before, and was inspired to many thoughts sufficiently commonplace to be omitted here. I was disturbed to think of all these universes which had not previously been brought to my attention! I hope that nothing had gone wrong with them.

It is 60 miles from the Lick Observatory to Burlingame, the garden suburb of the San Francisco notables, where we were sheltered for the night. It was a relief, after thinking about "two million" universes, and countless millions of suns, complete with planets, moons, comets, meteoric streams, etc., and the incomprehensive distances which separate them to take up the morning paper (which, according to American custom, is always published the evening before) and to read that the stock markets are still operating, that Mr. J. H. Thomas had a new idea which he was keeping secret about the unemployed, and that Mr. Snowden, by his firm stand for Britain, had surrendered only half a million more of the taxpayers' money. And so to bed.

UNION ELECTRIC TO ISSUE $15,000,000 IN BONDS

Money to Be Spent for Improvements, Application to Service Commission States.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 14.—The Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis today filed application with the State Public Service Commission to issue $15,000,000 of its 5 per cent first mortgage bonds to be sold at not less than 96 per cent of par value. The revenue from the bonds is to cover improvements and extensions the company has made or is making.

A first mortgage bond issue of $75,000,000 by the company was authorized by the State Public Service Commission in 1924 and only $32,201,000 of that amount has been issued so far.

Traffic Snarls in St. Louis Even in Hack Riding Days

James A. McFall Recalls 41 Years of Fads and Innovations in Transporting the Public in Comparative Comfort and Safety.

Tells of Styles in Cabs

J. A. McFALL.

Varnished carriage wheels were still flashing briskly up to the portals of the Southern Hotel, the river front teemed with commerce and the old Union Station was on Poplar street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, when James A. McFall, on his way to open a horse cab business in New York, paused here and decided that St. Louis would do just as well. That was in 1888, when Victorias, Berlins, broughams, leatherheads, cabs and drays rumbled or rattled on their iron tires over the pavements. McFall had found Denver a city of little promise and had sold his business there.

The outlay in 1888 for two cabs and four horses was no small matter, costing nearly $3000. McFall, now 63 years old, but still active in conducting the motorized livery and automobile storage firm which succeeded the two-cab establishment he opened 41 years ago, said the business is valued at $250,000 today.

"But today it's like living in another world," he said with a shake of his head. "It isn't just another age. It's another world. We used to take our time and lead leisurely lives—whether it was in work or play. Now we bustle around as though we had more things to do than an ordinary lifetime would allow. I appreciate the need of speed, but just the same it's too bad we can't take our time in moving around whenever we feel like it."

Rubber Tires in 1889.

Rubber tires on horse-drawn vehicles did not make their advent here until about 1889, when they were first seen on some of the splendid carriages owned by the first Adolphus Busch. Private cabbies and owners of cab companies were highly skeptical of the merits of the new departure, McFall said. His were the first commercial cabs in St. Louis to be so equipped, despite the unhappy consequences predicted by his friendly rivals.

"They warned me I'd go broke replacing the tires which they said would wear out too soon. I remember the first set cost me $140 and it took all day and part of the night to install them. Most of the boys said I was letting myself in for a lot of accidents. They meant that the cabs would bounce all over the streets and often turn over if you whipped up the horses a little. I did wonder some about this, because all our hard surface streets were paved with granite blocks or cobblestones.

"The relief from the shocks of bumps that the rubber tires made possible was wonderful. It was heavenly riding along quietly after years and years of the grinding noise of iron tires."

McFall's first place of business was a few doors north of Poplar street, on Twelfth street. He and his drivers maintained a "stand" at the old Union Station close by. Most of the cabs were privately owned by the drivers.

Hansom Cabs a Fad.

"Hansom cabs were placed on the streets here about 1890," he stated. "They were a fad and did not last long. They fell into disrepute among the respectable horse lovers because the "fast set" used them so much they soon became the symbol of the type of people who rode in them."

McFall, his business in the present location at 18 North Nineteenth street, was a pioneer in recognizing the significance of the automobile. Most of the old cabbies and cab concerns placed little faith in the new machines again saying they were too expensive and within the means of rich people only. The exhibition and demonstration of motor cars at the World's Fair convinced him of the worth of automobiles, he said. Still, it was not simple to change and it was not until December, 1908 that he disposed of the last of his hacks and cabs.

Amusing incidents followed when the dyed-in-the-wool cabbies employed by McFall were taught to drive automobiles. Some despaired but most of them doggedly embraced the new-fangled idea. Runaway horses and mules caused considerable alarm to solid citizens.

One of McFall's drivers, new at motoring, collided with a team of mules at Eighteenth street and Shenandoah avenue and the terrified animals, breaking away from the wagon, clattered east and were never seen again, by their owner. The driver of the team expressed the belief that the team jumped into the river.

"The funny part about these accidents was that I never got into a lawsuit over them," McFall laughed. "I guess the people weren't educated in the art of suing. We never did find out who owned those mules but I paid for an express wagon mule that another driver of mine killed with one of our automobiles at Seventeenth and Locust streets."

ONE OF 34 PERSONS MADE FLIGHT IN 1929

Total Miscellaneous Mileage for Year Put at 120,000,000 by U. S.

Reports being compiled by the Department of Commerce indicate that 3,527,000 persons will have ridden in airplanes in the United States in 1929. On this basis one person of every 34 in the United States has made a flight in the course of the year.

An average of 254 passengers is carried each day over regularly-scheduled air lines and it is estimated by the Departmnet of Commerce that 8500 passengers are carried daily in all classes of flying. There are now 90,909 miles of flying scheduled daily over established routes. During the first six months of 1929 there was a total of 47,000,000 miles of miscellaneous flying, including instruction flights, as compared with 12,000,000 miles during the same period in 1928. It is estimated that this year's miscellaneous mileage will exceed 120,000,000, compared with 60,000,000 miles last year.

There are now in the United States 9300 licensed pilots, 7200 licensed mechanics, 6500 licensed planes and 3100 airplane identifications. Flying students under instruction number 28,800, there are 22 approved flying schools and 271 approved types of aircraft, the report shows.

Marx Criticises French Attitude Toward Young Plan

nance plan and its other financial plans. This action of Schacht will not lead to a cabinet crisis principally because the unbelievable political folly of Hugenberg has made the formation of another Cabinet impossible. It is also to be hoped, however, that Schacht's memorandum will bring the Social-Democratic party, who are represented by the Chancellor and Minister of Finance, to see that party doctrines must give way before hard necessity, and the people to see that they must learn to surrender the fulfillment of many desires in order to save the whole. The action of Schacht, as to whose position as expert there can be little doubt, may have really worth-while consequences. In any event it has already resulted in bringing from the Government a promise that the proposal for financial reform would be made public without delay.

In any event, a number of questions must be cleared up before the Center party can vote for the Young plan. Prelate Kaas, the party's national chairman, found his party solidly united behind him when he decalred that before the plan could be adopted it must be definitely settled what was to be done in respect to the Saar district. However, he did not say there must be a final adjustment of the whole situation before the adoption of the plan. But such a final adjustment would be most welcome. If France honestly desires the peaceful co-operation of our two peoples, the Saar question must not remain an apple of discord.

Must Have Free Hand.

For economic reasons alone, Germany must have a free hand in respect to the mines and the smelters of the Saar. It cannot be denied that the productive capacity of German workmen in this district will be greatly increased if they are reunited with the Fatherland and can again feel that their labors are benefiting their own country. Even the French no longer cherish any doubt as to the unshakeable German sentiments of the inhabitants of the Saar district. For they have seen too many proofs of the absolute dependability of the Saar workers. The French have done everything possible to anger and alienate the miners and the rest of the population of the district.

The zealous efforts of Hugenberg and his friends to combat and belittle the International Bank are without any doubt thoroughly in error. The fact alone that the Reparations Commission is to disappear as soon as the bank is established is a great gain for Germany herself is to have a decisive influence in the direction of the bank. Fundamental decisions and especially alterations of the Constitution of the bank cannot be made against her will. Results of great importance for the economic life of the whole world and for world peace can grow out of the International Bank. That this possibility shall be made a reality must be assured adequately in the coming negotiations. If these negotiations succeed, the evacuation of the still-occupied districts and the acceptance of the Young Plan will usher in a new and, it is to be hoped, a fruitful period of world history.

SEVERAL BUSINESS SITES ACQUIRED IN WEEK'S DEALS

Standard Oil Co. Buys Lot at Corner of Cass and Garrison Avenues Through Cornet & Zeibig

RENEWED ACTIVITY ON OLIVE STREET

Milton Oil Co. Takes Lease on Kingshighway and Kensington Avenue Corner for 15 Years.

By Berry Moore.

Negotiations were closed during the week for several outstanding corners in the uptown and central business districts. These include both outright purchases and leases. The Standard Oil Co. of Indiana purchased the southwest corner of Cass and Garrison avenues, through Cornet & Zeibig, while the Milton Oil Co. acquired a long lease of the northwest corner of Kingshighway boulevard and Kensington avenue, through Le Grand Jones, Inc., both as sites for filling stations.

It is understood a handsome price was paid by the Standard company for the Cass avenue corner, which dominates one of the stop signal intersections in that section. The lot, now occupied by an old residence, has 97 feet on Cass avenue and 125 feet on Garrison. Both Cass and Garrison avenues have recently been resurfaced. The lot was owned by Frank Zangaro.

The Kingshighway and Kensington corner lease is for a 15-year term. The lot has 72 feet on Kingshighway and 133 feet on Kensington. The Milton Oil Co. was represented in the negotiations by the Weiss Meyerrick Realty Co.

Plans Business Building.

The announcement as to the Kingshighway corner puts a quietus on the report, persistent for several weeks, that this site and adjoining property had been acquired by Montgomery Ward with plans for a department store. In communications to real estate agencies, the Montgomery Ward firm denies the report that it contemplates establishing department store chains in St. Louis at this time.

Approximately three-quarters of a block of vacant ground at the southeast corner of Eichelberger and January avenues was sold by the real estate department of the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. to an undisclosed client, who has plans for a large business building. The purchase has 233 feet on Eichelberger and 120 feet on January. Martin Stubblefield, Inc., represented the purchaser.

Earnest money contracts have been closed by the Mercantile Commerce for other sites in this part of the city for business buildings, but the exact location and identity of the purchasers will be withheld pending final papers.

Sale of the property at the southeast corner Franklin and Leffingwell avenues, 125x135 feet, to Hyman Kessler was announced yesterday by the Herman Gottlieb & Co. It comprises seven stores and seven flats. The price was not disclosed.

Many Projects in View.

The week witnessed a revival in the demand for property on Washington avenue, Locust and Olive streets, between Twelfth and Grand boulevards, sought principally because of speculative possibilities. Negotiations virtually were concluded for holdings on both Locust street and Washington avenues, through the Mercantile Commerce Co. Negotiations are being carried on for the vacant lot at the northwest corner of Eighteenth and Locust streets, recently placed on the market by the Mercantile Commerce, exclusive agents for this site.

The undertone of the real estate market is reassuring, from both an investment and speculative viewpoint. From present indications the demand for business purposes will be a factor in renewed activity in both the investment and speculative fields.

Several new building projects of a business nature are in the offing, but comparatively few promise to take tangible form until after the first of the year. While plenty of capital is available for the more meritorious ventures, investment banking houses, the principal sources of funds for buildings of the skyscraper class, are reluctant to commit themselves at this time, preferring to await some definite indication of the 1930 trend in business. Meanwhile plans are being submitted, with estimated cost of construction, with a view to beginning construction as soon as financial arrangements have been made.

New Hotel Proposed.

The newest downtown project looks to the erection of a hotel structure on a centrally situated Twelfth boulevard corner. The site, which has figured in plans for several ambitious projects, offers decided advantages for improvement of this type.

Plans have been made for an impressive number of representative structures to replace pioneer buildings on Olive and Pine streets between Eighth street and Broadway. The most noteworthy of these projects involve prominent Olive street corners, the improvements of which are obsolete, making imperative new and modern structures.

A number of offers have been submitted for property on Broadway and on Fourth street, between Washington avenue and Pine street, interesting as presaging important developments in these sections. Specialty concerns, it is understood, seek locations on Broadway, in several instances having plans for new buildings.

Plans are being discussed once more for a tower building to occupy the center of the Bank of Commerce block, on the east side of Broadway between Olive and Pine streets. The tower structure would take the place of the former Post-Dispatch building, and would connect, with architectural consistency, the Bank of Commerce building at the Olive street corner and Federal Commerce Trust building at Pine street.

Finished throughout in marble, with exterior of stone, the former Bank of Commerce buildings are second to none in the city.

Several large stock and bond houses are said to be negotiating for ground floor space in this block.

HILLS MANSION SOLD TO MICHIGAN MAN

Deal for Dwelling at 5065 Lindell Arranged by Henry R. Weisels Co.

Sale of the former residence of Mrs. Eva Sturges Hills at 5065 Lindell boulevard to James MacCallum Jr., a former manufacturer of Ann Arbor, Mich., who will occupy it, is announced by Henry R. Weisels, Inc.

The Hills residence, which is directly opposite the main entrance to Forest Park, has long been considered one of the city's finest mansions. It is said to have cost when built more than $200,000. The sale price was not disclosed.

The exterior is of cut stone and marble, with 12 Corinthian stone columns. The residence contains 15 rooms and five baths. There are inlaid Indian teakwood floors and the interior finish is mahogany and bird's-eye maple. A ballroom is on the third floor. There is also a two-story stone garage for four automobiles, with an apartment for the chauffeur. The lot is 100x105 feet.

The house was erected before the St. Louis World's Fair by Charles Hills, then vice president of the Catlin Tobacco Co.

Mrs. Hills offered to present the residence to the Missouri Historical Society as a memorial to her husband with the understanding it was to be used as a memorial building. William K. Bixby, who at that time was president of the society, was reluctantly compelled to decline the offer, because the restrictions on Westmoreland place also applied to the Lindell frontage, from Kingshighway to Union boulevard, and would not permit of the building's use other than as a private residence.

Mr. and Mrs. MacCallum and their daughter, Jean, will occupy their new home shortly after Jan. 1.

House at 4727 Cupples Pl. Sold.

Cornet & Zeibig Realty Co. reports the sale of an eight-room residence, 4727 Cupples place, to Adele Lavat. This property was owned by Douglas N. Robert, fronting 27 feet on Cupples place by a depth of 114 feet.

EASTERN FIRM LEASES 817 LOCUST STREET

Peck and Peck to Establish Branch Store There After the First of the Year.

Peck & Peck, dealers in hosiery, women's clothing and men's neckwear, have obtained a lease on the building No. 817 Locust street. Isaac T. Cook Co. and the Mercantile Commerce Bank and Trust Co. of St. Louis. The site was formerly occupied by the Kortkamp Jewelry Co. Peck & Peck expects to open a store there after the first of the year.

Peck & Peck have stores in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Mich., Wellesley, Mass., French Lick Springs, Ind., Petoskey, Mich., Palm Beach and Miami Beach, Fla., Newport, R. I., Southampton, Hyannis and Magnolia, Mass, and Lake Placid, N. Y.

The firm of Peck & Peck was founded about 50 years ago by George F. Peck, who started with a stock of hosiery he had to replenish daily, paying his rent by the day as well. Stockings retailing for as much as $500 a pair are carried in the Peck stores, regular stock along with goods of more modest price.

SEVERAL DOWNTOWN LEASES HANDLED BY MULLIN-WALTERS

J. D. Carson & Co. has leased the five-story and basement building at 1116 Olive street. The whole building will be occupied as a furniture salesroom and stockroom. The deal was handled by the Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

Goldberg-Gibstein Millinery Co. has leased the western half of the eighth floor of the Lindell Building, 808 Washington avenue. The owners in this transaction were represented by Arthur W. Rehfeldt.

The Acme Rubber Manufacturing Co. of Trenton, N. J., has leased the third floor at 617 North Eighth street. M. Handelman has leased the fifth floor in the same building, to be used as a factory, office and stockroom for the manufacture of men's clothing. This lease was made for the Meyer-Bannerman Real Estate Co.

The Reliable Trimmed Hat Co. has leased the seventh floor at 1121-23 Washington avenue.

Dave Goldstein, who is operating under the firm name of Adelaide Dresses, has leased the first floor at 1113 Washington avenue, formerly occupied by Levis-Zukoski Mercantile Co.

Economical Drug Co., 805 Lucas avenue, has leased the third floor at 704 North Ninth street.

The Imperial Hat Co. has leased the second floor at 1408 Washington avenue, to be used as an office, stockroom and salesroom.

The Reel Dress Co. has leased the entire second floor at 1405 Washington avenue.

John C. Stoll has leased 1101 Big Bend boulevard, to be occupied as a confectionery store.

Joseph Rothman, W. Pultman and H. Puttman have leased space on the fifth floor of the Levis-Zukoski Mercantile Co.'s building to be used as a factory, office and stockroom.

Dave Rudman has leased space at 701-3 Lucas avenue to be occupied as a cap factory.

NOVEMBER BUILDING IN U. S. 17% BELOW 1928

Drop in Middle-West Is 37 Per Cent With a Fall of 27 Per Cent Since October—New Work Contemplated Also Declines.

During the month of November construction contracts were awarded to the extent of $391,012,500 in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. These states include about 91 per cent of the total construction volume of the country. The decline from the October total ($445,642,300) was a little more than $54,000,000, or 12 per cent. The decrease from the November, 1928, total ($471,482,200) was about $80,000,000, or 17 per cent. The New York and Northern New Jersey district and the Northwest were the only two districts showing increases over the October, 1929, and November, 1928, records.

The November construction record brought the amount of new building and engineering work started in the 37 states since the first of this year up to $5,437,922,400, as compared with $6,195,529,800 for the corresponding period of last year, the decrease being 12 per cent.

Analysis of the past month's building record showed the following active classes of work: $113,522,800, or 29 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $101,769,200, or 26 per cent, for commercial buildings; $72,361,100, or 19 per cent, for public works and utilities; and $39,673,900, or 10 per cent, for industrial construction.

New work reported in the contemplated stage in the 37 Eastern states amounted to $720,801,000. This total represents a loss of 10 per cent from the amount reported in the preceding month and a drop of 23 per cent from the amount reported in November of 1928.

A total of $86,803,100 was contracted for in new building and engineering work during November, in the Central West (Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Southern Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska). A comparison made shows that the above total was off 27 per cent from the preceding month and a 37 per cent drop was recorded from the corresponding month's record for 1928. Among the types of building which were most active in the month's total were the following: $30,299,800, or 35 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $20,631,100, or 24 per cent, for public works and utilities; $13,282,300, or 15 per cent, for commercial construction, and $7,194,800, or 8 per cent, for industrial plants.

New construction started in the Central West during the past 11 months has reached a total of $1,584,483,100, which represents a decrease of 13 per cent from the corresponding period of last year. The total for last year was $1,814,315,400.

New work reported as contemplated last month in this district amounted to $168,462,800 as compared with $218,614,300 for October of this year and $349,695,900 for November of last year.

GOOD SHOWING IN BUILDING FIGURES

The preliminary figures of new construction contracts for the first five business days of December, as compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, make a surprisingly good showing. The daily average was $21,721,900, as compared with $15,640,500 for the full months of November, 1929, and $17,310,200 for the month of December, 1928. However, this exhibit should not be taken too literally, as several large contracts were let during the last few days, including an $18,000,000 hotel in New York City, a $20,000,000 steel mill in Detroit and a $15,000,000 steel mill in Chicago. Nevertheless, these contracts show that large interests are not abandoning their projects, and they employ labor and increase the demand for building materials, no matter what the source of the construction may be.

SITE ASSEMBLED FOR NEW UNITS OF JEWISH HOSPITAL

The site for the two additional units of the Jewish Hospital upon which are to be erected the Waldheim Health Clinic, costing $225,000, and the David Eiseman Hospital for Chronic Invalids and Convalescents, costing $150,000, was assembled by Henry R. Weisels, who also assembled the site for the Jewish Hospital.

The property, through Aaron Waldheim, fronts 53 feet on Forest Park boulevard by 148 feet and 70 feet on Parkview by 160 feet. Weisels represented all parties in the transaction.

PETITION TO ELIMINATE MORE GRADE CROSSINGS

Property Owners in West End Want Grades on Wabash From De Baliviere to Delmar as Well as at Union Separated.

Do it all and do it now.

This is the demand of property owners in the West End residence and business neighborhood north of Forest Park regarding the elimination of grade crossings of the Wabash Railroad. The city and the Wabash have reached an agreement on the Union-Lindell crossing only, with the understanding that the De Baliviere avenue crossing and others between De Baliviere and Delmar viaduct will be postponed until later years. Neither the Wabash nor the city wishes to put all the cost in any one year's budget.

Frank H. Gerhart, real estate dealer, was active in preparing a petition which has been signed by many of the property owners of the district. It is addressed to Mayor Miller and the Board of Aldermen.

De Baliviere Called Dangerous.

"If the city and railroad company now secure permission from the Public Service Commission to eliminate only Union boulevard crossing at this time," the petition says, "then the De Baliviere crossing, equally dangerous, will be left untouched for some years, also all the other crossings between De Baliviere and Delmar. The work on all the crossings should in all good reason proceed at the same time.

"The city should request the Public Service Commission to order all these crossings between Union and Delmar eliminated at the same time, so that the public streets in this vicinity will be closed only for once. To do this by piecemeal not only means waste of life and property, but a constant menace to traffic."

List of Signers.

The signers of the petition, all of whom are stated to be owners or agents of realty in the district, are Louis Bueltermann, Gerhart Realty Co., L. E. Dorr, Delbe Investment Co., William Keane Jr., G. Giuseffi, Bullock Realty & Investment Co., V. Viviano, Giuseppina Viviano, S. Viviano, S. D. Alissandro, Gaetano Viviano, Minnie Housam, Edward M. BELLEVILLE STORE LEASED THROUGH HARRY NEWMAN, INC.

The W. T. Grant Co. opened its Belleville store last Saturday in a new building at Main and High streets. The company has a 30-year lease, involving more than $500,000. This lease was made for Walter J. Kohl to W. T. Grant Co. through Harry Newman, Inc.

Another deal by this same firm was the purchase of the ground, the erection of a building and the leasing of same for a long term for about $250,000 for the J. C. Penney Co. at Morganford and Gravois, known as the Bevo Mill district, for the Stresa Realty and Investment Co.

Negotiations were also concluded for the leasing of 5977 Easton avenue to the Bristol Shoe Co. Other leases were: 616 Olive street for the Rossman-Clemons Clothing Co. to Treo Clothing Co. of New York; 5143-45 Delmar, leased to the Maclean Packard Motor Co.; store at Streator, Ill., to the Carp Dry Goods Co. for F. C. Arthur.

Several other leases for the Texas Co. and the sale of the corner of Kingshighway and Murdoch, to the Shell Petroleum Co., also were made.

COUNTY REAL ESTATE BOARD DINNER AND FROLIC JAN. 16

The St. Louis County Real Estate Board is completing arrangements for its annual dinner, frolic and installation of officers, which will be held this year at the Westborough Country Club, Berry road and Lockwood avenue, Glendale, on Thursday evening, Jan. 16.

J. R. Thursby, the retiring president, and S. Charles Harvey, the new president, have announced that the program, which has not been entirely completed, will be replete with surprises.

The County Real Estate Board, which was organized six years ago, has 62 members, all of whom by their affiliation have a right to use the term "realtor."

The organization meets at the City Hall in Clayton on the first Wednesday in each month. As the first Wednesday in January will be New Year's day, this meeting date will be changed. The board is considering a plan for generally advertising the advantages of the county as a place in which to live or make investments.

HOWARD CLEANERS, INC., LEASE TWO MORE STORES

Harry Newman, Inc., reports that the Howard Cleaners, Inc., have taken two more locations, adding these stores to their St. Louis chain which is but one unit in a national organization operating in most of the larger cities, with headquarters at Memphis, Tenn.

The one location is in the heart of the large apartment and hotel district at Euclid and Laclede, 4582 Laclede avenue, and the other store is a south side location at the northeast corner of South Grand boulevard and Gasconade.

These stores, together with the store at 413 North Eighth street and the one at 2621 Gravois, give them a total of four now operating in the contemplated unit of 100 stores.

THOMPSON RESTAURANT IN FOX THEATER BUILDING

Henry R. Weisels Co., agent for the Fox Theater properties and Humboldt Building, at the southwest corner Grand and Washington boulevards, has leased the two storerooms at 519-21 North Grand boulevard, beginning about 20 feet south of the main entrance to the Fox Theater, to the John R. Thompson Co., for a restaurant.

A similar grill and restaurant will be installed in the new building to be erected by the Thompson company at 712 Olive street.

J. M. Levi Leases Three Stores.

J. M. Levi & Co. has leased the three stores, 334-36-38 North Vandeventer avenue for Dr. M. A. Goldstein to the General Electric Co., for a display and Western distribution station. Levi also reports having sold an apartment on Nina place to H. L. Renner; tenement property, 2506-08 North Twenty-second street, from C. McConnell to G. R. Cloves; 813 North Twentieth street, from John Argent to S. Samuel; residence in Parkview for S. R. Gibney to Carrie Patterson; flat, 2621 Hodiamont avenue, from the Mercantile Realty Co. to Jack Dreyfus, who was represented by Hafner Realty Co.

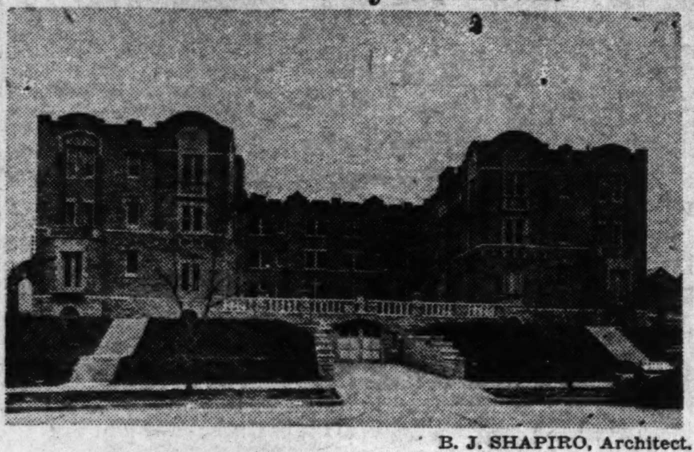
FOR-LIN APARTMENTS
7334-40 Forsythe Blvd.



B. J. SHAPIRO, Architect.

7334-40 Forsythe Blvd.

THE For-Lin Apartments are located at 7334-40 Forsythe Boulevard, Corner of Lindell Boulevard, University City.

THE location of this apartment is north of the exclusive Brentmoor residential district and just west of Washington University, in a choice University City neighborhood on a main thoroughfare. This apartment is a three-story building, constructed of canary brick, stone trimmed with ornamental iron grill balconies.

The design of construction is of French renaissance with a large terrace garden court overlooking Forsythe and Lindell boulevards.

UNDERNEATH the court in the basement is a large garage of fireproof construction. The building contains 24 apartments, ranging from four rooms and bath to six rooms and bath. The apartments contain hardwood floors throughout, colored tile bath and showers, electrical refrigeration, steam heat, gas laundry clothes dryers and other built-in conveniences too numerous to mention.

THE rentals of these beautiful apartments are very reasonable, varying from $75.00 to $115.00 per month. The location is accessible to the main arteries of transportation. All busses stop in front of building, which makes it very convenient to the downtown business section. Within walking distance of Washington University, Forest Park and a good shopping district. Also convenient to churches and schools. The apartments are now ready for occupancy, and your inspection is cheerfully solicited. This building is under the management of the

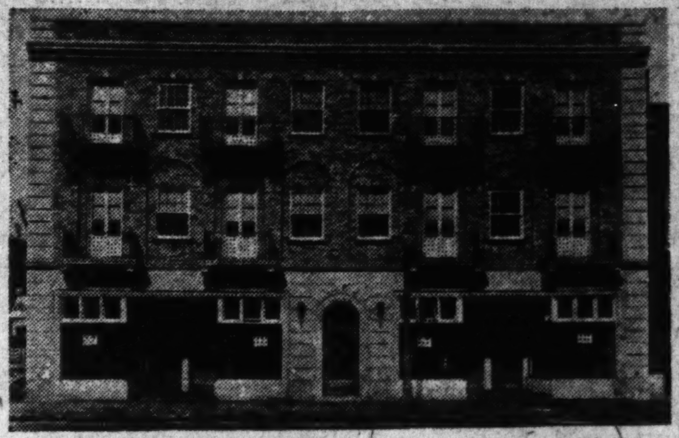
GHIO APARTMENTS
5811-19 Delmar Blvd.



5811-19 Delmar Blvd.

THE Ghio De Luxe Apartments and store building, located at 5811-19 Delmar boulevard, is a strictly fireproof building, constructed of canary and brown mixture hard brick, trimmed with terra cotta and having beautiful iron grilled balconies on all elevations, designed and planned by A. B. M. Corrubia, architect, and is of the Georgian classic design of architecture. This building consists of four nice stores and 16 apartments. Eight of these apartments have living room with Murphy in-a-dor bed (rollaway type), dressing room, bedroom, dinette, kitchenette with built-in ironing boards. The basement contains gas laundry clothes dryers, laundry trays and other laundry equipment.

THERE are also eight small efficiency type apartments without the bedroom. The rentals of the apartments vary from $55.00 to $75.00 per month, unfurnished, with heat and janitor service. The location of this building is within walking distance of Forest Park, and is on one of the city's main arteries in the midst of one of the largest West End community buying centers of St. Louis, also convenient to schools and churches, and the facilities for transportation are very ideal. The stores are now ready for occupancy, and your inspection is cheerfully solicited.

COTTON PRICES LOWER IN A QUIET MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Cotton was very quiet today, with prices working lower under week-end liquidation, coupled with some Southern selling. January contracts declined from 17.07c to 17.02c and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady, at a net decline of 6 to 12 points.

The opening was steady, at a decline of 2 to 4 points, in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. If anything, the report of the Census Bureau, placing domestic consumption for November at 544,150 bales, was a shade above expectations. It compared with 611,173 for the same month last year, however, and had little if any effect on the immediate market. The initial offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying, but this was not in sufficient volume to cause rallies of more than a point or two and the market eased off in the late trading.

Offerings increased somewhat on the decline, when there was a little more Southern selling, as well as local liquidation. December sold off to 16.97c, or 7 points net lower, while March declined to 17.30c and May to 17.54c. Closing prices were the lowest of the day on most positions. Spot quiet, middling 17.20c.

Reports from Washington regarding the cotton investigation still appeared to be diverting the attention of the trade from other factors, which some brokers thought might be partly responsible for the small volume of business.

Cable from Liverpool attributed the decline there to hedging, continental liquidation and weakness in Egyptian cotton.

Week-end reviews of the domestic goods market came in for very little comment during the morning.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 213,000 bales, against 256,000 last year and 170,000 two years ago.

544,150 Bales Cotton Consumed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Cotton consumed during November as announced today by the Census Bureau totaled 544,150 bales of lint and 63,408 of linters, compared with 640,798 and 82,747 in October this year, and 611,173 and 69,353 in November last year.

Cotton on hand Nov 30 was held as follows:

In consuming estab'ishments, 1,671,829 bales of lint and 168,305 of linters, compared with 1,360,557 and 145,478 on Oct. 31 this year, and 1,566,542 and 131,589 on Nov. 30 last year.

In public storage and at compresses 5,841,950 bales of lint and 68,747 of linters, compared with 5,311,920 and 54,397 on Oct. 31 this year, and 5,244,418 and 54,985 on Nov. 30 last year.

Imports for November totaled 35,502 bales, compared with 19,815 in October this year and 40,291 in November last year.

Exports for November totaled 1,048,780 bales of lint and 13,955 of linters, compared with 1,251,300 and 11,902 in October this year and 1,427,772 and 23,806 in November last year.

Cotton spindles active during November numbered 29,649,394, compared with 30,184,716 in October this year and 30,595,840 in November last year.

GRAIN FUTURES DOWN IN WEEK-END TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 14.—Lower Liverpool market, report of quiet export situation; report of Argentine offering wheat to Europe several cents under U. S. and comment of possibly no improvement in export situation, the rest of this year, were included in the run of news. Both wheat and corn closed lower. The action of wheat had some influence on corn.

In the cash grain market, soft wheat was steady to 3c lower, with No. 2 going from store at steady prices and No. 3, including garlicky types selling at levels revised downward 2c to 3c. Choice milling grain was wanted, but qualities offered could not be moved at quotations asked. Early about 5000 bushels, No. 2 sold from store at 2c above the Chicago May figure and late track sales of No. 3 were made at prices 3½c to 4c below. Hard wheat averaged 3c lower, following the downturn in futures, but premiums were maintained. Receipts were light and in demand. No. 1 sold from store on the basis of about 5c over the Chicago December figure, track No. 2 at 3@3½c over and No. 3, 2c over bid. Local mills and elevators were the buyers. Oats were down ½ and 1c. Movement was slow. Local buyers took the good oats, but shipping orders were limited. Cron was off 1c to 2c. The demand at the downturn was fairly active. The basis as compared to futures was ½c and 1c lower. The buyers were elevators, mills and industries.

Wheat futures opened more than 1 cent lower and recorded further loss early. Winnipeg began about a cent lower and recovered some early. Liverpool closed ⅝d to 1⅛d lower. Corn here declined a cent early.

December wheat opened at $1.20, May wheat $1.29½ and May corn, 96c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 78,400 bu, compared with 82,600 a week ago and 109,200 a year ago, included 49 cars local and 7 through. Corn receipts, which were 36,800 bu, compared with 56,000 a week ago and 173,600 a year ago, included 24 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 44,000 bu, compared with 55,000 a week ago and 80,000 a year ago, included 19 cars local and 1 through. Hay receipts were 6 cars local and 6 through.

SETBACK TO WHEAT IN CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Tumbling down of wheat prices here today plunged the market to about 14 cents a bushel under the level which prevailed two weeks ago. Argentine wheat was reported today as being offered in Europe several cents a bushel cheaper than the wheat from the United States, and prediction circulated that export demand for North American wheat would remain slack until after Jan. 1. Selling was also promoted by the fact that a bullish statement which in some quarters had been expected from the Federal Farm Board failed to appear.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were 2¼c to 2¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅝@¾c to 1⅛c down. Oats ½@1⅛c off and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15 cents.

New decline in wheat prices at Liverpool preceded the fresh downturns in the wheat market here. Moreover, export business today in wheat from North America was scant, although many inquiries under prevailing prices were received. An additional bearish influence was found in Minneapolis report of indication that farm and country elevator stocks of domestic wheat in spring crop territory are as large as a year ago, notwithstanding that the 1929 crop was smaller.

Transient rallies that developed at times in Chicago wheat prices today were ascribed primarily to rather general expectance of some stimulating statement from the Farm Board before the close. Disappointment in this respect led to noticeable increase of selling toward the last. Predictions that hedging pressure on wheat market from now on will be very small, and that removal of hedges will be on a large scale, attracted attention but proved to be without lasting effect.

Corn and oats were dominated by wheat weakness and by reports that emergency deliveries from cars on tracks here would be arranged to facilitate filling of December corn contracts. Board of Trade officials, however, said no request had yet been received for any emergency measures as to corn.

Provisions felt the effect of declines both in hog values and in grain as well.

STOCKS SEEK EQUILIBRIUM IN REACTION

Had Risen 40 Points or 29 Per Cent From Their Nov. 13 Bottoms Before Secondary Decline Started.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Selling to raise money for the December 15 tax payments and to establish 1929 tax losses exerted pressure in the market this week. Stocks had risen 40 points or 29 per cent from their November 13 bottoms before this secondary decline started. Figured in a different way the recovery up through Dec. 7 had been even greater. At the close of the market a week ago today stocks were up 29 per cent from the bottom but they had recovered 36 per cent of the loss from extreme high to low. Never in the first month after a major bear movement or panic had the performance been so impressive. That the market in the circumstances should have lost about 12 points during the current week in finding its equilibrium again was to have been expected. The surprise is that such a secondary adverse movement did not come earlier.

Waiting for a Sign.

"What the market lacks most at the moment as a guide to its future movement is some definite indication on the early 1930 trend in business. All other considerations now are secondary in importance to reliable information on the length to which the present recession in industry will run. In six months of declining business the general level of industrial activity has fallen from an altitude more than 10 per cent above theoretical normal to a position under normal. Even as late as August the business index was 9 per cent above normal. In September it was 7 per cent higher. In October 3 per cent higher. Then in November it fell 2 per cent below. Last month was the first subnormal period registered on the business chart since early 1928 when the country was emerging from the mild 1927 depression. It is significant at this time to compare the present with recent recessions in business.

Mildest Recession so Far.

"The 1929 recession is the fourth and so far the mildest since 1920. The downturn in the business curve has carried it only 2 per cent below theoretical normal. Bottom in the 1927 recession was reached at a corresponding level 5 per cent below normal. The 1924 recession at 15 per cent below. Bottom in the 1921 depression came at a level 25 per cent below theoretical normal. Whether the current recession will run further and whether if so it will register levels as low as those reached in 1927, 1924 or 1921 is the most interesting question now before the financial district. So far the movement downward and a consideration of the elements involved have tended to suggest to most people that the current recession is to be a mild and short-lived affair such as came in 1927 rather than in 1924 or 1921.

Heavy Gold Shipments.

"News regarding the money situation was not favorable this week. Heavy shipments of gold suggested the possibility of material losses of metal. Brokers' loans after declining for seven successive weeks rose moderately this week. Little or no progress has been made toward the liquidation of member bank loans on securities. During a period when brokers' loans have been reduced enormously the volume of member bank loans on securities has remained virtually unchanged. Manifestations of ease in the New York money market have created an illusion of ease for the country as a whole that does not exist. Money actually is fairly tight still in several sections of the country. Perhaps in no section is the money position as comfortable as it is at New York. This week for the first time the Reserve statement showed a substantial reduction in out-of-town discounts.

ILROAD SHARES ENTER OF TRADE N STOCK MARKET

ek-End Session Is Quiet, Turnover Being the mailest for Such Two-Hour Period Since Last August.

he Associated Press.
EW YORK, Dec. 14.—Speculaattention converged upon the shares in a dull but firm Sat-ay stock market today. Only 4,220 shares were traded, the llest turnover for a two-hour ion since last August. Specuve interest appeared to have ned considerably after the consions of the past two days, but new campaigns would norlly be deferred until after the k-end recess.

here was an unconfirmable nor that the Interstate Comrce Commission may announce consolidation plan over the k-end, or at least at an early
e. Freight car loadings have dergone a marked recession dur-the past few weeks, and De-nber operating income statents are expected to show dees from the same period of last r, although the results of the 12 months' operations promise be the most favorable in years.
F. W. Dodge Corporation re-rted that building contracts owed a reduction of 12 per cent
m October and 17 per cent from vember, 1928.

Gold Moving Out.

As there is no money market on turday, continued requisitions
New York gold by foreign cen-s and firm exchange rates at-cted most attention in the credit uation.

Bankers have been extremely re-
tant to disclose gold shipment nsactions, undoubtedly fearing ssible adverse psychological ef-
ts. The first Government issue bills brought rates about as ad-ntageous as the recent issue certificates, which was regarded highly satisfactory, owing to the perimental character of the ofring. The treasury overdraft in nnection with the new financing xt week promises to be small, in eping with the practice of disbuting it begun last September, t credit next week is expected hold around the recent levels.

Allegheny Corp., Chesapeake & io, Lackawanna, Delaware and dson, Missouri Kansas Texas, w York Central, Norfolk and estern, and Wabash, gained from o 5 points, while Lehigh Valley, ckel Plate, St. Louis Southwest-n, Pere Marquette and Pittsburg
d West Virginia mounted 6 to 10.
rsey Central shot up 22 points, gaining about half yesterday's cline.

Some of the Gains.

General Electric sold up 6½ oints and closed up 4. Allied hemical, A. M. Byers, Columbian rbon, Du Pont, Macy, and orthington Pump were among a w shares selling up from 4 to 6 oints. Motors were firm, Hudson ounted 3 and Studebaker about points.

There were a few soft spots.
hicago and Eastern Illinois pre-rred dropped about 18 points to new 1929 low at 37½, then raled a couple of points. American ype Founders lost nearly 7 points, nd Newport Co. 5.

In the foreign exchanges, ster-ng again turned upward, despite he outgoing gold. The cable rate ouched $4.88¾, a jump of 3-16, nd taking it again in the neigh-orhood of the gold point.

Grain markets were reactionary, wheat losing between 2 and 3 cents nd corn sagging a cent. Cotton utures declined 30 to 60 cents a ale in dull trading.

WEEKLY COPPER REVIEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Demand for copper except for moderate foreign purchases, remained quiet following publication of the November statistics. Both producers and consumers have evidently adopted a waiting policy pending further developments. Fabricators were apparently encouraged by an increase of 38,518 tons in refined stocks last month, to continue holding off purchases.

Lead producers reported a fair consuming inquiry largely for carloads for prompt and early shipment, however, large consumers were not expected to come into the market until after the run of the year.

ILROAD SHARES ENTER OF TRADE IN STOCK MARKET

eek-End Session Is Quiet, Turnover Being the Smallest for Such Two-Hour Period Since Last August.

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Specula e attention converged upon the l shares in a dull but firm Sat day stock market today. Only 54,220 shares were traded, the allest turnover for a two-hour ion since last August. Specu ive interest appeared to have ned considerably after the con lsions of the past two days, but new campaigns would nor lly be deferred until after the ek-end recess.

There was an unconfirmable mor that the Interstate Com rce Commission may announce consolidation plan over the ek-end, or at least at an early te. Freight car loadings have ndergone a marked recession dur the past few weeks, and De mber operating income state nts are expected to show de lines from the same period of last ar, although the results of the ll 12 months' operations promise be the most favorable in years.

F. W. Dodge Corporation re rted that building contracts howed a reduction of 12 per cent om October and 17 per cent from November, 1928.

CURB TRADE IS SLOW AND PRICES IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Desultory trading characterized today's brief session of the Curb Market, with the price movement irregular. Active issues, as a rule, pointed upward, but another flock of new low records were established by ordinarily inactive specialties. The day's sales fell short of 600,000 shares.

Public utilities ran into some further selling in the early trading, but strong buying support was again supplied and the group closed irregularly higher. Electric Bond & Share dipped to 85⅛ and then rebounded to 86½ for a small fractional gain. American & Foreign Power warrants closed 2¼ points higher at 72¾, after having been down to 69½. American Light & Traction jumped eight points on a few sales. Central & Southwest Utilities (new) 4⅜ and Standard Power & Light 4¾. Dubilier Radio and Pilot Radio Tube, in which special developments are rumored to be pending, extended their recent gains. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea, for which there is a thin market, jumped 20 points and Tubize Artificial Silk dropped 10.

Investment trust, holding and trading corporation shares were mixed with a brisk demand for Pennroad as one of the few features. Tri-Continental issues showed moderate gains but Goldman-Sachs turned heavy.

Little interest was shown in the oils although Gulf moved up two points on a few sales. Aviation shares were sluggish and a moderate gain in Ford of Canada was the only development of consequence in the motor group.

New low prices for the year were registered by American States A, Amrad Corporation, Mangel Stores, Mid-Continent Laundry and a few others.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Coffee futures were very quiet and irregular today, with most of the business confined to week-end evening-up of accounts. No. 7 contracts opened at an advance of 11 points to a decline of 6 points and closed net 6 points lower to 2 points higher. Sales estimated, 14,000. Santos contracts opened unchanged to 12 points lower and closed net 23 points advance to 7 points decline. Sales, 15,000. Closing quotations: No. 7 contracts, Dec., 7.94c; Jan., 7.50c; March, 7.35c; May, 7.24c; July, 7.26c; Sept., 7.23c. Santos contracts, Dec., 11.80c; Jan., 10.38c; March, 10.28c; May, 10.08c; July, 10.10c; Sept., 10.10c.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s, 9¾c to 10c. Santos 4s, 14½c to 15c. Cost and freight offers included Bourbon 3s and 5s at 12.40c. Rio exchange on London, 1-32d higher. Dollar buying rate, 110 reis lower. Rio market unquoted. Santos nominally unchanged. Brazilian port receipts, 53,000. Jundiahy receipts, 22,000.

LOCAL STOCK PRICES MIXED IN WEEK'S TRADE

Landis Machine, McQuay-Norris, Wagner Electric and Consolidated Lead Are Features of Period.

Mixed price changes are shown in the St. Louis Stock Exchange list as result of the week's trade. There was an increased aggregate volume of business due largely to transactions in Wagner Electric, Landis Machine, McQuay-Norris and Consolidated Lead, especially Landis. Ranges were moderate for the most part.

Wagner Electric closed the week lower, after selling fractionally higher early. Landis ranged up about 6 points, with transactions mainly by two particular houses. McQuay-Norris ranged between 50 and 54, the low being an odd lot sale. "Crossed sales," or transactions in which one broker buys and sells the stock, figured in the totals. Consolidated Lead showed loss for the week.

International Shoe ranged on both sides of previous close, and Brown Shoe lost a point. National Candy and Coca Cola Bottling were down for the week.

In the banking group First National Bank was higher and Mercantile Commerce was lower.

Local Business and Financial Items

(Paragraphs for publication in this column should be addressed to the Financial Editor.)

The St. Louis Stock Exchange announced the listing of 103,016 shares of Laclede Christy Clay Products no par value stock. The stock will be traded in on Monday, at which time the company's $100 par value common and preferred issues will be taken off the board.

* * * *

The Laclede Trust Co. declared a Christmas dividend of 2 per cent in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 1½ per cent. The extra dividend is payable Dec. 20 and the regular Jan. 1.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Raw sugar was quieter today and no sales were reported. The undertone, however, was steady and there were further buyers at last paid prices of 3.83 for spots, duty paid, with holders asking 3.89. It is now reported that the sugar co-operate agency late yesterday accepted a bid of 2.10 cost and freight New York for 50,000 bags for January shipment to an operator here, which would be equal to about 3.87 duty paid.

The futures market was quiet with price changes narrow and unimportant. There appeared to be a little liquidation for over the week end adjournment and prices after opening generally unchanged, sold 1 to 2 points below the previous close. The steadiness of the spot market checked aggressive selling, however, and a steadier tone developed in the late trading and prices rallied partially, closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. Approximate sales 7250 tons. Dec. closed 1.97, Jan. 2.02, March 2.09, May 2.16, July 2.22 Sept. 2.27, Dec. 2.34.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximated sales 7250 tons. Dec., 1.97c; Jan., 2.02c; March, 2.09c; May, 2.16c; July, 2.22c; Sept., 2.27c.

RAIL BONDS FEATURE QUIET WEEK END TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Inquiry for railroad bonds of good grade found limited offerings available today and prices hardened accordingly. There was a firmer tone throughout the domestic list at the close of the short session, but the market was an extremely dull affair, so dull, in fact, the total turnover for the two hours amounted to only $5,600,000, comparable to some of the performances of the past summer.

First-grade rails did as well as could be expected today considering the volume of the trading, and some fair gains developed buying interest in this group, which ranks next to the Government-municipal classification, might be expected to improve in view of the trend in money rates which the Treasury operations would seem to forecast. Atchison listings were strong, the general 4s advancing a point, while the adjustment 4s and the convertible 4s of 1909-55 rose 1⅝ each. Improvement was also shown by Canadian Pacific 4s, Rock Island 4s, New Haven 4½s and Union Pacific first 4s. St. Paul adjustment 5s gained a point and International Great Northern adjustment 6s rose 2½.

Trading in convertibles tapered off sharply and net changes proved to be small, except in the rails. Atchison 4½s rallied 3 points and New Haven 6s rose 4.

IN MEMORIAM

AFFOLTER—Gladys. In loving remembrance of my dear wife, whose soul entered the higher life Dec. 14, 1929:
We know, dear Gladys, you live and love,
Oh wondrous truth in golden skies,
You breathe immortal youth
And when our weary night of earth shall close,
You will lead us where eternal summer blows.
Loved as always by HUSBAND, DAUGHTER, RELATIVES and FRIENDS.

BOEHMER—In loving memory of our dear parents, Herman and Minnie Boehmer, who departed this life Jan. 29, 1913, and Dec. 11, 1919.
Sadly missed by FAMILY. (c)

BONETTO—In loving memory of our darling son, Robert, who departed from this life, Dec. 12, 1928:
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHER, SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

BUERGLER—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Herman V. Buergler, who departed this life Dec. 14, 1928.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON. (c)

FOLEY—In loving memory of my dear husband, John J. Foley, who departed this life four years ago, Dec. 16, 1925.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
Sadly missed by his wife,
AGNES FOLEY.

GERHARDT—In memory of Mrs. Antonia Gerhardt, who died Dec. 12, 1928.
One year has passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

HANDRE—In memory of George Handre, who died Dec. 13, 1925, and while he sleeps in peaceful sleep his memory we shall always keep. Sadly missed by wife, daughter and Mrs. Gersbacher and sons.

HANNAMAN—In loving memory of our dear father, Jacob F. Hannaman, who died one year ago, Dec. 20, 1928:
We are thinking of you today, father dear,
Thinking of you as we saw you here:
Our proudest possessions were Father, Mother and home:
All gone, but sweet memory, we'll hold dear as our own.
Sadly missed by HIS CHILDREN.
Requiem anniversary mass at Mount Carmel Church, Dec. 20 at 7:30 a. m. (c)

HUMPHREY—In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Granville M. Humphrey, who passed away Dec. 15, 1927.
Years of sacrifices, little of play,
Loving and giving and smoothing the way;
Strong in adversity, ready to do;
Our proudest possession, a friend to every one, dear papa, was you.
Sadly missed by wife and family, and all who loved him. (c)

JOVANOVICH, GEORGE—In loving memory of George Jovanovich, who departed this life Dec. 17, 1925:
Wonderful son, brother and lad,
One who was better God never made,
One in a million, that son was you,
Just in your judgment, always right, honest and liberal, always upright.
Loved by your friends and all you knew.
This, darling son, dear brother, was you.
Sadly missed by
Father, Mother, Sister and all who loved him.

KOENIG—In loving memory of my dear husband, Herman R. Koenig, who departed this life two years ago, Dec. 13, 1927.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day;
Remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed by
WIFE DOROTHEA KOENIG (NEE BRETTHOLLE).

LITTIG—In loving memory of my dear husband, John J. Littig, who departed this life Dec. 13, 1928.
There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
And silent the voice I loved to hear.
Sad, but true; we wonder why
That the best are always first to die.
Sadly missed by
HIS LOVING WIFE, NELLIE.

McSPADDEN—In loving memory of Orville J. McSpadden, who departed this life five years ago, Dec. 16, 1924:
Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest;
In memory's frame we shall keep it
Because he was one of the best.
Sadly missed by:
WIFE, MOTHER, BROTHER.

MARIK—In loving memory of Joseph Marik, who departed this life on Dec. 14, 1928.
There is someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you always
And tries to be brave and content.
Gone is the face we loved so dear.
Silent the voice we loved to hear.
'Tis sad but true, we wonder why
The best are always the first to die.
Sadly missed by wife and children and sons-in-law.

MATEER, JAMES H.—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Police Officer James H. Mateer, who passed away Dec. 17, 1925.
Sadly missed by His Wife, Cathryn, and Daughters, Jeanette and Virginia.

MATEER—In sad remembrance of our dear son and brother, Officer John H. Mateer, who sacrificed his life four years ago, Dec. 17, 1925.
SHANNON-MATEER FAMILY.

OGLE—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Jane Ogle, who passed away Dec 16, 1928:
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world, weary trials and troubles are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by all who loved her.
CHILDREN.

PICHA—In sad but loving memory of our dear mother, Anna Picha, who died Dec. 14, 1922.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

PRINZ—In sad but loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Catherine Prinz, who departed this life Dec. 18, 1928:
Wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better, God never made,
Wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million, that mother was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew:
Our wonderful mother, that mother was you.
Sadly missed by DAUGHTER. (c)

SCHEFFER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Katherine Scheffer, who departed this life eight years ago, Dec. 6, 1921, at the home, 3541 Delor street.
When a mother breathes her last farewell,
This stroke means more than time can tell.
The world seems quite another place,
Without the smile of mother's face.
She joined our dear father, who departed this life Dec. 28, 1907; our dear sister, who departed Sept. 22, 1915, and our dear brother, who departed April 7, 1926.
May they rest in peace. Sadly missed by DAUGHTERS. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

SANDWEG—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Lillian B. Sandweg, who passed away one year ago, Dec. 17, 1928:
The sun shines upon dear mother's grave,
One we loved so dearly and tried so hard to save.
Her smiling ways and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall;
She had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
When we lost our dearest mother,
We lost our dearest pal.
We love and miss you,
And forever shall.
So, rest in peace, dear mother;
Your place in heavenly bower;
The day when we shall meet
Grows nearer every hour.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN. (c)

SCHULTZ, JOHN—Departed one year today.
There is a link death cannot sever.
Love and remembrance last forever.
WIFE AND SON.

SCHUMACHER—In loving memory of our darling mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Schumacher, who departed this life five years ago, Dec. 14, 1924:
Sadly missed by the family and all who loved her. (c)

SHORT—In loving memory of Robert J. Short, who died Dec. 18, 1928:
The face I loved is now laid low
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by his mother and aunts and all who loved him.

SOANKA, LOUIS—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who departed this life one year ago Dec. 20, 1928.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

THOMAS—In sad but loving remembrance of our dear mother, C. Singer Thomas, who passed away Dec. 13, 1918.
HER CHILDREN.

WAHLIG—In loving memory of George A. Wahlig, who passed away Dec. 13, 1927.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall;
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
And though the years be many or few,
They are filled with remembrance, dear, of you.
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

WHALEN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Katherine Whalen, who passed away Dec. 15, 1925:
Sad are the days without you,
But good are the thoughts we have about you.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN. (c)

SALESMEN AND DEMONSTRATORS WANTED

To sell Cuts-Em razor strop dressing which is put up in standard form in shaker top cans, you can sell Cuts-Em to your friends and still retain their friendship, as it is a strop dressing that will sharpen dull razors and safty bladse.

You do not have to be a salesman to sell Cuts-Em as the demonstration sells it. You can sell the same dealer or work the same store time after time. This is a proposition you can make real money with if you will work it. All men who shave are prospective buyers. To save unnecessary correspondence and delay send us 50 cents, preferably in money order, and we will send you one can of Cuts-Em and our salesmen's price list. This will enable you to try it out on your own blades and satisfy yourself as to the quality of our product.

MARIA LANI---the Subject of 51 Paintings, Drawings and Sculptures

A French Actress' Facial Mobility Proved Such a Challenge to Parisians That a Whole Exhibition Has Been Devoted to the Result.

By JULIUS KLYMAN
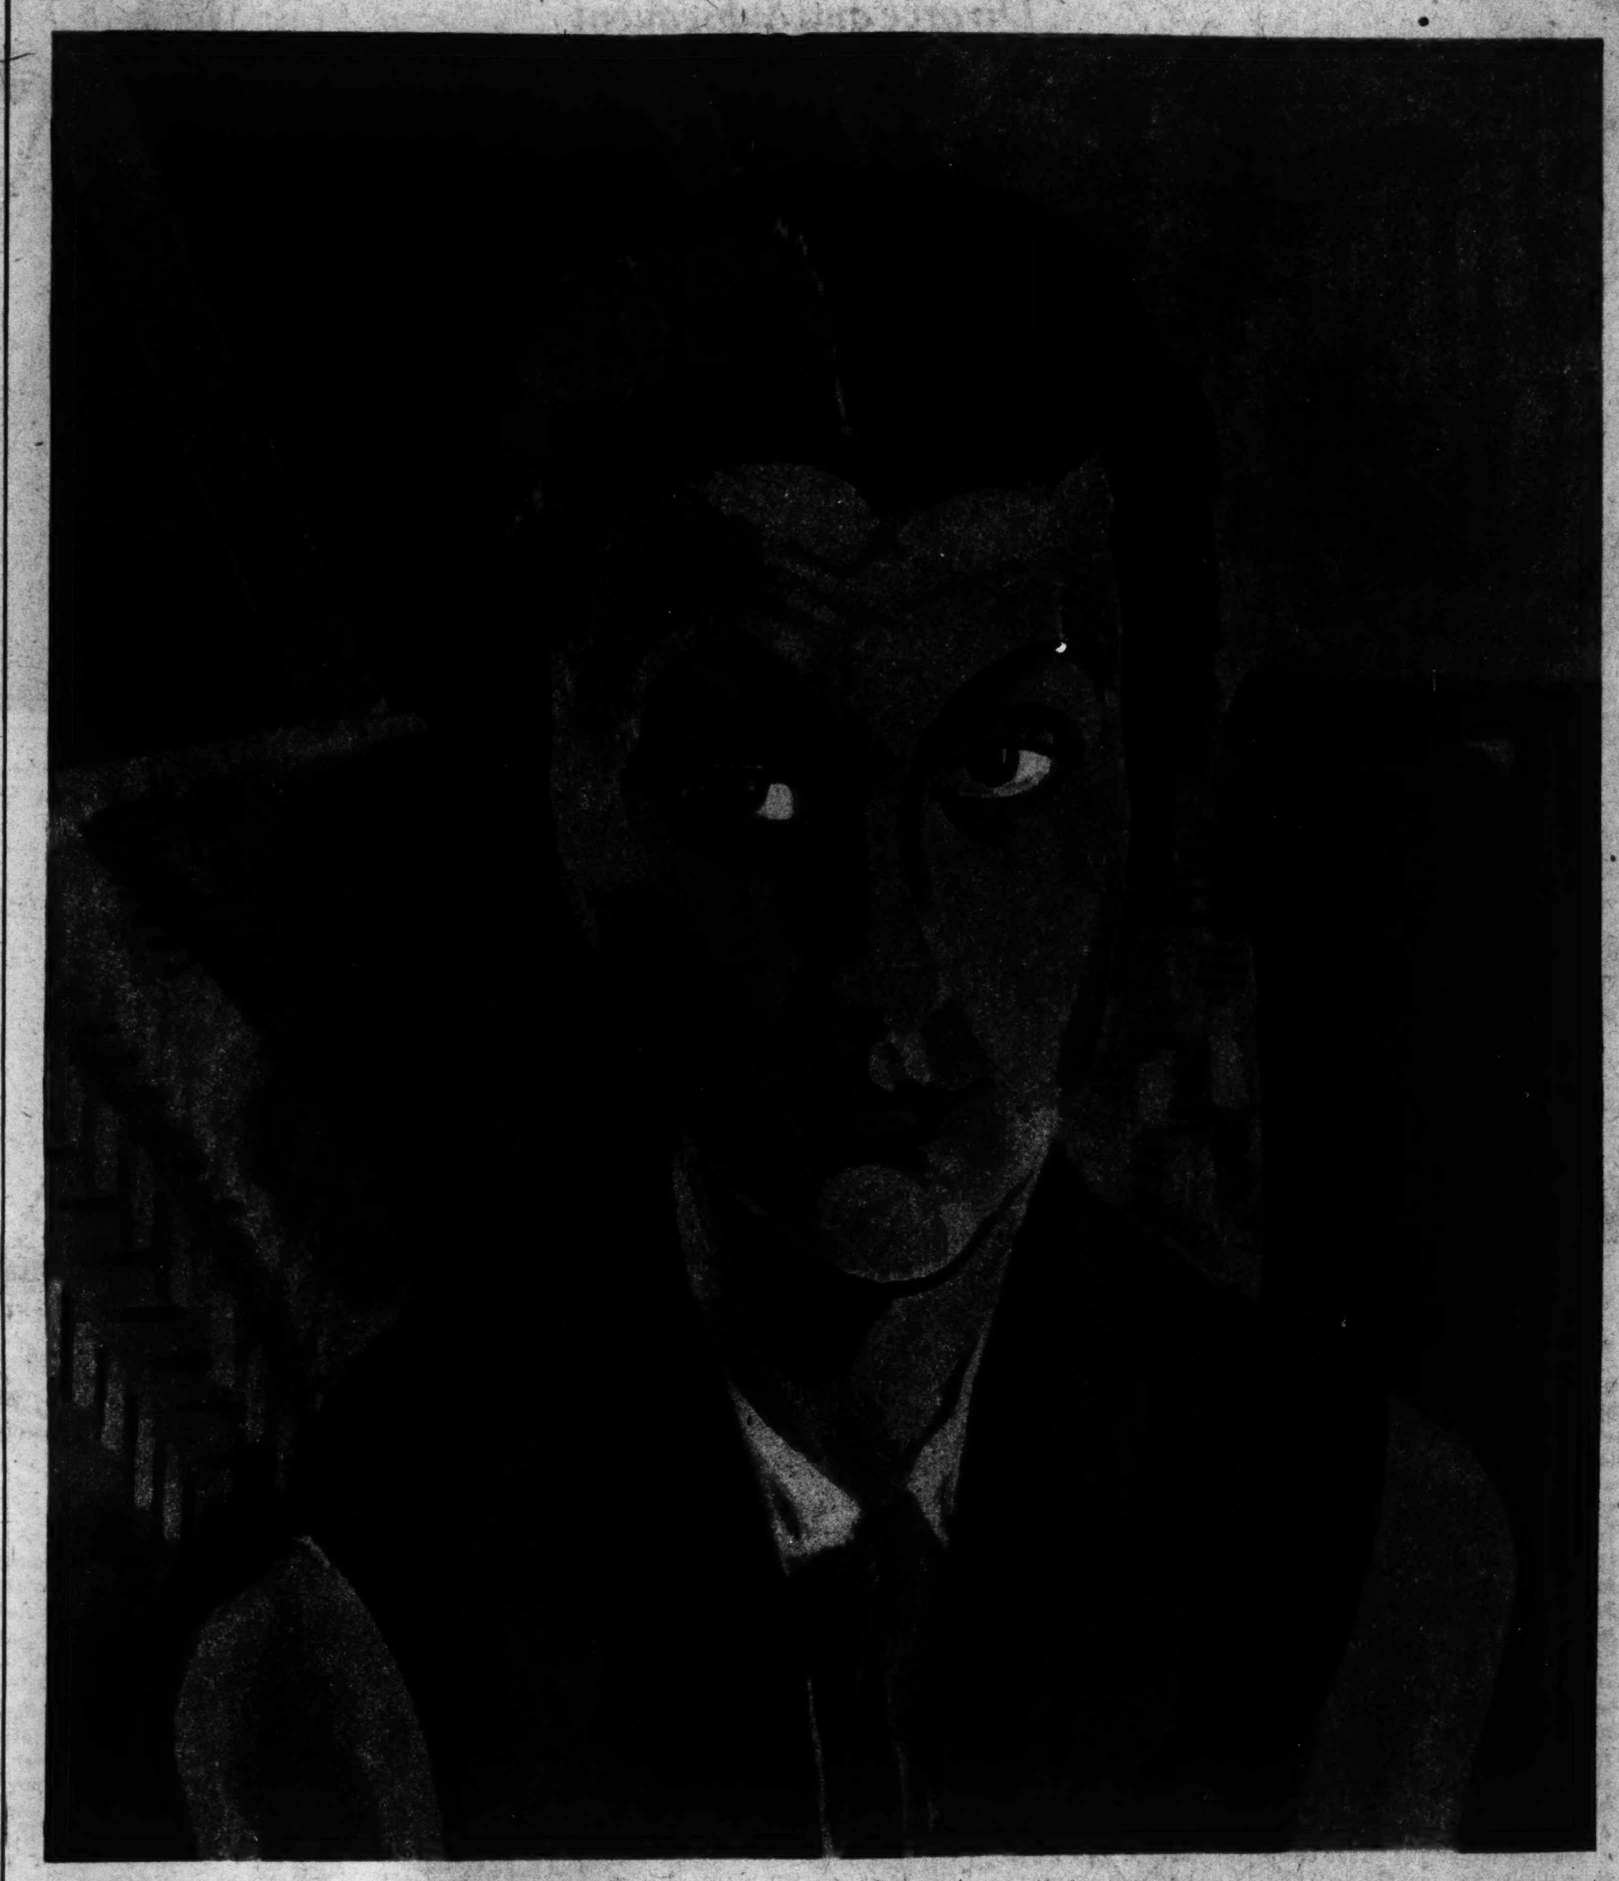
Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

NEW YORK.

THERE is no doubt about it — Maria Lani is the painted woman of Paris. She has been painted, sculped, sketched by 51 Parisian artists during the last two or three years, thereby establishing a new world's record, and just how she managed to squeeze in all the necessary sittings is utterly unaccountable. For Mademoiselle Lani is not an artist's model —by trade, at least. She is an actress, by reputation a very good one, one considerably in demand, and therefore not available every time a French artist tosses an Anis du Loso down his throat and dashes up the Boulevard San Michel all worked up over the novel inspiration to paint La Lani.

Perhaps, if you are inclined to be rather incredulous, you'll be loath to believe that so many artists painted, sculped, sketched one woman, and I for one don't blame you. I was a little doubtful myself. But I went, I saw, and was convinced. There they were on the walls of the Brummer Gallery on Fifty-seventh street, where they had been brought from France for their first American exhibition. Fifty-one varieties of Maria Lani, by actual count. Some very strange Lanis, some rather fascinating, not a few that were grotesque, certainly several that Lani herself wouldn't have recognized had she come across them without an introduction.

Just how Lani-ism came to be the favorite cult of modern French artists cannot be too definitely stated. I cross-questioned Mr. Brummer, impresario of the exhibition gallery, and after glancing at the floor a moment or two, he looked me in the eye and admitted he'd had something to do with it.

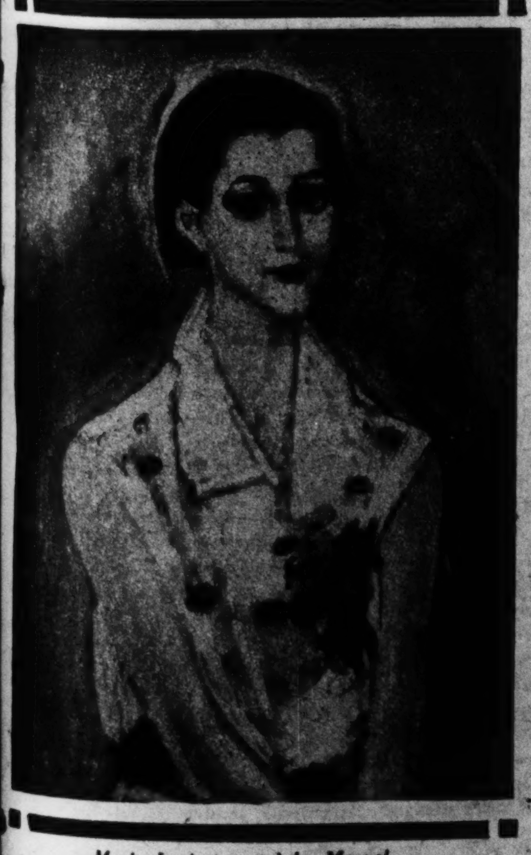


Maria Lani as the French artist Delaunay sees her. His portrait is in oil.

MR. BRUMMER said he met Mlle. Lani in Paris a couple of years ago. She and he and one or two or maybe three French artists were grouped about a terrace table. Mr. Brummer, with the practiced eye of an art dealer, observed her beauty, the manner in which each mood or emotion or whatnot chased itself across her face, her expression in repose, her mobility of countenance, and all of those things. It then occurred to him that here was a woman worth painting. He said so. Despite the wisdom contained in his remark, he learned he had not made a discovery. Some 10 artists already had painted Lani, for better or for worse.

Mr. Brummer was not discomfited. He was a little late, true enough, but he could suggest improvement. He straightway announced that if La Lani were painted by a few more of the elect of Montparnasse, he would exhibit them, one and all, in the Gallery Brummer, New York.

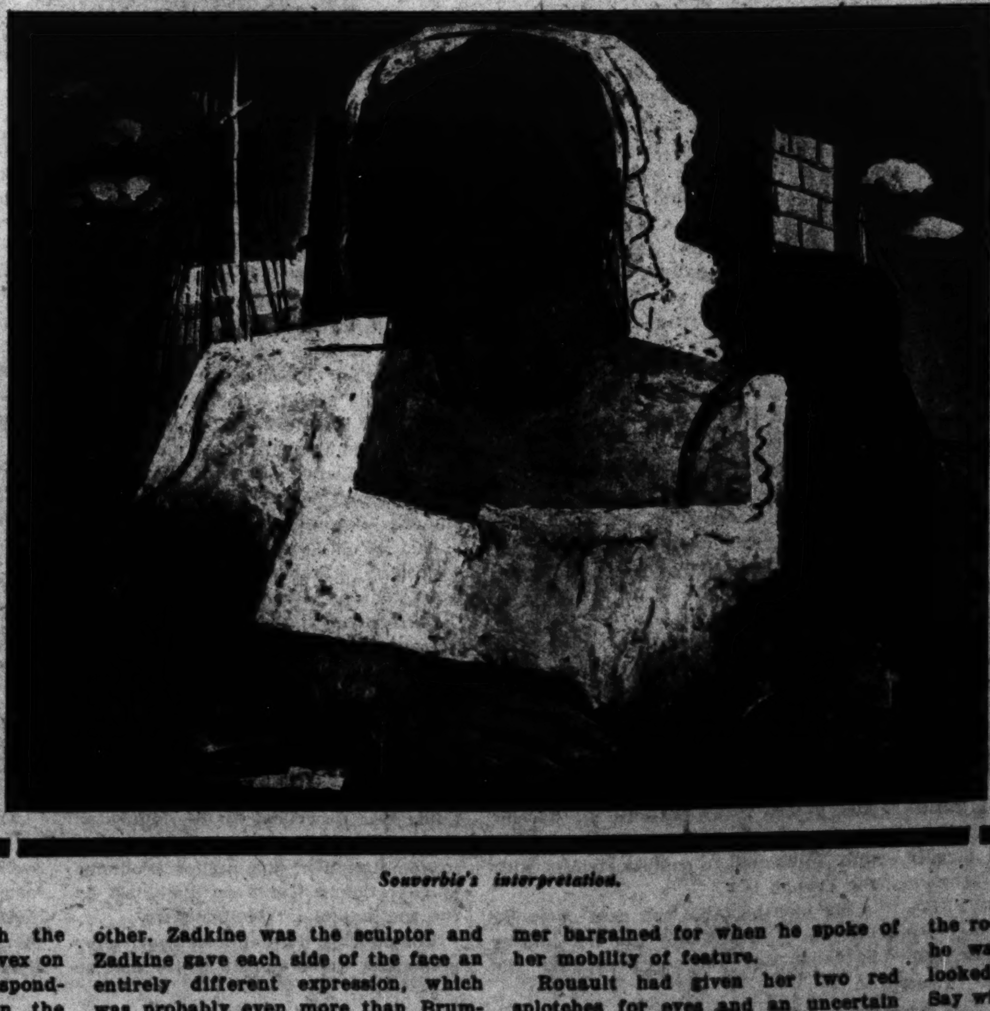
How did the good word get about? I do not know and Mr. Brummer tells me neither does he. Perhaps La Lani, with a grand total of 15 or 18 portraits in her mind, whispered it around herself. Perhaps the two or three artists, who were in on the conversation, started the ball rolling down the steep streets of Montmartre. But started it was. It went right—through the best modern art sections of Paris, gathering speed and volume in the manner of a snowball, till it rolled right into the door of the Brummer Gallery in New York, begging for recognition.



Maria Lani, a pastel by Marval.

So Brummer took the ball to pieces and when he had finished, three large exhibition rooms of his gallery were covered with oils of Maria Lani, black and whites of Maria Lani, water colors of Maria Lani, flat oils of Maria Lani, pastels of Maria Lani. And dotted all around the rooms, standing on their bases, was Maria Lani in plaster and Maria Lani in bronze.

There was a bronze in which the lady's face is convex on one side and correspondingly concave on the other. Zadkine was the sculptor and Zadkine gave each side of the face an entirely different expression, which was probably even more than Brummer bargained for when he spoke of her mobility of feature.



Souverbie's interpretation.

Rouault had given her two red splotches for eyes and an uncertain expression, the whole composition more redolent of a difficult evening in a bar off a Seine quay than of an accepted Parisian actress. I assure you you would hardly recognize in the interpretation the rather delicate, pensive girl Marval makes of her, the girl you see in the lower left-hand corner of this page.

But such is the wonder of the Lani exhibit. Papazoff went entirely modern. He made his portrait green with pointed head, one blue eye, one green eye, and a red dot for a mouth. If you looked closely —very closely — at the other Maria Lanis around the room, you got what he was after. If you looked closely enough. Say with your eyelashes brushing the portrait. If you had no other Maria Lani to guide you, you might very well have come to find what one observer saw in it. A frog. A particularly heartsick frog.

Turning on your heel and swinging your glance some 120 degrees, you saw the caricature by the eminent French critic, Jean Cocteau. (Here you find it on the right of this page.) A rather strident penning. But continue to observe, be of good heart. And the next thing you knew you came upon the interesting portrait by Delaunay, reproduced in color on this cover.

It is perfectly true that M. Delaunay is not a conservative. Hardly as conservative as M. Marval. But compared to M. Papazoff!!!—ah, the M. Delaunay becomes a hidebound old fogey of the classic school. The artist worked in flat oils, putting in light as God gave him to see the light, and doing very much the same thing with color. He found in La Lani a face pensive, introspective and, on first glance, rather sad.

But examine it again, and what might once have passed for almost a touch of melancholia is dissipated in the quizzical lift of the eyebrows, the questioning expression of the eyes, a certain understanding irony in the set of the mouth.

I suspect Delaunay caught Lani on about the forty-seventh sitting, that she was reflecting what Mr. Brummer of Fifty-seventh street, New York, had gotten her into, and finding consolation in the fact that there were only four more to give her face to the world in their own curious manner after M. Delaunay got through with it.

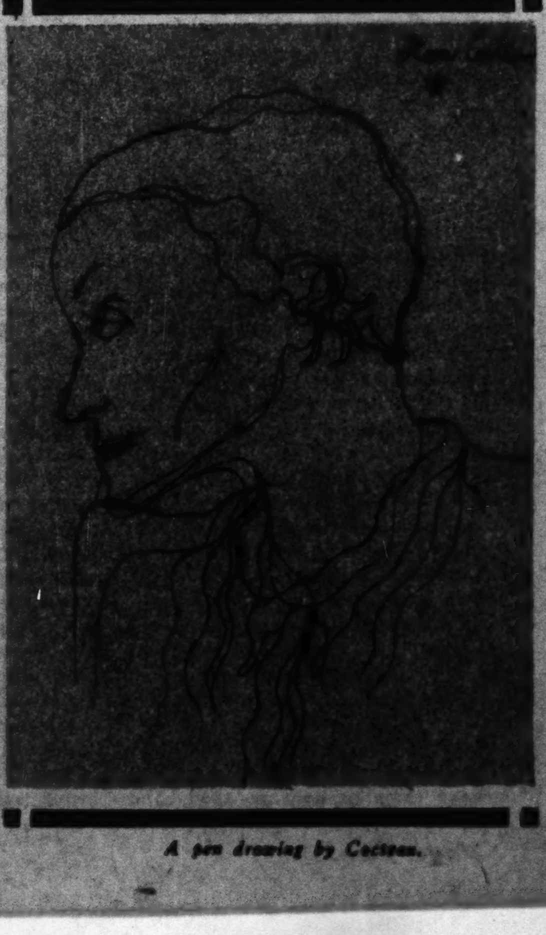
As for M. Souverbie—the gentleman whose interpretation is reproduced at the bottom of this page—I should prefer every man to speak for himself. Square-shouldered as a fullback, with the neck of a wrestler, a woman of only half a face but complete nose by way of compromise, a gigantic Amazon, a sort of Goddess of Liberty for Brittany—that is Lani as Souverbie cared to portray her.

SO it goes. Kees Van Dongen found a Madonna-like quality, Georges Braque made the outlines of her face a keystone. Dufy gave her a light eye and a dark eye, Foujita made her a hausfrau. Some did not give her any clothes, another gave her a fur coat—in the portrait.

One artist scribbled on his piece "A Maria Lani avec tout ma sympathie," and if he literally meant that it was to Maria Lani with all his sympathy, Maria Lani, considering some of the Maria Lanis she has seen, must have taken those friendly words close to her bosom.

All in all, Lani must have a facility of expression of high frequency to possess the face that launched 51 artists in 53 different directions, counting the sets of faces Zadkine and Souverbie bestowed upon her. She set in motion a strange tournament that had persons streaming into the Brummer Gallery, pleased before some of the conceptions, amused before others, but nearly always interested.

Reviewing the collection that grew up about her, La Lani must have been highly pleased in some instances to have seen herself as some of her artists had seen her. On the other hand, if certain fellows greet her as she makes her way along Montparnasse, and Lani doesn't seem to see them, that will not be surprising either.



A pen drawing by Cocteau.

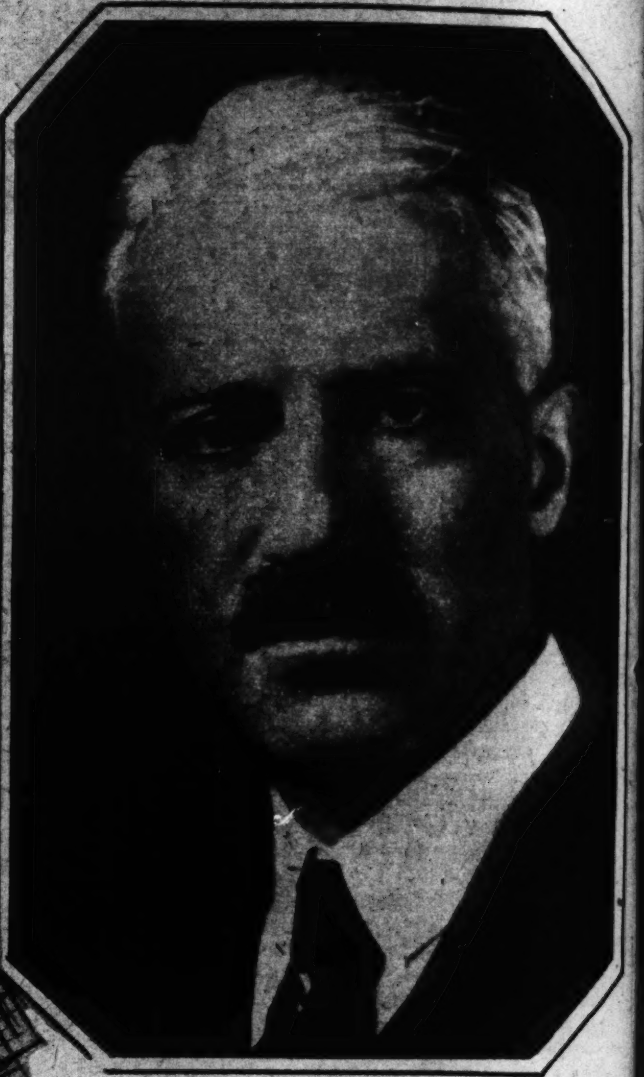
PAID HIS WIFE to KEEP HIM OUT of her BOOKS

The Part an Ironic Novel Played in Bainbridge Colby's Divorce and Subsequent Remarriage.

Mrs. Nathalie Sedgwick Colby.

The present Mrs. Bainbridge Colby.



Bainbridge Colby.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

WHEN Bainbridge Colby, former St. Louisan and Secretary of State under President Wilson, recently married for the second time, it is not impossible he had ascertained beforehand that the lady was completely innocent of any literary aspirations. Not that Mr. Colby is wanting in literary appreciation. Quite the contrary. The eminent statesman and attorney has long been known by his associates as a discerning student of letters and is himself the author of official state papers distinguished for their scholarship and style.

But there is a vast and painful difference between liking literature and serving as the subject for it, and since that was his unhappy experience with his first wife, the novelist, Nathalie Sedgwick Colby, the former Secretary may not be inclined to expose himself a second time to satiric treatment at the hands of a wife who may chance to find him interesting material.

Indeed, it was the first Mrs. Colby's ironic novel of political life, "The Green Forest," that led directly to their divorce, and the resulting litigation revealed the astonishing fact that Mr. Colby had for some time been paying his wife $1500 a month on the express condition that she refrain from making him the subject of her writings. But when the novel was published, Mr. Colby felt that he had been cartooned therein. Hence, after several years of legal battling, accompanied by most irksome publicity, the Colbys were finally divorced in October. A month later Mr. Colby married Mrs. Joseph Ely, a handsome New York widow whose charms and talents do not include a flair for literary composition.

COLBY, who was born in St. Louis in 1869, received his education in the East and has since made his residence there. Shortly after graduation from college he married the socially prominent Nathalie Sedgwick of Stockbridge, Mass., and together they made their home in New York. For thirty years they lived in what, to the world at large, seemed an enviable state of happiness. They had three daughters, and Mr. Colby had achieved a position of high distinction. An attorney of international reputation, he succeeded Robert Lansing as Secretary of State in the last year of the Wilson administration and was seriously regarded by many as a presidential possibility. And when President Wilson retired from office he honored Colby by joining him in the practice of law.

But the first intimation that perhaps all was not perfect in the Colby menage came to light in 1924. And it was Mrs. Colby's irrepressible urge to write for publication that was responsible for the exposure. In an article in the Atlantic Monthly of May, 1924, she explained her views of some of the dangers in marriage.

"A woman's greatest danger is marriage with an egoist," she wrote. "He is fatal in a home and the credit for his rapid disappearance is due to the modern woman. He must have invented the term 'wife,' deriving it from the verb 'vibrare,' to tremble. A woman's best quality is her ability to respond to demand. That is why it is so important for her to avoid an egoist, for an egoist is a smotherer. He has the heavy hand of possession and he is always molding his wife to some preconceived idea. His self-consciousness about her is abnormal; he cannot bear to see so intimate a part of himself outside his own jurisdiction."

NO ONE knew, of course, whether or not Mrs. Colby had her eminent husband in mind when she wrote that piece. Nevertheless, only a year later they were estranged and rumors were alternately published and denied that a divorce would shortly be sought. Mr. Colby, in particular, was vehement in denying an estrangement and emphatically declared that the rumors were utterly without foundation. As a matter of fact, they were already living apart and had actually signed the agreement whereby Colby was to pay her $1500 monthly on condition that "neither party will discuss the other by comment or in writing or otherwise. Each party agrees to refrain from molesting or in any way interfering by word or otherwise with the other."

Then in January, 1927, there appeared in the bookshops Mrs. Colby's novel, "The Green Forest." It is a novel of political life in Washington, whose chief male character is a politician and statesman. In the novel the husband and wife, long and faithfully married, had failed in complete understanding of each other largely because of the egoism of the husband-statesman.

This character was treated with biting satire, as the following typical quotations from the book will show:

"The Great Man felt all exposed, didn't want anyone to see him, for he said: 'Doctor, will you see that my privacy is undisturbed,' falling asleep with the gesture of a Roman emperor."

"A politician's life was a performance. This man's technique was not so different from a matinee hero's, really. The hours off he must find dull, and that's where his wife came in. Most probably she prayed to death as she stretched herself over the dull places. For a next president couldn't allow himself to be seen—had to have a mystery about him."

Although, of course, Colby was never mentioned in the book, he seems to have felt that the chief character was a malicious burlesque of himself. And within a few months after the novel was published Bainbridge Colby took ship for France with the avowed purpose of establishing a residence there and obtaining a divorce.

When interviewers asked Mrs. Colby if her novel hadn't been at least suggested by the personality of her husband she returned an emphatic negative.

"Mr. Colby is much too colossal a figure to be encompassed in any single book," she replied. "Indeed, his nature is one of generosity, nobility, the direct antithesis of the political character in the book."

But the smile with which she accompanied this denial indicated that her words might be construed in more ways than one.

MR. COLBY, after announcing that he had come to France to get a divorce, rented a house in the village of La Celle, a few miles from Versailles, although he spent most of his time living in hotels in Paris. He allowed several months to pass before filing his suit at the end of the summer, his lawyer explaining that he wanted to comply strictly with the French law.

Six months later the case came up for trial. Mrs. Colby did not appear in court and did not even take the trouble to be represented. But Colby was represented by most eminent counsel, none other than Alexandre Millerand, former President of France. It was generally assumed that there would be no obstacles in the way of Mr. Colby's effort to obtain his freedom. The French courts were known to be lenient in such matters and with such an illustrious representative as M. Millerand before the bar nothing but easy success could be anticipated.

And M. Millerand was most eloquent in presenting his client's case. Sensational testimony was offered to the effect that the so-called "fantastic" literary nature of Mrs. Colby had made married happiness impossible for the former Secretary. It was further asserted that Mrs. Colby's novel had mercilessly ridiculed her husband, causing him annoyance, chagrin and embarrassment. In short, Mr. Colby was described to the judges as a serious-minded statesman whose contemplation of the higher problems of government had been disturbed by the writings of a frivolous wife.

Considering the evidence that Colby presented, there was no doubt that he had excellent grounds for divorce. Where other men might have hesitated about making the admission, he readily informed the court he recognized himself as the ridiculous chief character in Mrs. Colby's novel. And it was certainly a clear case of incompatibility, not to say cruelty, for a wife to expose the foibles of her husband so plainly to the world. No one doubted that he would get his divorce. And then the unexpected happened.

For it seems that a short time before Colby entered his suit for divorce, Marilyn Miller, the blonde musical comedy star, had likewise journeyed to Paris and had there received a divorce from her husband, Jack Pickford, with dispatch and ease. In fact, the actress was so delighted with the cafeteria service of the French divorce courts that she prattled merrily and at length on the subject, airing her appreciation of the French genius to all and sundry newspaper reporters who cared to hear her on the subject.

"Paris is the easiest place in the world to get a divorce, better than Reno," she gleefully reiterated.

MISS MILLER'S unsolicited indorsement of the French divorce courts, however, was not appreciated in France. The dignity of the French judiciary was offended. The Americans referred to Paris as a sort of divorce mill, did they? Well, the French legal dignitaries decided, we will show them! There shall be no more easy American divorces here!

And it was at just this unfortunate psychological moment that the former Secretary of State, represented by the former President of France, presented himself at court in quest of one of the celebrated "easy" French divorces. Here was just the opportunity desired by the French judiciary to refute publicly and emphatically the allegation made by the fair Marilyn. With two such eminent persons as Colby and Millerand involved, the opinion of the court would receive unlimited publicity. And choosing Colby as the victim of their object lesson, the Versailles tribunal denied Colby his divorce in a decision which practically slammed the door of France in the face of Americans seeking easy divorces in Paris and other French cities. The Court denied that it had jurisdiction in the case, saying that French courts are for French citizens, not for foreigners, although the latter could claim French court jurisdiction if bona fide residents of the country. The Court added that Colby had not really established permanent residence in France, but merely a temporary residence for the sole purpose of obtaining a divorce.

Colby's disappointment was bitter. His own indignant protests had probably done more than anything else to attract the attention of the public to the novel which ridiculed him. His object, of course, had been to show the French courts how much he had been abused and how deserving he was of his freedom.

To add to his unhappiness, as soon as he returned to New York Mrs. Colby filed suit for $16,500, plus interest—back payment due her according to the terms of their separation agreement.

And to Colby's other troubles was now added the publication of the fact that he had been paying his wife a monthly allowance to keep her from making fun of him in her books. To most people it seems rather funny when a man feels obliged to pay his wife for not writing satiric sketches about him.

This suit was settled out of court, and there are reasons for inferring that the settlement was on terms satisfactory to Mrs. Colby.

INDEED, the settlement probably included a provision for permanent separation, for soon afterwards Mrs. Colby journeyed to Reno, established her residence, and early last October filed application for divorce. The divorce was granted on grounds of desertion. The fact that a property settlement had been effected was recorded, but no details of it were made known. Colby was represented by attorneys, but they offered no testimony. Five days later Mrs. Colby was granted her divorce. As she left the courtroom newspaper reporters asked her if she had anything to say about her former husband.

"Mr. Colby is great in history as a great Secretary of State," she said. "There is nothing left for me to say."

But the manner in which Mrs. Colby delivered that statement implied that her words were not to be taken too literally.

Less than five weeks after Mrs. Colby obtained her Reno decree, Bainbridge Colby and Mrs. Anne Ely, widow of a Manhattan real estate dealer, were married at the Plymouth Congregational Church in Brooklyn. For a former Secretary of State it was a decidedly modest function.

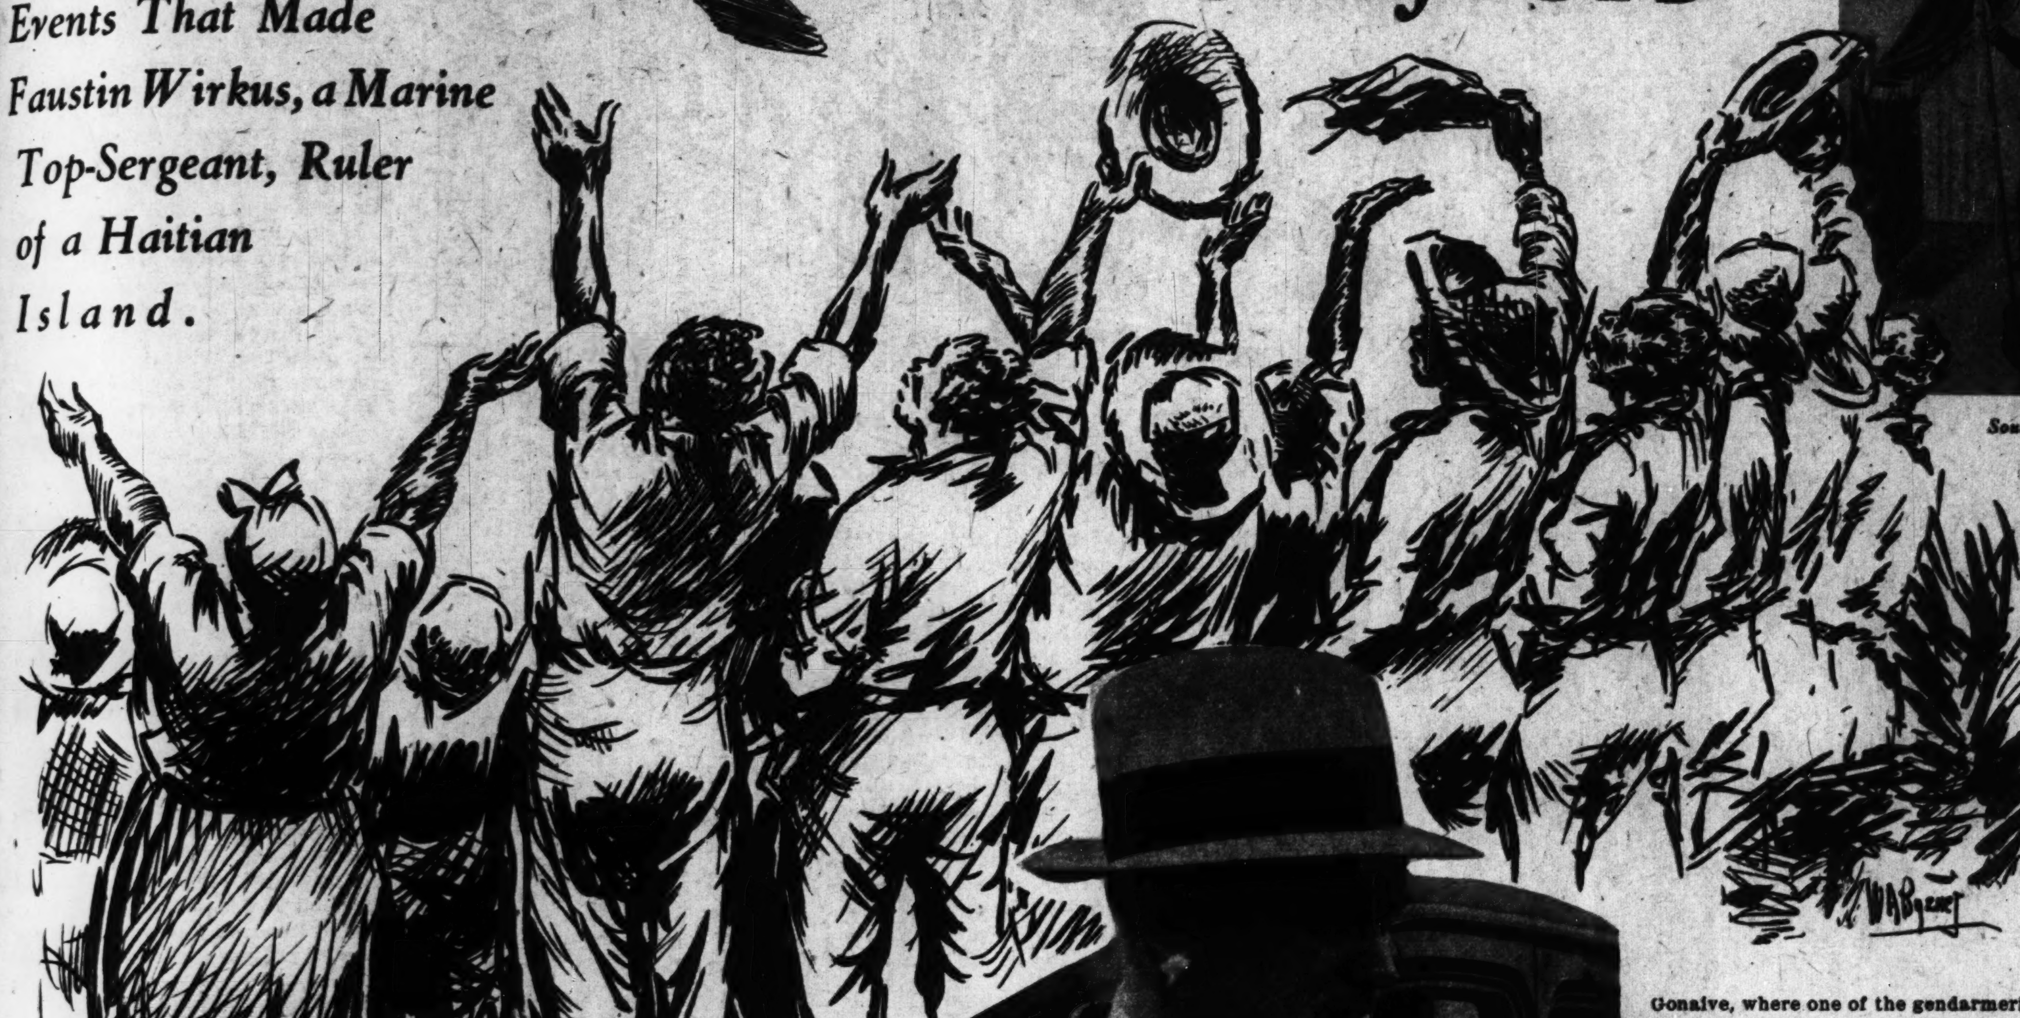
An AMERICAN KING GOES BACK to his SUBJECTS

The Strange Conspiracy of Events That Made Faustin Wirkus, a Marine Top-Sergeant, Ruler of a Haitian Island.



Soulouque, who was crowned King of the island under the title of Faustin I.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti.

ON THE little Island of La Gonaive, not far from here, there was wild rejoicing the other day. Half the population lined the beach, shouting and gesticulating, as a seaplane dropped down out of the blue. Royalty, in the person of First Sergeant of Marines Faustin E. Wirkus, stepped into a waiting dinghy and was rowed ashore. There to be nearly overwhelmed by the greetings of his dusky brown subjects, at least 10,000 of them.

King Wirkus had been away just six weeks. Yet if noise and fervor mean anything, half the crowned heads of Europe might have envied him this demonstration. For Wirkus' crown is firmly in place. The loyalty of his subjects is unquestioned.

How this unassuming young Marine from Pennsylvania got his crown is worthy of the best of Richard Harding Davis, or even Kipling. It is, however, a story built upon a series of curious coincidences that a skilled fiction writer would surely reject as highly implausible. Going back into the wilder days of Haiti's past, it hangs upon a chance similarity of names.

In the year 1848 a light-tan go-getter by the name of Soulouque appeared upon the island of La Gonaive with the news that the Holy Virgin had appeared to him in a dream and had announced that he was to become the Emperor of Haiti, San Domingo and all the adjacent islands of the tropics. Since this was predestined, he thought he might as well start by being King of La Gonaive.

THIS Soulouque had started life as servant of a wealthy Haitian family, but he was of too up-and-coming a disposition to remain in a menial position. To begin with, he had a most persuasive tongue, and on top of that he possessed the knack of convincing himself and his hearers of utterly preposterous things. In short, Soulouque had qualifications, according to the legend that survives, which would have made him a successful politician in any land.

After a brief speaking tour of La Gonaive, Soulouque persuaded its 10,000 or so natives that he was their heaven-sent ruler, and shortly afterward was crowned King of the island under the name of Faustin the First.

It is not easy to explain how he came to select this title. The answer seems to lie in the fact that La Gonaive had been under French rule, and that the natives spoke a Creole tongue. Faustin, although originally a German name, is common in parts of France, and so it drifted across the seas to become the title of an island King who dreamed of setting himself up as Emperor in all that tropical domain.

But Faustin's dream didn't last. After playing good politics by convincing his people that he was their ordained King, he slipped badly by stressing such unpopular forms of government as taxation and other duties to the state. In fact, he became a first-rate tyrant, and La Gonaive didn't like it. Members of a rival faction began to hint that they could detect a faint odor of brimstone about their heaven-sent King and to suggest that the island had been a happier place to live when they all voted Democratic. The upshot was that a local vigilance committee waited on the King and booted him off the island. But while he left hurriedly, he remained an orator to the last.

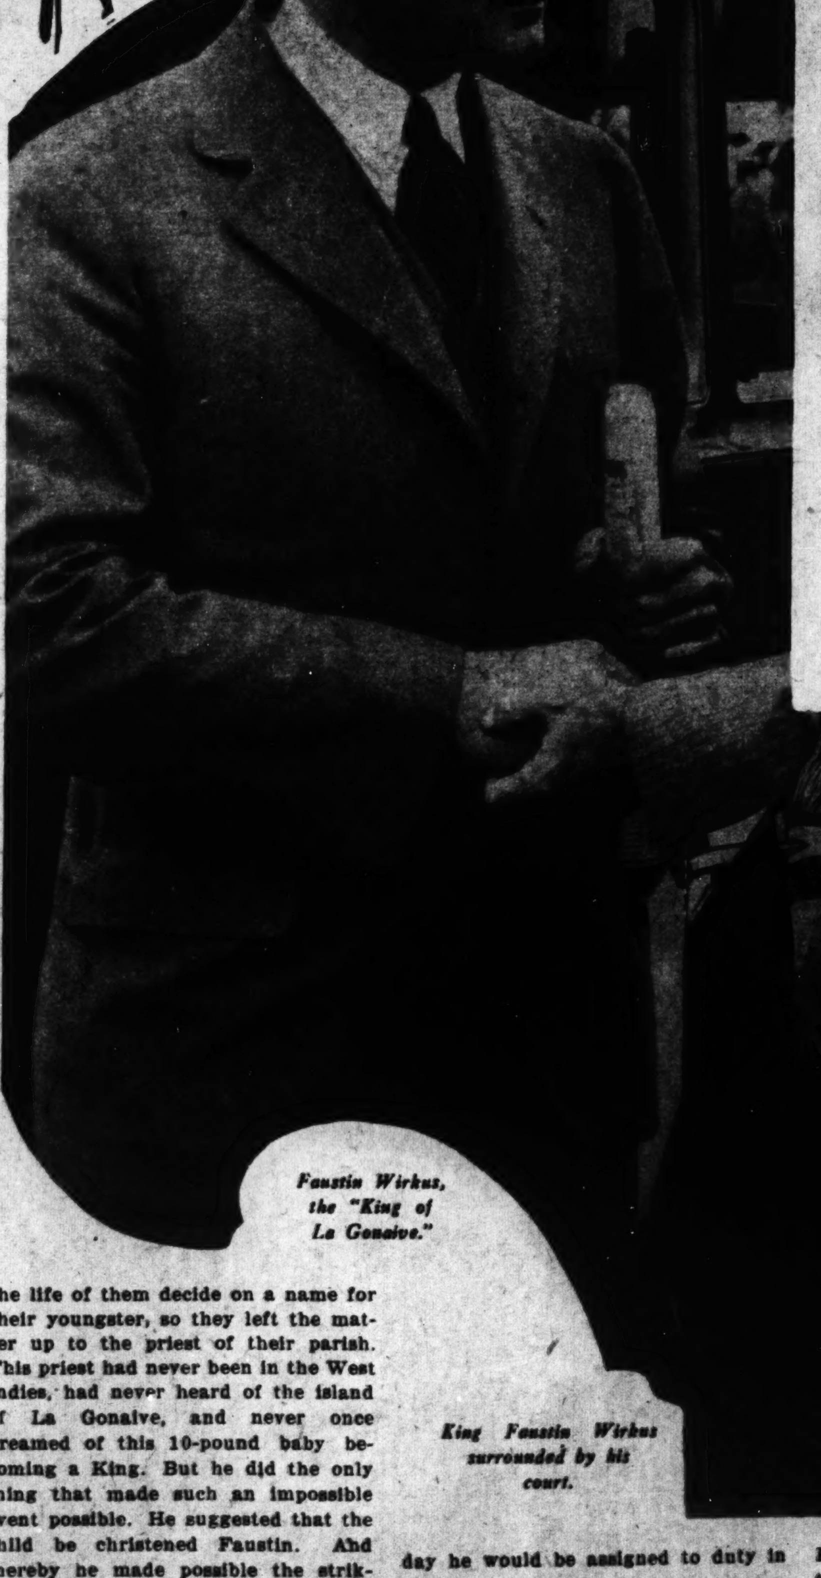
"Some day," he said, "I shall return as a great bird swooping down from the skies, and shall rule again over La Gonaive."

ALL this happened before our own Civil War, but La Gonaive is a peaceful place, without traffic problems or divorce scandals, so there really isn't much to talk about and any little incident makes a big impression and isn't likely to be forgotten very soon. King Faustin's departure was one of the most exciting events in La Gonaive's history, and his last words are remembered as clearly as though it were only yesterday that the King had left—one jump ahead of the vigilance committee.

He sought refuge in Jamaica, and died there in 1867. The years passed and no great bird swooped down from the skies upon La Gonaive. It seemed that the prophecy was not to be fulfilled. But, remote and apparently unrelated, an event occurred that was to have tremendous significance in the history of La Gonaive. A male child was born near Pittston, Pennsylvania, a farming district not far from Wilkes-Barre. That was in 1894.

The boy's father was a German-American and a Protestant. His mother was of Polish-French origin and a Roman Catholic. They couldn't for the life of them decide on a name for their youngster, so they left the matter up to the priest of their parish. This priest had never been in the West Indies, had never heard of the island of La Gonaive, and never once dreamed of this 10-pound baby becoming a King. But he did the only thing that made such an impossible event possible. He suggested that the child be christened Faustin. And thereby he made possible the striking coincidence which was later to turn a First Sergeant into a King.

For the time being, however, things went along as usual. The little Faustin cried no more nor less than other babies; was a little late in teething; learned to talk about when he should, and gave absolutely no signs of some day becoming a royal personage. As he grew into boyhood, however, he began to manifest a martial spirit. He wanted to be a soldier instead of a farmer when he grew up. Faustin's determination to be a soldier persisted into manhood, and at the first opportunity he enlisted in the Marines—the only branch of the service which made it highly probable that some day he would be assigned to duty in Haiti.



Faustin Wirkus, the "King of La Gonaive."

King Faustin Wirkus surrounded by his court.

He advanced rapidly in grade until he became a First Sergeant—a rank which virtually assured his appointment as Lieutenant of the gendarmerie in case he was ever sent to Haiti, and furthermore meant that he would be eligible for police duty on one of the islands of the West Indian group. All the pieces were now beginning to fall into place.

Sergeant Faustin's company was ordered to Haiti. Shortly after their arrival Sergeant Faustin was made lieutenant of the gendarmerie. Immediately on the heels of that appointment Sergeant Faustin—now lieutenant—was ordered to the island of La Gonaive, where one of the gendarmerie was kept in charge as a sort of governor. One of the Marine planes was detailed to take him by air to the island.

AND so it happened that nearly a century after the departure of the first Faustin from La Gonaive another Faustin descended upon the island like "a great bird swooping down from the skies"; and the natives soon became convinced that their first King's prophecy had been fulfilled. The mere sight of an airplane didn't persuade them of this fact, for Marines sent to the island were in the habit of making the journey by air. It was the combination of the plane and the discovery that the new arrival's name was Faustin which convinced them that a miracle had happened, and that Faustin the First had returned in the guise of a soldier with white skin and blue eyes.

They didn't stop to consider that the King who had ruled almost half a century before had been a very undesirable specimen of royalty; or if they did give thought to this phase of the question, they very likely decided that he must have had a change of heart as well as of skin in the course of the intervening years. At any rate, they decided without caucus or deliberation that this soldier in a Marine uniform was their King, and that they were going to crown him right away. The whole island had been brought up on the legend that some day Faustin the First would fly back to them and no time was lost in carrying out the ceremonies. In fact, Sergeant Wirkus was a King before he knew it.

One of the leading figures on the island is a soothsayer and prophet named Ti Meminee, a wrinkled old chap who is said to be a hundred years old and looks every day of it. He sent for Sergeant Wirkus, and on his arrival at the meeting place the non-com found that just about every native on the island was there to greet him. They strewed flowers and palms in his path, something that had never before happened to him during his service with the Marines; they draped a yellow silk bandana over his shoulder; then placed him in a chair, carried him around in a circle several times, knelt down before him; and then, as one man, rose to their feet and proclaimed him King.

Sergeant Wirkus has a sense of humor, and at first the whole business struck him as a joke, but he soon found that it was anything but a joking matter with the natives, since they had an abiding faith in his ability to rule wisely and well and to make the best King any island ever had. And their faith wasn't misplaced. Sergeant Wirkus took off his crown, rolled up his sleeves, and set out to make La Gonaive the garden spot of the West Indies, even though the encyclopedias say that it is the most primitive island of the group.

He instituted sanitary measures to improve the health of his kingdom, he set about building better roads, he co-operated with the native officials, including a minister of the interior, a minister of agriculture and a minister of war; and best of all he reduced taxes.

It is customary for Marines assigned to La Gonaive to remain six months and then be relieved and in the meantime to make weekly trips to Haiti, for life on the island is not particularly exciting. But when Sergeant Wirkus' tour of duty was ended, he asked to be allowed to remain indefinitely, and even abandoned the week-end trips to Haiti because he couldn't spare the time.

HIS superior officers had heard of the strange fact that one of their non-coms had become a King, and they had also heard that he was proving a King of whom royalty in general might very well be proud. His royal status wasn't interfering in the least with his duties as a soldier; on, the contrary, his position of King plus that of Lieutenant of the gendarmerie was enabling him to rule the island with a thoroughness that was entirely satisfactory to everybody concerned. Accordingly, there was no complaint on anybody's part over the fact that the world's first "top-kick" King was on the job in La Gonaive.

Affairs of state continued without a hitch in the island kingdom until recently, when a public holiday was declared and the entire population proceeded down to the beach to see a plane take off. Aboard was King Faustin the Second en route for Port-au-Prince, from which point he sailed for the States to visit his home in Pennsylvania. His subjects actually wept as he departed, even though they had his assurance that he would return in a few weeks; and the non-com King himself had difficulty in maintaining a stern and soldierly bearing.

He was amazed, he says, to discover that people in the States knew about his kingship. A little embarrassing he found it, too. Reporters, photographers, the stares of the curious. This phase of royalty's existence was entirely new to him. To every interviewer he gave the same smiling answer: "In the Marines we're supposed to act, not talk."

And that is what King Wirkus is doing now that he is back again on his green, dolphin-shaped island of La Gonaive.

CONVICTED of SLAYING after 29 YEARS

A Fight Between Young Joe Ferguson and a Neighbor's Boy Led to His Father's Capture.

John Ferguson.

Joe Ferguson.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

ASHVILLE, Ala.

AS Joe Ferguson, a gay and lighthearted farmboy of 19, was walking down a moonlit lane last September with his sweetheart, whom he was seeing home from prayer meeting, he was laughingly hailed by two youths—they were his buddies.

In the middle of the dusty road, the youthful quartet—the three farmboys and the belle of the countryside—stopped to chatter.

But a remark, perhaps a flippant jest about "spooning in the moonlight," started a rough and tumble fight between the three youths.

The results of that fight were tragic, for Joe Ferguson is now a cripple for life, while his father, John Ferguson, is facing a 10-year sentence in the Alabama State Penitentiary for a slaying that took place 'way back in 1900.

Time has played many queer pranks in the life of the elder Ferguson, but none so queer as his delivery into the arms of the law for a killing that had long been forgotten by almost everyone—except Ferguson himself and members of the family of the slain man.

It is a far cry from Mexico, where Joe first saw the light of day, to the modest little cotton farm just on the fringe of the town of Gadsen. But a train of circumstances, not unlike those woven by an imaginative scenario writer, fate, if you will, contrived to bring John Ferguson, the father of Joe, before the St. Clair County Circuit Court on the charge of having killed Will Andrews.

The primeval lure of native land and father love also played their part in the undoing of John Ferguson. Joe was born while his father was fleeing the warrant that charged him with the slaying of a neighbor. But to get a picture of the tragedy and the incidents leading to it, it is necessary that we turn back the hands of time to 1900 and place the actors in the setting of this little town of Ashville.

JUST 29 years ago, John Ferguson, a youth of 22, was one of the up-and-coming farmers. He had just married a pretty farm lass of 17. They made their home on the plantation of Ferguson's father. Now John had a sister named Eria, and Will Andrews, a tenant farmer of the Fergusons, fell deeply in love with her.

As to that love affair, John Ferguson said the other day, from his cell in the Ashville jail, that his sister reciprocated the affections of the tenant farmer. He also observed:

"Will wrote my sister a letter. She must have thought a great deal of him because she answered that letter. And then Will wrote her another letter. She didn't answer that one. She was only a kid and I think she believed she was too young to think of marriage. She was just 15. So when she failed to answer the second letter, Will thought I had something to do with it, and blamed me for breaking up the affair. As a matter of fact, I didn't know a thing about the letters at the time.

"But a few days later we had a fight. This was just about the time in 1900 when men changed the way they cut their hair, and Will came into the store one day with one of those new-style haircuts. I started teasing him, good naturedly, about the haircut. This riled Will. He told me to keep my mouth out of his business. I didn't know he was all peppered up, but I naturally resented his talk, so one word led to another, and words into a fight. We fought all over the store, using axe handles and anything else hanging around loose. I still got some of the marks from that fight, even though it was nigh onto thirty years ago.

"Well, after it was all over, we shook hands and said we'd forget the fracas."

But the two young Alabama farmers did not forget the fracas. Two weeks later, one May morning, John left his father's store with a shotgun crooked under his arm. He said he was going home to dinner. The road home led past the barn of young Ferguson's father, "Buck" Ferguson, and there he stopped.

In the store there was the usual gathering from the countryside, discussing everything from McKinley's Philippine policy to the standing of Mobile and Birmingham in the Southern Baseball League. But no sooner was John Ferguson out of sight than the gossipers noticed Will Andrews coming down the road with his mother. Some immediately scented trouble. They watched Will go by the store and continue in the direction of the Ferguson place.

JUST before Mrs. Andrews and her son Will got to the Ferguson barn, a little rise in the road hid them from view. The crowd in the store was now out in the road, as if expecting something to happen. And something—the expected—did happen. There was a report from a shotgun. And then came the angry barking of a pistol. Silence for a fraction of a minute, and again the roar from a shotgun.

The fusillade at an end, the country-store gossipers sped down the road towards the scene of the duel. In a shallow ditch along the roadside lay Will Andrews—he was dead. John Ferguson was nowhere to be seen.

And now, as he tells the story today, nearly thirty years after the shooting, he went first to Mexico. Six months later his wife joined him there. After several years of exile south of the Rio Grande he ventured into Texas, and then by slow stages reached Ohio. But Ohio was not Alabama, and that was his goal. Finally, he screwed up his nerve and returned to his native state, taking up residence in Birmingham. And in that progressive industrial center John Ferguson has lived for the last four years, working and behaving himself.

For a short time after John Ferguson's flight, the authorities conducted a search for him. This was without results. Soon the case was to be pigeon-holed and forgotten among the dusty records of St. Clair County. Only the old folk remembered the killing, some of whom had "more'n a sneaking idea that John Ferguson was a-working in Birmingham."

A shooting that had taken place so long ago as 1900 had no place in their 1929 lives.

John Ferguson came back to Alabama and settled in Birmingham, because his boy, Joe, wanted to be a farmer. And, again, Mrs. Ferguson wanted to be near her people. She also had a farm near Jasper, and there she and Joe went to live. The boy managed the farm, and every week-end his father came up from Birmingham "to see how things were getting along." He made no effort to keep his goings and comings a secret, even passing through Ashville scores and scores of times.

Then that queer prank of fate—a roadside fight—was to intrude itself into the life of John Ferguson, as a result of which he was to find himself before court and jury charged with the slaying of Will Andrews.

LIVING with Joe and his mother on the farm near Jasper was his elder sister, Mrs. Lee Curtley. Joe and another boy were, to use Joe's expression, "courting the same girl" and boyish rivalry had led to several little spats. Mrs. Curtley, unaware of the ill-feeling between the boys, gave the other boy a letter and asked him to get it to her husband.

A few days later, Joe met this boy and asked him if he had delivered his sister's letter, as they hadn't received a reply.

"He got sore because I asked him about the letter, I guess," explained Joe, "and said it was none of my business and to keep my mouth out of his affairs. That made me mad, and we had a scrap. After it was over, we shook hands and said we'd both forget it. And I never thought any more of the row.

"We were still interested in the same girl. About two weeks later, this boy took her to prayer meeting, and I persuaded her to go home with me. As we were going home, the girl and myself met this boy in the road. He was with another boy. There was some friendly kidding, and then something was said, and before I knew what happened the two boys were on top of me like a brace of wildcats."

In the fight that followed, a long knife found its way into Joe's back, cutting the sciatic nerve, which controls the muscles of the legs. He was taken to a hospital in Gadsen. The severed nerve was beyond repair, and the lad lost the entire use of his leg. The muscles were completely paralyzed.

WHILE Joe was in the hospital, receiving surgical care for his injuries, someone telephoned the Ashville office of the sheriff, reminding him that the warrant for the arrest of John Ferguson still held good—and the warrant was for a killing. And the telephone informant also told the law officer, that if he wished to catch John Ferguson, the place for him to go was the hospital at Gadsen.

"He'll surely be seeing that boy, Joe, of his, for he thinks an awful lot of that kid," said the stranger's voice at the other end of the line.

And, as John Ferguson walked into the hospital, true to prediction, to see his boy, he was met by Deputy Sheriff Robert Leith and placed under arrest. The old papers in the case were unearthed from the musty and dusty files. John Ferguson was reindicted and went before the Circuit Court. All this was just a short time ago.

A jury was quickly empaneled and the man who had eluded the law for almost three decades was now on trial. Boyhood friends of the Fergusons and Andrewses and those to whom the feud was but a tradition flocked to the courthouse. The room was tense with the drama that was about to be enacted.

Mrs. Andrews, the 82-year-old mother of the slain man, was carried to the witness stand in an invalid's chair, which she has not left these many years. Despite her years and infirmities, her mind seemed clear and her thin voice vigorous as she told the story of the "killing of her Will, now gone nigh these thirty years." She testified:

"Will and I were walking down the road, and as we got to Ferguson's barn, I heard a shotgun fire. I looked towards the barn and saw John Ferguson with a shotgun in his hands. The gun was pointed towards us and he was getting ready to shoot again. Will ran towards the barn and, pulling his pistol, fired. And then Ferguson fired again, and my Will fell into the ditch alongside the road."

ALL testimony offered following the evidence of the old mother was bound to be anticlimactic. Mrs. Lilly Wildman, who was Lilly Gildman and 12 years old when the shooting occurred, told the court much the same story as that of the venerable Mrs. Andrews. Mrs. Leona Battles, a sister of Ferguson, gave testimony along almost the identical lines of that of Mrs. Wildman. A peculiar feature of the trial was the testimony of Mrs. Wildman and Mrs. Battles, both of whom are relatives of Ferguson, the first named being his sister-in-law, while the second woman is his own sister.

Another interesting point was the fact that the alleged failure to deliver a letter started the feud of May, 1900, between John Ferguson and Will Andrews, and also led to the fight between Joe Ferguson and the other boy in September, 1929.

All the evidence against Ferguson was direct. The jury deliberated a full day before they arrived at a verdict of second-degree murder and a sentence of 10 years in the State Penitentiary of Alabama.

After 29 years of freedom, though he knew he was "wanted by the law," Ferguson is now behind the gray stone walls of prison. His attorneys declare they will appeal the verdict, but around Ashville they say:

"It ain't going to do any good, for even his own women folk testified against him."

Joe Ferguson, now on crutches, visits his father regularly at the State Prison.

IDOL of NEW YORK'S EAST SIDE

Why Molly Picon Can't Leave Second Avenue and Doesn't Want to.

By OLIVER PAXTON

NEW YORK.

CONSIDER a tiny little lady who has revolutionized the amusement tastes of her people; who for seven years has been the pride and joy of Second avenue, and who, overnight, electrified the hard audience of the Palace Theatre, right on Broadway. Consider, in short, an actress of piquant and irresistible charm—Molly Picon.

Today she is the idol of the Jewish theatergoers and a neighborhood institution along the Jewish White Light district of lower Second avenue. Girl babies born thereabouts are named Molly. The children form Molly Picon clubs and wait on the corner for her to pass. A barber who earns part of his wage by cutting girls' hair prays nightly that Molly Picon will change her bob. She sets the fashion for such things among her young admirers. And her audience is expanding. She is booked for forty weeks over R-K-O vaudeville, and if she has time she will journey to London and do a concert or two. In spite of this growing fame, with its temptations of money and adulation, she will not desert Second avenue. Second avenue has been too good to her.

Things were not always so glowing for Miss Picon. Her story is like many another of the stage and tells of years of obscurity followed by an unexpected turn of fortune that brought out her ability. Such a story is an old one to the theatre, but seldom does it continue to such happy heights. Her triumph has gone further than the glitter of her name in electric lights. It has gone into the hearts and homes of those who have watched her pleasant antics at Kessler's Theatre.

Molly Picon.

As a child Miss Picon played in the Arch Street Theatre in Philadelphia. Her family were stage people and she was reared to follow their career. High hope was held for the time when Molly grew up and could discard children's parts, but the hope was blasted. She grew up all right, but maturity found her a slight wisp of a girl, much too small to do big things on the Jewish stage. Her people liked actresses of size and beef, and any lady under 180 pounds was not considered enough of an eyeful to satisfy an audience. Molly was reluctantly sentenced to child parts for life.

She made a brief flyer into vaudeville and trouped from coast to coast, but the effort was not highly successful, so she went to the theatre of the Jews and the portrayal of children. Still no hint of the approaching conquest of Second avenue.

THEN came the break, the stroke of fortune that started Molly Picon off to fame. In Boston, during the influenza epidemic, the leading lady of the company was taken ill and there was no one to put in her place. As a measure of desperation Jacob Kalich, now Miss Picon's husband, put Molly into the part, thus taking tradition and the situation by the horns. She went over beautifully, and Kalich came by an idea.

Besides liking large women on their stage, the Jews also had a taste for wailing plays—plays that they could weep over. Lightness and laughter were little known to them as an amusement. Kalich observed that they took to the innovation of a small and sparkling actress, and he wondered whether they would not likewise accept a gay setting for the personal charm of the young lady. Again the

INTERESTING ST. LOUISANS

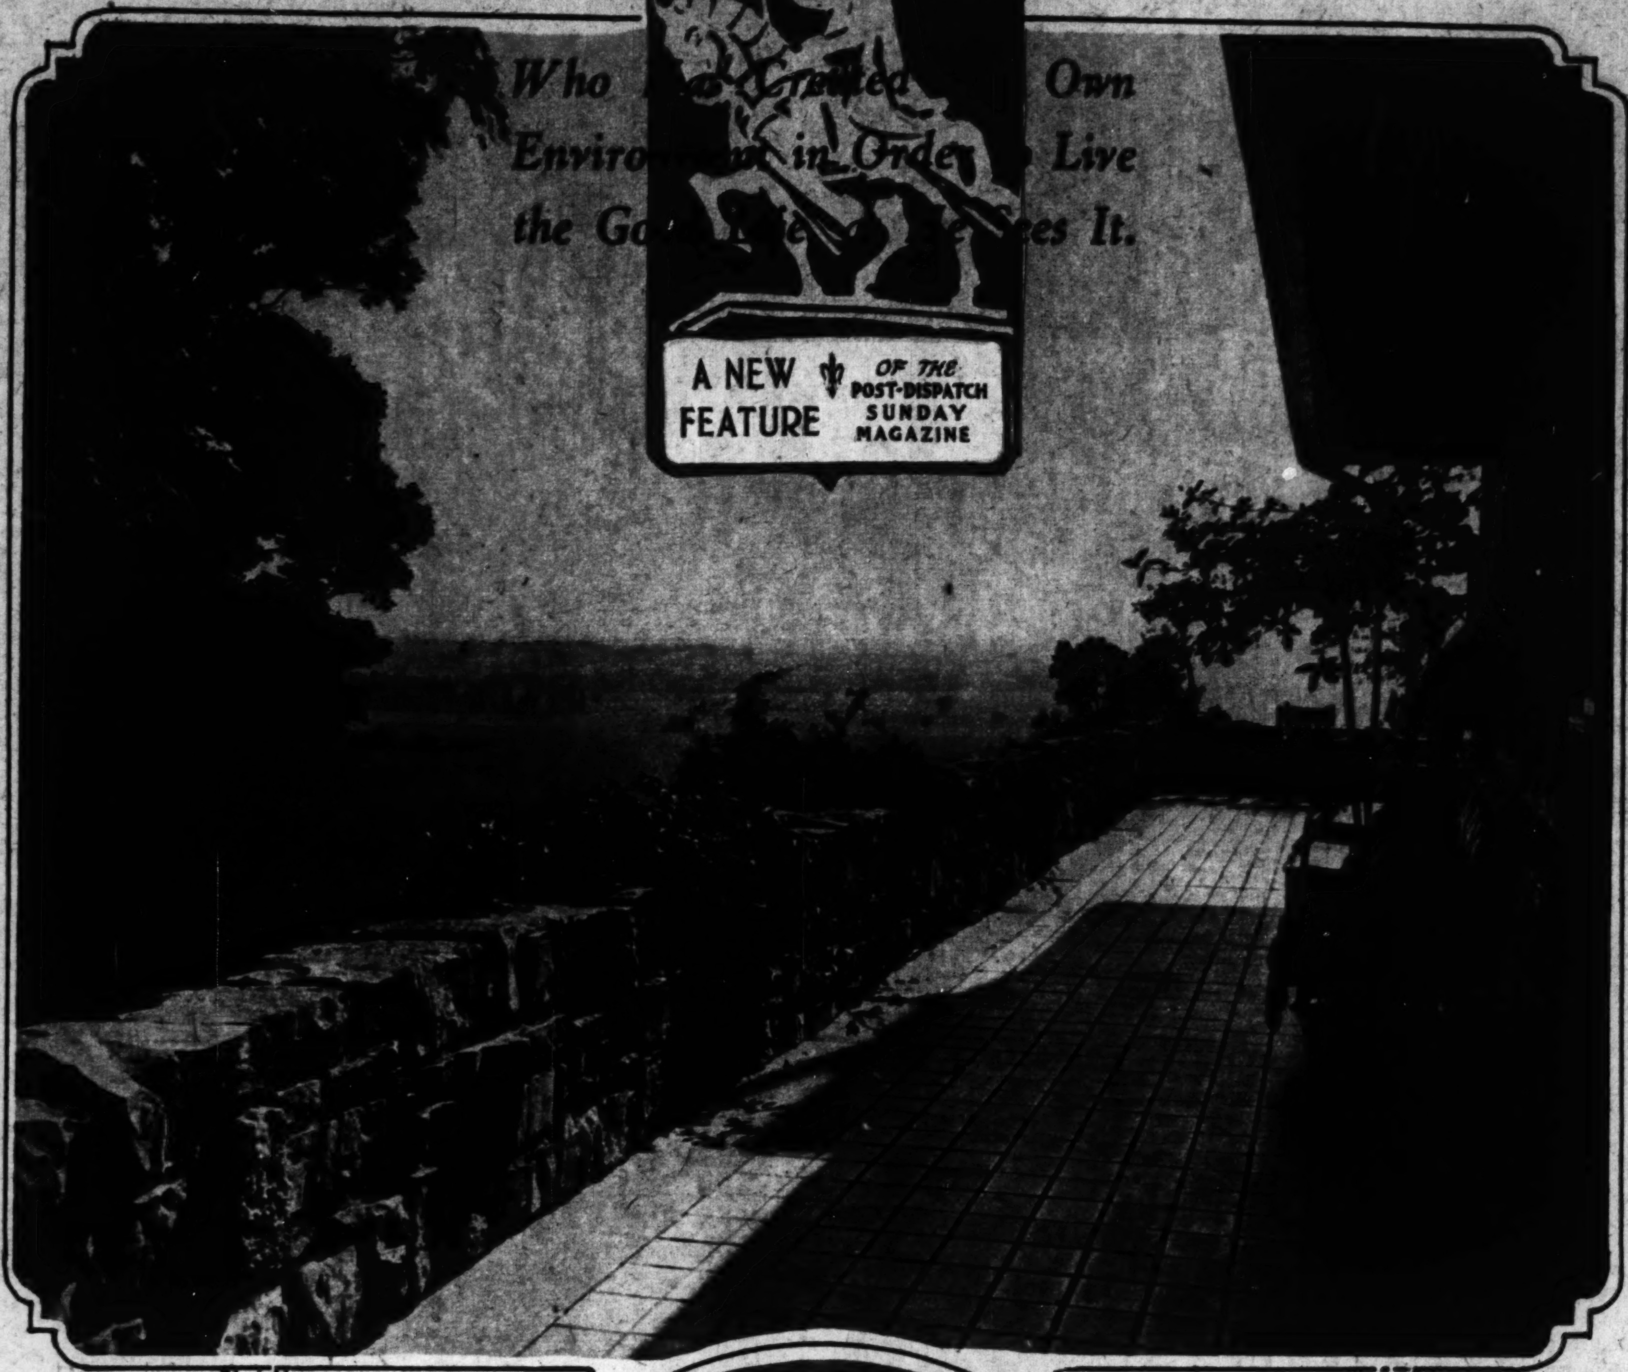
Edwin A. Lemp

Who Has Created His Own Environment in Order to Live the Good Life as He Sees It.

A NEW FEATURE OF THE POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE

By M. W. CHILDS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



A view from the veranda of Edwin Lemp's home.

TWENTY years ago Edwin A. Lemp, not long out of college, took a tent and went out and pitched camp on a high cliff overlooking the Meramec River, not far from Windsor Springs. Every week-end for three summers he went there, roamed about, occasionally entertained his friends camp style. It is on the site first chosen for his camp that Lemp now gives what are probably the most famous dinner parties in St. Louis. In the years that have elapsed he has devoted himself almost exclusively to the arts of the host.

When he was certain that this was the most desirable site he could find, he bought 3000 feet of land, both up and down the river from the cliff on which he had made camp. Then he proceeded to build his house. He knew exactly what he wanted; the plan of this house had been developing in his mind for a long time. With the aid of an architect he proceeded to execute it.

In 1913 he gave up active connection with the Lemp Brewing Company and began to live as he had always wanted to. He gave most of his time to the business of making the country place he had acquired conform as nearly as possible to an ideal which he cherished. This estate, which he named Cragwold, has become for him a retreat, an ideal retreat for himself and his friends. A retreat from a world which he found less and less to his liking.

Cragwold, as it is today, did not spring into being suddenly. This group of trees, this garden walk, this pool, each took its place in Lemp's scheme of gradual development. The more interested he became in his home the less he cared to travel, and just before the war he made his last trip to Europe.

Edwin A. Lemp.

The dining room.

The swimming pool.

ENTERING the private road to Cragwold, one drives for half a mile through rough, wooded country, left in its natural state. The road winds sharply up and down hill. Then, abruptly, there is a commanding gateway and, just beyond, the road runs through the farmyard. Here, too, there has been no attempt at formal landscaping. The farm buildings have been left as they originally were—weathered wood and field stone, tall picket fences, bordered by hollyhocks. Another transition and one comes out into a bluegrass park. The drive winds broadly, edged at its highest point by a group of silver and blue spruce and low cedars. The house itself is set so perfectly in its natural environment that it almost escapes notice. It is of one story, made of rough plaster, timbered, set on a high retaining wall of field stone, and almost covered with ivy. The planting around it, which was done under Lemp's direction, is extremely skillful. There are poplars, an occasional larch, spruces and cedars, all so arranged as to give the effect of alleys and courts, each one opening onto a new vista. Around three sides of the house is a broad, flagged terrace, or porch, and it is here that Lemp spends much of his time from early spring until late in the fall. He has a view that extends 50 or 60 miles out across the Meramec Valley, including almost the entire circle of the horizon. It never grows monotonous, he says.

It is in the interior that the design of Lemp's house is seen to be most striking. The plan is very much like that of a Roman house and, consequently, the patio, off which all the rooms open, becomes of the greatest importance. And it is on this glass-inclosed space that Lemp has lavished the most care. It began by being a kind of conservatory with a few plants and a parrot or two to add color. It has become, through Lemp's efforts, a tropical setting for one of the most valuable collections of tropical and semi-tropical birds in the country. There are nearly a hundred different kinds of birds of every color of the rainbow flying at large in the patio. And many larger species are confined to perches. Around the walls and about the center pool are special glass aquariums. In these are tropical fish, flashes of red and silver seen through transparent green reeds. The aquariums stand on carved marble and bronze bases.

Opening off this patio, which would correspond to the atrium in a Roman house, are three or four guest rooms, Lemp's own room, a study, kitchen and service pantries, a living room that extends the breadth of the house and the dining room.

The latter is a most important room in this household. For Lemp believes that good food is of prime importance. Which is one of the reasons why his dinners have become so famous.

His interest in skillfully-prepared food is of long standing. As a young man, before he severed his business connections, he fitted up adjoining his offices at the Lemp Brewery a kind of grill, where he served steak dinners to his friends that were famous in their day. He grilled the steaks himself over charcoal.

He gives the greatest care to planning his dinner parties. They are never impromptu affairs. Customarily he invites guests from 10 days to two weeks in advance, and once he has decided on those who are to be invited he cannot be persuaded to make changes or additions. Next he decides on the menu with his cook, a woman of German extraction. Decides on the silver and the china service to be used. Decides on the flowers. There is no detail which he overlooks.

"I HAVE traveled a good deal all over the world," says one of Lemp's friends, "and I have nowhere encountered such dinners. They are perfect in every detail. And formal, very formal. They are not necessarily elaborate dinners, usually a soup, an entree, the meat course, a salad and dessert.

"The soup, for example, may be a very simple soup but it is perfectly prepared. Of course, Mr. Lemp is very fortunate in his cook. She prepares a great many foreign dishes, even the names of which are unknown in this country. She has no specialties in the ordinary sense, for everything that she prepares is excellent. For example, I recall that at a dinner recently we had for dessert apple tart. It was a superb dessert. So many of the things, especially the greens for the salads, come from the kitchen garden. They are picked at just the right time and are always, of course, perfectly fresh."

Lemp's Sunday night suppers are famous. There are dozens of different kinds of hors d'oeuvres, three or four kinds of salads.

Equally famous are Lemp's "kitchen dinners." These are always for three or four intimate friends. He goes into the kitchen, puts on a white apron and a white cap and proceeds to prepare the dinner himself, the servants having been given a holiday. The meal is served in the kitchen. But here, too, there is a perfection of appointments, the kitchen linens, silver and china harmonizing. Lemp's specialties are scrambled eggs, steaks and a special kind of baked potato. It is in these simplest of dishes that he feels the art of cookery most nearly reaches perfection. They are prepared with as much care as the most elaborate dessert and everything that goes into their preparation is of the finest quality. Often, of course, at more formal dinners there are elaborate dishes, veal or venison marinated in sherry for weeks and prepared by a process that requires days of effort.

The kitchen is a shining laboratory for the preparation of these dinners. There are rows of burnished copper molds, nested stacks of heavy porcelain cooking utensils and special brushes and garnishing tools. All the cooking is done in this heavy porcelain, in the belief that aluminum and other metal wares are liable to discolor food or rob it to some degree of its natural flavor. Very little frying goes on in this kitchen. Stewing, broiling and baking are favored.

In the basement is the storeroom. Here are supplies for months in advance. Rows of imported caviars, foie gras, anchovies, pickled mushrooms, brandied peaches, canned goods of every kind. Condiments, such as mustard and pepper, are ground from the seed by the cook. Certain kinds of sauces are procured from a small firm in New York. A special kind of pickle is bought in Milwaukee.

LEMP has a friend who is also a connoisseur of good food. They often give dinners to each other. A certain good-natured, jesting rivalry exists.

The friend will say, during the course of dinner, "Oh, what do you put into this sauce? I must go right out and congratulate your cook." Or again, "Eddie, won't you tell me where you get your anchovy paste? I've never been able to find any like this."

And when Lemp dines at the house of his friend the process is reversed. He returns the amenities. Each strives to have some new or specially prepared dish for these occasions.

Lemp entertains many of the great and near-great who come to St. Louis. The fame of his dinners has spread beyond the confines of the city. Recently he gave a dinner party for Frieda Innescort and the other principals of the Theater Guild Company who appeared here. Henri Deering, the pianist, is a frequent guest.

One of the most memorable evenings that he recalls was on the occasion of a dinner to Michel Guiskoff, who was then concert master of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. It was a night of perfect moonlight and after dinner Guiskoff took his violin and played beside the pool in the garden, to the distant accompaniment of the piano in the living room.

LEMP'S household is run with precision and smoothness. At 6 o'clock, unless guests are expected, the outer gates of the estate are locked. When they have finished their work at night the four house servants go over to their own quarters, nearly a half-mile distant, through a heavy wood and over a field-stone bridge. Then Lemp is alone with his books. His guardians are three police dogs. Often he reads the whole night through.

His days follow no routine. Often in the morning after breakfast he goes for a long walk. Returning, he reads or plays the piano. Usually three or four days out of the week he drives into the city. He has an office on Seventh, not far from Olive street. And while this serves as a place to transact his personal affairs, it is chiefly a rallying ground for his friends. Like his home, it is perfectly appointed.

In the summer he spends a great deal of time in the swimming pool. It is fitted into the most formal spot in the garden, flanked on either side by lily ponds and edged with spruce, low cedars and tall silver papyrus grasses. There are glimpses of beds of enormous bright dahlias and multi-colored zinnia beds. Customarily after a swim Lemp basks in the sun on the terrace. Throughout the summer he is burned almost to a mahogany color. He gives the appearance of being perhaps 35 years old.

Sitting in a deep chair in the glass-enclosed portion of the terrace, he talks, looking out over the valley. "No, it was simply that I saw no need to make more money. It seems to me that this is the curse of America. Everyone is always making more money. I was confident that I could organize my life in the way I wanted to. Of course, I was very fortunate in having an income."

He does not like cities, that is, the average American city. Nor does he care for New York. He cherishes the memory of two or three cities in Europe, but he is afraid they have changed. He has been told that they have changed. Probably in January or February he will go abroad to find out. He belongs to no clubs, he rarely goes out to dine, except to the homes of his friends. There is only one restaurant he patronizes when he does go out. That is a small roadhouse—without music and with only two waiters—off the Olive street road. He occasionally takes parties there and if he calls up the proprietor in advance he can obtain such a special dish as breast of Muscovy duck. Prohibition, the movies and the radio distress him.

It should be understood, however, that there is no truculence about his dislikes. He is not angry with the world for having tastes which he does not share. He smiles when he speaks of his dislikes.

This process of creation is still going forward. There are plans for the future of Cragwold, plans now being carried out. He is converting bluegrass lawn immediately surrounding the house into a deer paddock, stocking it with many different kinds of deer. Fences will be concealed by trees and shrubs. The deer will apparently be free, they will be seen from the drive as though they were at large. He has thought for a long time as to how this effect can best be achieved.

SALVAGING WRECKED MINDS with MUSIC

How Willem van de Wall, Who Started Life as a Harpist, Made Musical Therapy an Agency for Straightening out the Lives of the Criminal and the Insane.

Tableau in a play given at the Norristown, Pa., State Hospital for mental patients.

PHILADELPHIA.

STRIDING down Philadelphia's proud Broad street, one hand thrust deep into a trousers pocket, the other clutching a brief case, his overcoat flapping in the wind, goes Willem van de Wall, Dutch harpist turned philosopher. Of a sudden the large, capable hand shoots out of the pocket and makes a violent gesture, for he is discussing his work, the improvement, the rehabilitation of the mentally sick and the criminal by way of music. And he brings to his subject all the energy his fathers displayed in pushing back the rolling tides of the Holland lowlands.

Music? You say it soothes the savage breast? Well, maybe so. But what is the therapy of music? In what manner does it humor the antisocial? How does it get that way? Who first used it as an antidote for madness, a corrective for the undisciplined?

As far as I'm able to determine—and Dr. van de Wall could not correct me—this Dutch harpist holds the palm for working out the systematic therapy of music. He is not a doctor of medicine, his doctor's degree is an honorary one, presented to him in music by Muhlenberg College in Pennsylvania. He never studied philosophy in the classroom nor social science nor psychology. He is a self-taught philosopher, who, having reached the highest place to which, in his opinion, a harpist could aspire, turned to the subject that had always held him most: not how music is made—but why it is made.

Van de Wall was born in Amsterdam and spent his boyhood in The Hague. Attracted by music, he found the piano and the harp especially to his liking, and of the two the harp seemed to have the call. He studied it in Holland, he studied it in Leipsic, Germany.

A capable performer, he had no difficulty in securing work; he played with symphony orchestras, with orchestras for operetta and grand opera. He journeyed to Russia, for there was something of the wanderlust in his makeup, only to return to Holland and Germany.

IN 1910 he came to America and found his place in the Metropolitan Opera Company. For six years he stayed there, playing his instrument under the guidance of Toscanini. He had, he believed, reached the harpist's high place. The year 1917 saw him a member of the old New York Symphony, conducted by the famous Damrosch.

When the war came he journeyed to Washington. He put on the Marines' uniform; he became a trombonist in the Marine Band.

"I knew nothing of the trombone at the time," he told me, "but the band's leader had always wanted a harpist. Still, he could not take me in that capacity, so he told me to learn the trombone. So I picked it up."

It was in this capacity that he found his first opportunity in the field of mental health.

It seems that in Washington in those days was an amateur grand opera company, its personnel made up, for the most part, of young men and women holding clerkships and similar jobs with the Government. These people heard of the presence of the Metropolitan Van de Wall and they were not going to pass up the opportunity of such professional aid.

Their director came to Van de Wall and asked for help. He was refused. For Van de Wall, with the professional's lack of patience with things amateurish, was too busy poring over his philosophies and his texts on psychology to meddle with what he considered the ultimate in hopeless amateur expression.

But the opera's director was a tenacious fellow, it would seem, one not easily let down. He approached the Dutchman by another route. If this Van de Wall was interested in social service, why not aim for his weakness? He'd have the social workers go after him. And he did.

AT LAST, in desperation, the harpist decided he'd put the amateurs through one rehearsal. He'd put them through it in the professional manner. He'd work them till they'd never want to see or hear of Willem van de Wall again.

He did as he had planned. For hours he drilled them, over and over again. This was not right, that was terrible. Why, they were singing words, they did not feel what they sang. At the end of the evening a weary-throated, half-bedraggled group stood before him. But there was a light in their eyes. And as they made for exits on their tired, dragging feet, they insisted that he come again. It was, they said, the first decent choral rehearsal they'd ever had.

"My Lord!" said Willem van de Wall to himself, "what a selfish creature I am! These people do not work and try and suffer so they may stand upon an opera stage and desecrate the work of masters. No, they do it because they are trying to find something in life that life has denied them, they are trying to banish their disappointments and fulfill their desires in the character of a Carmen or a Don Jose, a Faust, a Santuzza, a Brunhilde."

He stayed with them. He did not only teach them notes and the values of notes. He discussed the psychology of the operas' characters. Why did Carmen prefer death to yielding to a man she didn't love, why was an Aida willing to go to an unnecessary tomb? Well, then, if you know why, he told his amateurs, sing it from the inside. Don't smile because I tell you to, or weep because the text asks for tears.

Then came the surprise, that which led Van de Wall toward the chink in life that let him see the light. If he could analyze the needs of these make-believe people so well, thought his pupils, why couldn't he help the members of his cast with their individual spiritual problems?

Soon he was being stopped, as he was about to leave a rehearsal for the night, by some girl of 20 or some boy of 25, some individual pestered by difficulty at home or at his work or in his soul's inside. He led them to examine their problems minutely; he helped many of them find the way out.

He thought he saw a new object in his life; the possibility of opening up the tight places of the heart by way of music, the probability of a volunteer confessional that would bare the soul's sore places and leave them ready for treatment.

He would go to Europe and there, over his books, see what he could see.

He did just that. Then, in 1921 he returned to New York. He met the late Dr. Orlando Lewis, general secretary of the American Prison Association, and explained his theory; the therapy of music. He found a sympathetic audience in this man, who in turn introduced him to another official, then in charge of certain psychiatric work in New York State.

"Your theories seem sound," this official told him. "But I want to be shown. In this State there happens to be a particularly unprogressive institution for the insane. They will give you admittance, because you will have introductions which they cannot ignore. But they won't help you; they'll not be sympathetic with your work; they'll look askance at it. If you can do any good there, you'll have accomplished something."

Willem van de Wall.

IT WAS heart-breaking work. No co-operation, no enthusiasm. They looked upon him as just another faddist. Why the devil, if he was so good at the harp as people said he was, why didn't he get out and go back to the Metropolitan?

But this Van de Wall was a sturdy child of a sturdy race. True, at times as he sat at the railroad station waiting for the train that would take him away for a few days, he counted his overcoat buttons, eenie, meenie, minie, mo, trying to decide whether or not he'd ever go back to that inhospitable asylum.

Still, he persisted. After all, he didn't care what the hide-bound officials thought. He was interested in the poor sufferers within the madhouse walls.

He'd walk into a ward, casually, apparently disinterested. If a patient was about, he'd nod or not, according to the patient's attitude. Then he'd sit in front of a piano that had conveniently been placed there sometime before, and start running his fingers over the keys.

An inmate or two would approach him in the half-hesitant fashion of the mad. Who was he?

"Oh," he'd say, "I'm a song man." For if he'd have told them that he was a member of the State Bureau for Mental Health and Psychiatric Research, etc., etc., etc., they'd immediately have classed him as one of the gang, one of those powerful officials they considered their enemies.

But a song man! Well, he couldn't be much. He wasn't much better than they were. Curious, too. Let's find out about him.

And Van de Wall would talk to them and play, from his immense repertoire, whatever they asked him to play. Such haunted creatures as those inmates who insisted on sitting in a corner, alone, aloof, refusing to speak to anyone, including their fellow inmates, refusing even to listen to others, would slowly gather at the piano with their brethren. And, as like as not, they'd join in the singing that would have started. Again they had found a place among men, they were no longer outcasts from the world.

Now do not misinterpret me. I do not mean to say that Van de Wall can do this with any patient so afflicted. He is no sorcerer, no magician—he is only a highly capable, serious, enterprising worker. But many is the individual that has reacted as I have just explained, and many of them through this medium of music discovered the bridge that led them back to freedom and placed them in the column of human social assets.

Van de Wall was getting some place, he believed, with his music therapy at this inhospitable institution. And he was assured of it one day when an attendant, a guard, one of those watchers of the mentally sick, came up to him and said: "Mr. van de Wall, I know it's pretty tough for you here. But stick it out. You don't know how much better the spirit and discipline is around this place since you started this piano playing and singing business."

How had he found this success? Although the process of rehabilitation cannot be reduced to a formula, it seems that Dr. van de Wall's experiments have led to the following conclusions in most cases: It were not wise to force music upon a mental patient. Let him hear it, then let him approach the source of it of his own volition. A program should not be forced upon him—the thing to do is to ask what pieces the patient would prefer to hear. Offer the patient the opportunity of singing—it usually is not long before the opportunity is taken.

As the work advances, the chance often comes for the patient to perform upon some instrument. By singing or playing or performing the patient comes to express himself. Through this self-expression the effect toward rehabilitation is often on the way. For the patient may have reached the point where he tells of the thoughts that harass him and so come to eliminate them. Or self-expression may purge him of his ills. There are cases when the patient is relieved only for the duration of his self-expressive performance; there are those happier results—those that bring about a continued better state, those that carry the patient to release from institutional care.

SOME five years ago Dr. van de Wall was loaned by the Committee for the Study of Music in Institutions, New York, to the Bureau of Mental Health of the Pennsylvania State Welfare Department to develop a re-educational institutional music program. It was the first assignment of the kind in America or anywhere else.

Since the days of his New York State experiment, Dr. van de Wall has put much of his theory into book form. These texts have been translated into French, Dutch and German. The University of Mysore, British India, uses them in its study of mental ailments. Calls for Van de Wall to lecture have been received from as far away as Oslo, Norway, and next August he has been asked to speak before the international congress of criminologists meeting at Prague in Czecho-Slovakia.

Besides his work for the State of Pennsylvania, he is a lecturer at Teachers College, Columbia University, New York, on musical therapy, and at the present he devotes some time each week to lecturing in Philadelphia, under the supervision of the city's music department, to heads of schools and institutions, telling them the way to develop a municipal music welfare program.

His work is rich in examples. There is what we may call the practical side where convicts, who never had musical instruction, have become interested enough in his work to obtain an instrument, learn to play it, and so find a job in life when the heavy gates closed behind them for the last time. He told me of a convict, a bank-

The Evil Genius Who Engineered AMERICA'S WORST PRISON MUTINY

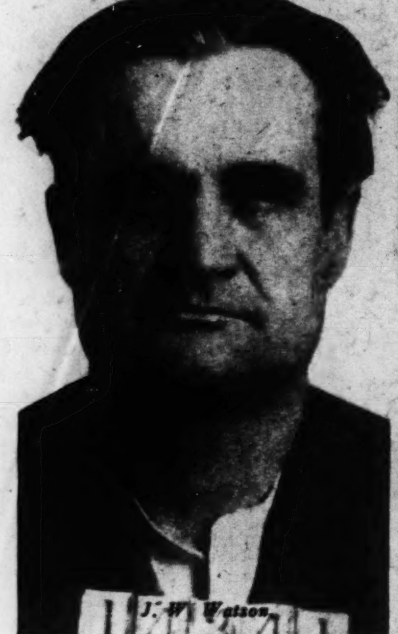
The Intimate History of Danny Daniels, a Frustrated Exhibitionist, as Revealed by a Former Jailmate.

By THOMAS DAWSON

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Danny Daniels.

A STUDY in convict pique was Danny Daniels, the lean, sickly safecracker who killed nine men and himself in Colorado's bloody State prison break of October 2 and 3 last, in Canon City. Daniels reached the penitentiary mainly because his aids in a safe robbery deserted him at a crucial moment. He brooded on that. He expected the convicts at Canon City to accept him as an extremely tough hombre, the real Number One Red Hot of the prison. Instead, they thought he was a second-rater. Daniels was a confirmed exhibitionist, a man who throve with an audience at hand. The guards at Canon City gave him a steady diet of solitary confinement.



Thirty-nine years old, serving his second prison term as a robber, Daniels was the captain, the Judge and the executioner in the sanguinary rioting in which 13 met death. He was at once the source of the insurrection and its power plant. Daniels' pique at his guards, his fellow convicts and the world at large is now revealed as the probable psychic factor back of his monstrously cold-blooded murders of prison guards, whom he shot down with a smile.

One J. W. Watson, former convict No. 14,341 at Canon City, a convicted embezzler and professional gambler, who knew Daniels intimately for more than 25 years, has come forward to tell of Daniels' childish vanities, of his frustrations, of peculiar quirks in his criminal temperament, according to Watson's story—a story which has been substantiated by all the available facts. Daniels was known to his friends of the underworld as a competent technician in blowing or ripping a safe, on the one hand, and as a comedian and entertainer on the other.

Daniels liked nothing better than an audience, even of jailers, for which he might sing, tell dialect stories, cut capers. If his usual gags fell flat, Daniels was not above pulling his false teeth from his mouth and making grotesque faces to amuse. At Canon City, however, his comedian complex went under a cloud. Watson pictured Daniels, a felon with more than 20 years of crime behind him, gnawing crusts in the disciplinary dungeon at Colorado Penitentiary and singing the convict ditty:

"The sweetest music to my ears
Is the groan of a dying copper."

In the same dungeon, Daniels, racked by tuberculosis, naively dreamed of the perfect bank robbery, with loot of at least $100,000, through which he might flee to Europe to establish there a Graustarkian kingdom innocent of detectives and in which Danny Daniels would wear the crown.

"He was serious about that kingdom," said former convict No. 14,341. "He talked about it all the time. 'You wait and see. I'll get away with a bank job like that some day and I'll go over to Europe and buy me a throne.' That's the way he'd talk. He meant it. Danny had an awful big head about the jobs he'd been on. He thought he was right up there in a class with Gerald Chapman and Dutch Anderson."

DANIELS' memories of jobs might have stretched back 27 years at his death. His criminal career began at the age of 12, with thefts of harness, according to Watson. Daniels, in the 25 years Watson knew him, never betrayed remorse, never contemplated, save with contempt, a life of honest toil.

A brief sketch of Daniels' life of crime, based on Watson's memory where the official record is blank, is as follows:

Twelve years old. Lived on run-down farm near Dewey, Ok., with widowed mother. Never knew father. Stole harness, bags of grain, chickens, hung around poolrooms.

Fourteen years old. Mastered use of crooked dice and marked cards. Still stealing harness. Occasional money thefts. Got a six-shooter and practiced with it when he could buy or steal cartridges.

Sixteen years old. Preliminary prize fighter around Oklahoma City and Bartlesville. Fights probably crooked. Made friends in underworld. First burglaries.

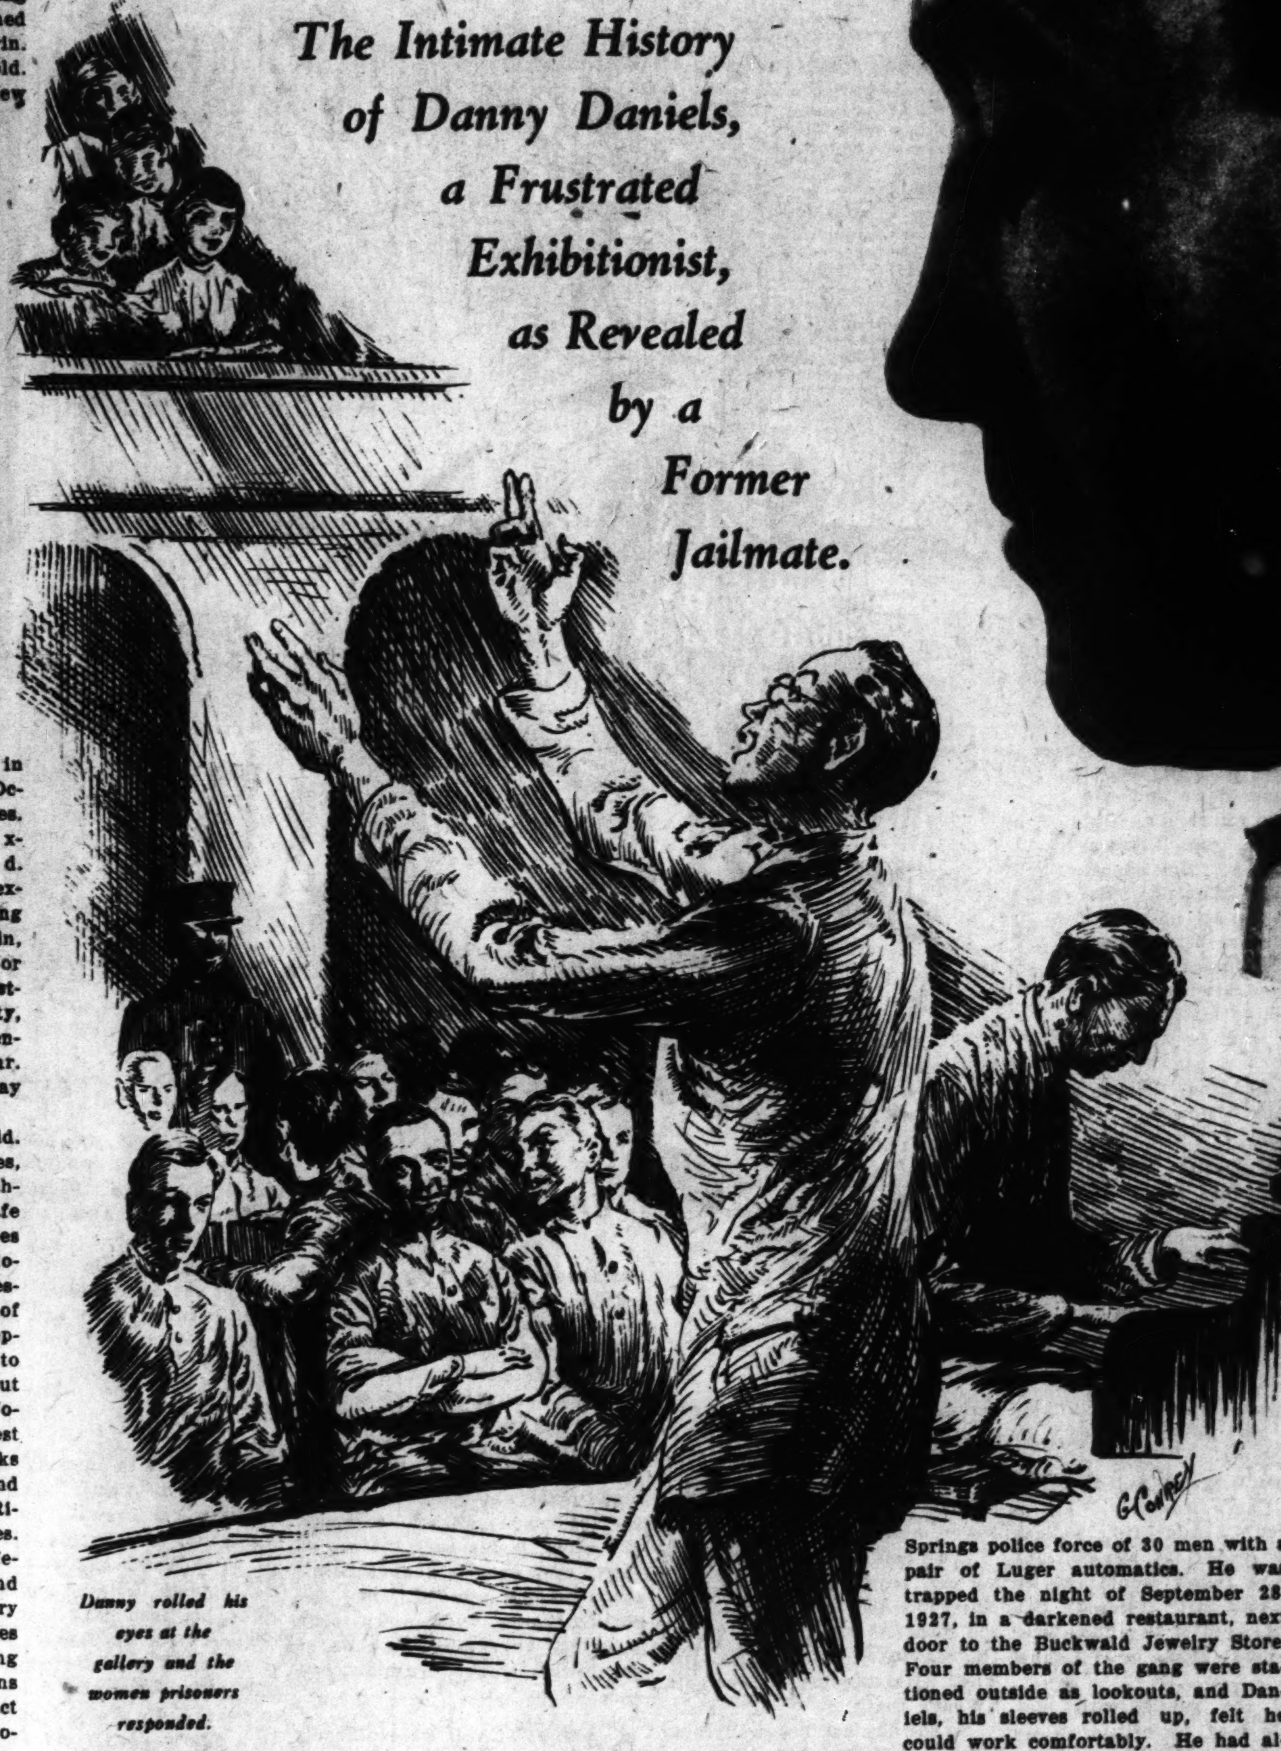
Seventeen years old. Come-on man, or "shill," for a gambling house somewhere in Texas. Hung around oil fields and learned about drilling and nitroglycerin.

Eighteen-twenty-two years old. Left Southwest and went to New York State, where he learned bookkeeping. Worked as inside man with gang of safe and payroll robbers. Crimes in Buffalo, Syracuse, Binghamton, Owego, Elmira. Never caught. One of gang arrested near Owego, but when Daniels and confederate posed as deputy sheriffs, rescued. Loot from $500 to $5000.

Twenty-two-twenty-six years old. Returned to Oklahoma. Bought cattle ranch with money from Eastern journey. Traffic in stolen cattle. Occasional robberies.

Twenty-six-thirty years old. Daniels now an expert at opening safes. Uses either nitroglycerin, the "can-opener," or ripper, or the acetylene blowtorch. Arrested for burglary in Oklahoma City, convicted, sent to State penitentiary at McAlester for a year. There met Matt Kimes and Ray Terrill, Oklahoma bad men.

Thirty-thirty-seven years old. Works in conjunction with Kimes, Terrill. Headquarters near Picher and Miami, Oklahoma. Safe and bank robberies, with escapes in Oklahoma, Wyoming, Colorado. Daniels caught at Bartlesville, Oklahoma; convicted of robbing wholesale grocery September 30, 1926. Sentenced to seven years in penitentiary. Out on appeal bond. Police in Nowata, Oklahoma, attempt to arrest Daniels in stolen car few weeks later. Shoots his way out and escapes. Aids in robbery of Rialto Theater, Denver; escapes. Aids in holdup of Denver cafeteria; escapes. With Terrill and Kimes holds up Pfeiffer jewelry store at Parsons, Kansas; escapes with $15,000 in jewels. Wearing a diamond scarf pin from Parsons robbery when interrupted in act of burning hole in safe in Colorado Springs jewelry store. Caught after gun fight; convicted. Wounds keeper with razor blade in holdover. Goes to Canon City for 28 years.



Danny rolled his eyes at the gallery and the women prisoners responded.

DANIELS, perhaps one of the sorriest-looking specimens ever beheld in convict attire, had the not unusual criminal attribute of foppery. His first move, when a successful job had been turned and he reached another city, was the purchase of an extensive wardrobe. Silk shirts, patent-leather shoes, a big, prosperous-looking overcoat. On occasion a boiled shirt, Tuxedo, a fancy dinner vest. The gang frequently went to Joplin, Missouri, to Tulsa, Oklahoma, or to Denver to spend the loot. Daniels on these occasions was the life of the party. There would be women, liquor, music, food, in night clubs. Late in the evening, Danny, deep in his cups, would send a $20 or a $50 bill to the orchestra leader, asking him to play "Forgive Me." Then Daniels, his ratty hair slicked back, his bullet scars hidden under his boiled shirt, sang in his whisky tenor:

"Forgive me, please forgive me,
I didn't mean to make you cry.
For I want you, I need you,
And you must never say good-by."

Thereafter he would plunge into his full repertoire of dialect stories, and as dawn drew near and his appreciative audience became jaded, would invoke his comic tour de force—the removal of his false teeth and a succession of imbecilic faces.

"Danny sure could be the comic when in the right humor," said former convict Watson. "He could keep you laughing by the hour. I never seen a better entertainer off the stage, and he had a swell whisky tenor. But when he pulled out his false teeth and started making faces, I want to tell you it was a scream."

Daniels liked gambling. The competitive cheating of his friends and himself lent flavor to the game. He liked to have women around him. But the real joy of life for him lay in these night-club parties at which he was the laugh-winning play-boy.

When Daniels was awaiting trial in the jail at Colorado Springs in the autumn of 1927 for a robbery, he nightly entertained jailers and cellmates. The cell corridors rang with song and merriment, as turnkeys guffawed, until long after midnight. Daniels developed an animus, however, toward one of the jailers, who, he believed, had stolen a small sum of money from him. When the unsuspecting jailer passed his cell, Daniels reached out, clutched the man by the arm, drew him close against the bars, and, with a razor blade fastened to a stick by wire, slashed the man's throat. Only the interference of other attendants prevented the man's murder.

This little skit came a few weeks after Daniels had attempted to fight the entire Colorado Springs police force of 30 men with a pair of Luger automatics. He was trapped the night of September 28, 1927, in a darkened restaurant, next door to the Buckwald Jewelry Store. Four members of the gang were stationed outside as lookouts, and Daniels, his sleeves rolled up, felt he could work comfortably. He had already dug a hole in the plaster and was cutting at the safe with an acetylene blowtorch.

Scene in the exercise yard of Colorado State Prison, after the mutiny was over.

THE lookout on the roof was impulsive and he had had a few drinks. He spotted a policeman at least 50 yards away and opened fire with a shotgun. This gave the alarm. The lookouts fled and Daniels had to fight it out. Two policemen, entering through a rear door, called on him to surrender and he shouted, with characteristic bombast: "Come on, you yellow flatfoots; try an' get me." The fight lasted about an hour and several machine guns were brought into play. When the police threw in tear-gas bombs Daniels pitched out his Lugers and surrendered. He had wounded two policemen.

Daniels' conviction and sentence to Canon City did not chasten him. He was furious because his pals had deserted him at a crucial moment. Angry at Scott, the impulsive lookout, he gave police information which resulted in that youth's arrest. The others got away clean. Daniels expected to be received at Canon City as a criminal hero, but he wasn't. The fact that he had "squawked" on Scott reached the prison ahead of him.

The convicts at Canon City did not kowtow to him as a very topnotcher among the criminal aristocracy. On the contrary, a few patronized him. A mere stripling of a boy drove him out of the prison kitchen with a bread knife. The word went around that Daniels wasn't really tough. Daniels, astonished, protested that he was tough, that he was really a bad man.

In every prison there is one convict known as "king o' the cons." He is usually a desperate man who, recognizing the disciplinary power of turnkeys, studiously affects good behavior to shorten his term. At the same time, through an informal agreement among most of the convicts, he is convict spokesman for any grievance or request they wish to make to the Warden. The "king o' the cons" never fails to get an official hearing. If the Warden refused to grant him an audience it would mean mutiny.

Danny Daniels, who believed he was the foremost bad man, the outstanding criminal in Canon City prison, wanted to be "king o' the cons." He felt his record entitled him to the honor. But his fellow convicts looked on him as merely an ordinary thief. This was an agonizing thorn for Daniels. It soured the comic juices. Prison officials, resentful of his demeanor, made him tow the line. Two guards repeatedly "rode" him. He spent days in the dungeon on bread and water.

At a Christmas entertainment in 1928, they let Daniels render a few songs. He sang:

"O what a day was yesterday
For yesterday gave me you."...

And his favorite:

"Forgive me, please forgive me,
I didn't mean to make you cry."

In the gallery of the prison chapel were 60 or more women prisoners. Danny rolled his eyes at the gallery, grinned, winked as he sang, while the 1200 or more felons in the place showed their delight. Some of the women played up, smiled above their shoddy dresses, winked back. The convicts thought it a great success. Danny, perhaps for the only time since he entered Colorado prison, really enjoyed himself.

BUT the order went out that Danny was never again to appear in a convict entertainment. He couldn't be trusted, the order said. He wasn't even to be allowed in the convict choir. To deprive Danny, the tenor, of an audience—that was a blow. He became more sullen. He had misunderstandings with other convicts. He kept going to the dungeon. But meanwhile he had at least three revolvers hidden in the penitentiary and he had found a confederate—Jimmy Holub, or Pardue, alias "The Runt"—and

BLUE MURDER

By

Wilbur Daniel Steele

AT MILL CROSSING it was already past sunset. The rays still laid fire along the woods crowning the stony slopes of Jim Bluedge's pasture; but then the line of the dusk began and from that level it filled the valley, washing with transparent blue the buildings scattered about the bridge, Jim's house and horse sheds and hay barns, Frank's store, and Camden's blacksmith shop.

Of the three brothers, Cam was the dumb one. He seldom had anything to say. It was providential (folks said) that of the three enterprises at the Crossing one was the smithy; for while he was a strong, big, hungry-muscled fellow, he never would have had the shrewdness to run the store or the farm. He was better at pounding—pounding while the fire reddened and the sparks flew, and thinking and letting other people wonder what he was thinking of.

Blossom Bluedge, his brother's wife, sat perched on the top bar of the paddock gate, holding her skirts around her ankles with a trifle too much care to be quite unconscious, and watched him work.

"You'd have thought Jim would be home before this, wouldn't you, Cam?"

Her brother-in-law said nothing. He was too dumb for any use. He was as dumb as this: When all three of the Bluedge boys were after her a year ago, Frank, the storekeeper, had brought her candy; chocolates wrapped in silver foil in a two-pound Boston box. Jim had laid before her the Bluedge farm and with it the dominance of the valley. And Camden! To the daughter of Ed Beck, the apple grower, Camden had brought a box of apples!—and been bewildered, too, when, for all she could help it, she had to clap a hand over her mouth and run into the house to have her giggle.

"Camden," she reverted suddenly. "Tell me, one thing, did you hear"——

She stopped there. Some people were coming into the kitchen yard, dark forms in the growing darkness. Most of them lingered at the porch, sitting on the steps and lighting their pipes. The one that came out was Frank, the second of her brothers-in-law. She was glad. Frank wasn't like Camden, he would talk. Turning and taking care of her skirts, she gave him a bright and sisterly smile.

"Well, Frankie, what's the crowd?"

FAR from avoiding the smile, as Camden's habit was, the storekeeper returned it with a brotherly wink for good measure. "Oh, they're tired of waiting down the road, so they came up here to see the grand arrival." He was something of a man of the world; in his calling he had acquired a fine turn of skepticism. "Don't want to miss being on hand to see what flaws they can pick in 'Jim's $500 worth of experiment.' "

"Frank, ain't you the least bit worried over Jim? So late?"

"Don't see why. Had all the men from Perry's stables there in Twinshead to help him get the animal off the freight, and he took an extra rope and the log chain and the heavy wagon, so I guess no matter how wild and woolly the devil is he'll scarcely be climbing in over the tailboard. Besides, them Western horses ain't such a big breed, even a stallion."

"All the same—(look the other way, Frankie)"—— Flipping her ankles over the rail, Blossom jumped down beside him. "Listen, Frank, tell me something, did you hear—did you hear the reason Jim's getting him cheap was because he killed a man out West there, in Wyoming?"

Frank was taking off his sleeve protectors, the pins in his mouth. It was Camden, at the bars, speaking in his sudden, deep, rough way: "Who the hell told you that?"

Frank got the pins out of his mouth. "I guess what it is, Blossie, what's mixed you up is his having that name 'Blue Murder.' "

Jim had arrived. With a clatter of hoofs and a rattle of wheels he was in the yard and came to a standstill, calling aloud as he threw the lines over the team, "Well, friends, here we are."

The curious began to edge around, closing a cautious circle. The dusk had deepened so that it was hard to make anything at any distance of Jim's "experiment" but a blurry silhouette anchored at the wagon's tail.

"Oh, Jim, I'm so glad you come. I been so worried; gi' me a kiss!"

The farmer reddened, eyeing the cloud of witnesses. He felt awkward and wished she could have waited. "Get along, didn't I tell you fellows?" he cried, with a trace of the Bluedge temper. "Go wait in the kitchen, then; I'll tell you all about everything soon's I come in. . . . Well, now—wife"——

Camden wasn't looking at them. Still standing with his hammer two-fisted and his legs spread, his thoughts to himself (the dumbhead), he was looking at Blue Murder, staring at the other dumbhead, which, raised high on the motionless column of the stallion's neck, seemed hearkening with an exile's doubt to the sounds of this new universe, tasting with wide nostrils the taint in the wind of equine strangers and studying with eyes accustomed to far horizons these dark pastures that went up in the air.

Whatever the smith's cogitations, presently he let the hammer down and said aloud: "So you're him, eh?"

Jim had put Blossom aside, saying: "Got supper ready? I'm hungry!" Excited by the act of kissing and the sense of witnesses to it, she fussed her hair and started kitchenward as he turned to his brothers.

"Well, what do you make of him?"

"Five hundred dollars," said Frank. "However, it's your money."

Camden was shorter. "Better put him in."

"All right; let them bars down while I and Frank lead him around."

"No, thanks!" The storekeeper kept his hands in his pockets. "I just cleaned up, thanks. Cam's the boy for horses."

"He's none of my horses." Camden wet his lips and scowled. "Be damned, no!"

"Unless," Frank put in slyly, "unless Cam's scared."

"Scared?" And still, to the brothers' enduring wonder, the big, dense fellow would rise to that boyhood bait. "Scared? The hell I'm scared of any horse ever wore a shoe? Come on, I'll show you!"

"Well, be gentle with him, boys; he may be brittle." As Frank sauntered off around the shed he whistled the latest tune.

In the warmth and light of the kitchen he began to fool with his pretty sister-in-law, feigning princely impatience and growling with a wink at the assembled neghbors, "When do we eat?"

But she protested: "Land, I had everything ready since 5, ain't I? And now, if it ain't you it's them to wait for."

At last one of the gossips got in a word.

"What you make of Jim's purchase, Frank?"

"Well, it's Jim's money, Darred. If I had the running of this farm"—— Frank began drawing up chairs noisily, leaving it at that.

Darred persisted. "Don't look to me much like an animal for women and children to handle, not yet awhile."

Blossom put the kettle back, protesting: "Leave off, or you'll get me worried to death; all your talk. . . . I declare, where are those bad boys?" Opening the door she called into the dark: "Jim! Cam!"

SUBDUED by distance and the intervening sheds, she could hear them at their business—sounds muffled and fragmentary, soft thunder of hoofs, snorts, puffings and short words of men in action: "Aw, leave him be in the paddock tonight." "With them mares there, you damn fool?" . . . "Damn fool, eh? Try getting him in at that door and see who's the damn fool!" . . . "Come on, don't be so damn scared." . . . "Scared, eh?"

Why was it she always felt that curious tightening of her powers of attention when Camden spoke? Probably because he spoke so rarely, and then so roughly, as if his own thickness made him mad. Never mind.

"Last call for supper in the dining car, boys!" she called, and closed the door. Turning back to the stove she was about to replace the tea water for the third time when, straightening up, she said: "What's that?"

No one else had heard anything. They looked at one another.

"Frank, go—go see what—go tell the boys to come in."

Frank hesitated, feeling foolish, then went to the door.

Then everyone in the room was out of his chair.

There were three sounds. The first was human and incoherent. The second was incoherent, too, but it wasn't human. The third was a crash, a ripping and splintering of wood.

WHEN they got to the paddock they found Camden crawling from beneath the wreckage of the fence where a gap was opened on the pasture side. He must have received a blow on the head, for he seemed dazed. He didn't seem to know they were there. At a precarious balance—one hand at the back of his neck—he stood facing up the hill, gaping after the diminuendo of floundering hoofs, invisible above.

So seconds passed. Again the beast gave tongue, a high, wild, horning note, and on the black of the stony hill to the right of it a faint shower of sparks blew like fireflies where the herding mares wheeled. It seemed to awaken the dazed smith. He opened his mouth. "Almighty God!" Swinging, he flung his arms toward the shed. "There! There!"

At last someone brought a lantern. They found Jim Bluedge lying on his back in the corner of the paddock near the door to the shed. In the lantern light, and still better in the kitchen when they had carried him in, they read the record of the thing which Camden, dumb in good earnest now, seemed unable to tell them with anything but his strange, unfocussed stare.

The bloody offense to the skull would have been enough to kill the man, but it was the second, full on the chest above the heart, that told the tale. On the caved grating of ribs, already turning blue under the yellowish down, the iron shoe had left its mark, and when, laying back the rag of shirt, they saw that the toe of the shoe was upward and the cutting caulk ends down they knew all they wanted to know of that swift, black, crushing episode.

NO OUTLASH here of heels in fright. Here was a forefoot. An attack aimed and frontal; an onslaught reared, erect; beast turned biped; red eyes mad to white eyes aghast. . . . And only afterward, when it was done, the blood-fright that serves the horses for conscience; the blind rush across the inclosure; the fence gone down. . . .

No one had much to say. No one seemed to know what to do.

As for Camden, he was no help. He simply stood propped on top of his logs of legs where someone had left him.

It was lucky that Frank was a man of affairs. His brother was dead, and frightfully dead, but there was tomorrow for grief. Just now there were many things to do. There were people to be gotten rid of. With short words and angry gestures he cleared them out, all but Darred and a man named White, and to these he said: "Now, first thing, Jim can't stay here." He ran and got a blanket from a closet. "Give me a hand and we'll lay him in the icehouse overnight. Don't sound good, but it's best, poor fellow. Cam, come along!"

He waited a moment, and as he studied the wooden fool the blood poured back into his face. "Wake up, Cam! You great big scared stiff, you!"

Camden brought his eyes out of nothingness and looked at his brother. A twinge passed over his face, convulsing the mouth muscles. "Scared?"

"Yes, you're scared!" Frank's lip lifted, showing the tips of his teeth. "And I'll warrant you something: if you wasn't the scared stiff you was, this hellish damn thing wouldn't have happened, maybe. Scared! You, a blacksmith, scared of a horse!"

"Horse!" Again that convulsion of the mouth muscles, something between irony and an idiot craft. "Why don't you go catch 'im?"

"Hush it! Don't waste time by going loony now, for God's sake. Come!"

"My advice to anybody"—Camden looked crazier than ever, knotting his brows—"my advice to anybody is to let somebody else go catch that—that"—— Opening the door he faced out into the night, his head sunk between his shoulders and the fingers working at the ends of his hanging arms; and before they knew it he began to swear. He stopped only when at a sharp word from Frank he was made aware that Blossom had come back into the room. Even then he didn't seem to comprehend her return, but stood blinking at her, and at the rifle she carried, with his distraught, bloodshot eyes.

Frank comprehended. Hysteria had followed the girl's blankness. Stepping between her and the body on the floor, he spoke in a persuasive, unhurried way. "What you doing with that gun, Blossie? Now, now, you don't want that gun, you know you don't."

It worked. Her rigidity lessened appreciably. Confusion gained.

"YES, yes, Blossie—now, yes—only you best give me that gun; that's the girlie." When he had got the weapon he put an arm around her shoulders. "Yes, yes, course we're going to shoot him; what you think? Don't want an animal like that running round. Now, first thing in the morning"——

Hysteria returned. With its strength she resisted his leading.

"No, now! Now! He's gone and killed Jim! Killed my husband! I won't have him left alive another minute! I won't! Now! No, sir. I'm going myself, I am. Frank, I am! Cam!"

At his name, appealed to in that queer, screeching way, the man in the doorway shivered all over, wet his lips, and walked out into the dark.

"There, you see?" Frank was quick to capitalize anything. "Cam's gone to do it. Cam's gone, Blossie! . . . Here, one of you—Darred, take this gun and run and give it to Camden, that's the boy."

"You sure he'll kill him, Frank? You sure?"

"Sure as daylight. Now you come along back to your room like a good girl and get some rest. Come. I'll go with you."

When Frank returned to the kitchen 10 minutes later, Darred was back.

"Well, now, let's get at it and carry out poor Jim, he can't lay here. . . . Where's Cam gone now, damn him!"

"Up the pasture, like you said."

"Like I"—— Frank went an odd color. He walked to the door. Between the light on the sill and the beginnings of the stars where the woods crowned the mountain was all one blackness. One stillness, too. He turned on Darred. "But, look, you never gave him that gun, even."

"He didn't want it."

"The damned fool!"

POOR dead Jim! Poor fool Camden! As the storekeeper went about his business and afterward, when the icehouse door closed on its tragic tenant and White and Darred had gone off home, he roamed the yard, driven here and there, soft-footed, waiting, hearkening—his mind was for a time not his own property but the plaything of thoughts diverse and wayward.

Jim gone. . . . And Camden, at any moment. . . .

His face grew hot. An impulse carried him a dozen steps. "I ought to go up. Ought to take the gun and go up." But there shrewd sanity put on the brakes. "Where's the use? Couldn't find him in this dark. Besides, I oughtn't to leave Blossom here alone."

With that he went around toward the kitchen, thinking to go in. But the sight of the lantern, left burning out near the sheds, sent his ideas off on another course. At any rate, it would give his muscles and nerves something to work on. Taking the lantern and entering the paddock, he fell to patching the gap into the pasture, using broken boards from the wreck. As he worked his eyes chanced to fall on footprints in the dung-mixed earth—Camden's footprints, leading away beyond the little ring of light. And beside them, taking off from the landing-place of that prodigious leap, he discerned the trail of the stallion. After a moment he got down on his knees where the earth was softest, holding the lantern so that its light fell full.

He gave over his fence-building. Returning to the house his gait was no longer that of the roamer; his face, caught by the periodic flare of the swinging lantern, was the face of another man. In its expression there was a kind of fright and a kind of calculating eagerness. He looked at the clock on the kitchen shelf, took it and read it again. He went to the telephone and fumbled at the receiver. He waited till his hands quit shaking, then removed it from the hook.

"Listen, Darred," he said, when he'd got the farmer at last, "get White and whatever others you can and come over first thing it's light. Come a-riding and bring your guns. No, Cam, ain't back."

He heard Blossom calling. Outside her door he passed one hand down over his face, as he might have passed a wash-rag, to wipe off what was there. Then he went in.

"What's the matter with Blossie? Can't sleep?"

He sat down beside the bed.

"Oh, Frankie, Frankie, hold my hand!"

PRETTY Blossom Beck. Here, for a wonder, he sat in her bedroom and held her hand. One brother was dead and the other was on the mountain.

But little by little, as he sat and dreamed so, nightmare crept over his brain. He had to arouse and shake himself. He had to set his thoughts resolutely in other roads. . . . Perhaps there would be even the smithy. The smithy, the store, the farm. Complete. The farm, the farmhouse, room in the farmhouse, the bed in the farmhouse, the wife in the bed. Complete beyond belief. If . . . Worth dodging horror for. If . . .

Far from rounding up their quarry in the early hours after dawn, it took riders, five of them, till almost noon simply to make certain that he wasn't to be found—not in any of the pastures. Then, when they discovered the hole in the fence far up in the woods beyond the crest, where Blue Murder had led the mares in a break for the open country of hills and ravines to the south, they were only at the beginning.

Frank did the trailing. Hopeless of getting anywhere before sundown in that unkempt wilderness of a hundred square miles of scrub, his companions slouched in their saddles and rode more and more mechanically, knee to knee, and it was he who made the casts to recover the lost trail and, dismounting to read the dust, cried back: "He's still with 'em," and with gestures of imperious excitement beckoned them on.

"Which you mean?" Darred asked him once. "Cam or the horse?"

Frank wheeled his beast and spurred back at the speaker. It was extraordinary. "You don't know what you're talking about," he cried, with a causelessness and a disordered vehemence which set them first staring, then speculating. "Come on, you dumbheads; don't talk—ride!"

They were a good six miles to the south of the fence. Already the road back home would have to be followed three parts in the dark.

Darred was the spokesman. "Frank, I'm going to call it a day."

The others reined up with him, but the man ahead rode on. He didn't seem to hear. Darred lifted his voice. "Come on, call it a day, Frank. Tomorrow, maybe. But you see we've run it out and they're not here."

"Wait," said Frank over his shoulder, still riding on into the pocket.

WHITE'S mount—a mare—laid back her ears, shied, and stood trembling. After a moment she whinnied.

It was as if she had whinnied for a dozen. A crashing in the woods, above them to the left, and the avalanche came—downstream, erupting, wheeling, wheeling away with volleying snorts, a dark rout.

Darred, reining his horse, began to shout, "Here they go this way, Frank!" But Frank was yelling, "Up here, boys! This way, quick!"

It was the same note, excited, feverish, disordered, breaking like a child's. When they neared him they saw he was off his horse, rifle in hand, and down on his knees to study the ground where the woods began. By the time they reached his animal the impetuous fellow had started up into the cover, his voice trailing

Even then he didn't seem to comprehend her return but stood blinking at her, and at the rifle she carried.

Come on; spread out and come !"

White spoke this time. "Be darned if I do!" He lifted a protesting hail. "Come back here, Frank! You're crazy! It's getting dark!"

It was Frank's own fault. They told him plainly to come back and he wouldn't listen.

For a while they could hear his crackle in the mounting underbrush. Then that stopped, whether he had gone too far for their ears or whether he had come to a halt to give his own ears a chance. . . . Once, off to his right, a little higher up under the low ceiling of the trees that darkened moment by moment with the rush of night, they heard another movement, another restlessness of leaves and stones. Then that was still, and everything was still.

Darred ran a sleeve over his face and swung down. "God alive, boys!"

It was the silence.

The first they heard was the shot. No voice. Just the one report. Then after five breaths of another silence a crashing of growth, a charge in the darkness under the withered scrub, continuous and diminishing.

They shouted, "Frank!" No answer. They called, "Frank Bluedge!"

Now, since they had to, they did. Keeping contact by word, and guided partly by directional memory (and mostly in the end by luck), after a time they found the storekeeper in a brake of ferns, lying across his gun.

THEY got him down to the open, watching behind them all the while. Only then, by the flares of successive matches, under the noses of the snorting horses, did they look for the damage done.

They remembered the stillness and the gloom; it must have been quite black in there. The attack had come from behind—equine and pantherine at once, and planned and cunning. A deliberate lunge with a forefoot again: the shoe which had crushed the backbone between the shoulder blades was a foreshoe, that much they saw by the match flares in the red wreck.

They took no longer getting home than they had to, but it was longer than they would have wished. With Frank across his own saddle, walking their horses and with one or another ahead to pick the road (it was going to rain, and even the stars were lost), they made no more than a creeping speed.

None of them had much to say on the journey. Finding the break in the boundary fence and feeling through the last of the woods, the lights of their farms began to show in the pool of blackness below, and Darred uttered a part of what had lain in the minds of them all during the return:

"Well, that leaves Cam."

Camden was at home when they got there.

He had come in a little before them, empty-handed. Empty-headed, too. When Blossom, who had waited all day, part of the time with neighbor women who had come in and part of the time alone to the point of going mad—when she saw him coming down the pasture, his feet stumbling and his shoulders dejected, her first feeling was relief. Her first words, however, were: "Did you get him, Cam?" And all he would answer was, "Gi' me something to experiment proved a success. Still, there was room for improvement.

The step from children's parts to a tradition-breaking leading lady took Molly's breath away. Audiences and players knew her background, and she felt self-conscious. Kalich knew this, but he also knew the girl, and to give her a chance to get her ease and acquire polish for her roles he took her abroad. There was no doubt of the ultimate outcome. The girl was intelligent and would learn quickly. Meantime she had mastered Yiddish — a language unknown to her when she first went on the Jewish stage.

THE European tour was a triumphant venture and apparently a happy one for Molly. She played all through Central Europe, wherever there were Jews. Yiddish is an international language, differing only in local dialects. Italy and Palestine were the only countries to which she could not go. Italy, because the Jews there speak Italian; Palestine, because they speak only straight Hebrew. She has a standing invitation to go to the latter country if she will learn the language; otherwise she will not be permitted to play.

Vienna was the high spot of the trip. In that city audiences are

They took no longer getting home than they had to, but it was longer than they would have wished. With Frank across his own saddle, walking their horses and with one or another ahead to pick the road (it was going to rain, and even the stars were lost), they made no more than a creeping speed.

None of them had much to say on the journey. Finding the break in the boundary fence and feeling through the last of the woods, the lights of their farms began to show in the pool of blackness below, and Darred uttered a part of what had lain in the minds of them all during the return:

"Well, that leaves Cam."

Camden was at home when they got there.

He had come in a little before them, empty-handed. Empty-headed, too. When Blossom, who had waited all day, part of the time with neighbor women who had come in and part of the time alone to the point of going mad—when she saw him coming down the pasture, his feet stumbling and his shoulders dejected, her first feeling was relief. Her first words, however, were: "Did you get him, Cam?" And all he would answer was, "Gi' me something to eat, can't you? Gi' me a few hours' sleep, can't you? Then wait!"

Then he relapsed into his stupidity, and not even the arrival of the party bringing his brother's body seemed able to shake him so far clear of it again.

AT first, when they had laid Frank on the floor where on the night before they had laid Jim, he seemed hardly to comprehend.

"What's wrong with Frank?"

"Some more of Jim's 'experiment.' "

"Frank see him? He's scared, Frank is. Look at his face there."

"He's dead, Cam."

"Dead, you say? Frank dead? Dead of fright, is that it?"

Even when, rolling the body over, they showed him what was what, he appeared incapable of comprehension, of amazement, of passion, or of any added grief. Returning to his chair and his plate, he grumbled, "Le' me eat first, can't you? Can't you gi' me a little time to sleep?"

"Well, you wouldn't do much tonight anyway, I guess."

At White's words Blossom opened her mouth for the first time.

"No, nothing tonight, Cam. Cam! Camden! Say! Promise!"

"And then tomorrow, Cam, what we'll do is to get every last man in the valley, and we'll go at this right. We'll lay hands on that devil——"

Camden swallowed his mouthful of cold steak with difficulty. His obsession touched, he showed them the rims of his eyes again.

"You do and I'll wring your necks. The man that touches that animal before I do gets his neck wrang. That's all you need to remember."

"Yes, yes—no—that is——" Poor Blossom. "Yes, Mr. White, thanks; no, Cam's not going out tonight. . . . No, Cam, nobody's going to interfere—nor nothing. Don't you worry there. . . ."

Lightning filled the windows. After a moment the thunder came avalanching down the pasture and brought up against the clapboards of the house. At this she was behind his chair. She put out a hand. She touched his shoulder.

Camden blundered up. "What the hell!" He started off two steps and wheeled on her. "Why don't you get off to bed, for Goll sake!"

"Yes, Cam, yes—right off, yes."

"Well, I'm going, I can tell you. For Goll sake. I need some sleep!"

It took her no time to get along then—quick and quiet as a mouse.

AS it had taken her no time to go, it took Blossom no time to undress and get in bed. When Camden was on his way to his room he heard her calling, "Cam! Just a second, Cam!"

"Yes? What?"

"Cam, set by me a minute, won't you? And Cam, oh, Cam, hold my hand."

As he slouched down, his fist enclosing her fingers, thoughts awakened and ran and fastened on things. They fastened, tentatively at first, upon the farm. Jim gone. Frank gone. The smithy, the store and the farm. The whole of Mill Crossing. The trinity. The three in one. . . .

"Tight, Cam, for pity's sake! Hold it tight!"

His eyes, falling to his fist, strayed up along the arm it held. The sleeve, rumpled near the shoulder, was trimmed with lace.

"Tighter, Cam!"

A box of apples. That memory hidden away in the cellar of his mind. Hidden away, clamped down in the dark, till the noxious vapors, the murderous vapors of its rotting, had filled the shut-up house he was . . . A box of red apples for the apple-grower's girl . . . the girl who sniggered and ran away from him to laugh at him. . . .

And there, by the unfolding of a devious destiny, he sat in that girl's bedroom, holding that girl's hand.

Jim who had got her, Frank who had wanted her, lay side by side out there in the ice-house under the lightning. While he, the "dumb one"—the last to be thought of with anything but amusement and the last to be feared—his big, hot fist inclosing her imprecating hand now, and his eyes on the pretty lace at her shoulder——He jumped up with a gulp and a clatter of iron.

"What the——" He flung her hand away. "What the—hell!"

He moderated his voice with an effort, wiping his brow, "Good-night. You must excuse me, Blossie; I wasn't meaning—I mean—I hope you sleep good. I shall . . . Good-night!"

In his own brain was the one word, "Hurry!"

She lay and listened to his boots going along the hall and heard the closing of his door. She ought to have put out the lamp. But even with the shades drawn, the lightning around the edges of the window unnerved her; in the dark alone it would have been more than she could bear.

She lay so still she felt herself nearing exhaustion from the sustained rigidity of her limbs. Rain came and, with the rain, wind. Around the eaves it neighed like wild stallions; down the chimneys it moaned like men.

Slipping out of bed and pulling on a bathrobe she ran from her room, barefooted, and along the hall to Camden's door.

"Cam!" she called. "Oh, Cam!" she begged. "Please, please!"

And now he wouldn't answer her.

She pushed the door open. The lamp was burning on the bureau, but the room was empty and the bed untouched.

CAMDEN had reached the woods when the rain came. Lighting the lantern he had brought, he made his way on to the boundary fence. There, about a mile to the east of the path the others had taken that day, he pulled the rails down and tumbled the stones together in a pile. Then he proceeded another hundred yards, holding the lantern high and peering through the streaming crystals of the rain.

Blue Murder was there. Neither the chain nor the sapling had given way. The lantern and, better than lantern, a globe of lightning, showed the tethered stallion glistening and quivering, his eyes all whites at the man's approach.

"Gentle, boy; steady, boy!" Talking all the while in the way he had with horses, Camden put a hand on the taut chain and bore with a gradually progressive weight, bringing the dark head nearer. "Steady, boy; gentle there, damn you; gentle!"

Was he afraid of horses? Who was it said he was afraid of horses?

"Steady, Goll damn you; you're going to get yours. Cheer up, cheer up, the worst is yet to come. Come, now! Come easy! Come along!"

WHEN he had unloosened the chain he felt for and found with his free hand his hammer, hidden behind the tree. Throwing the lantern into the brush, where it flared for an instant before dying, he led the stallion back as far as the break he had made in the fence. Taking a turn with the chain around the animal's nose, like an improvised hackamore, he swung from the stone pile to the slippery back. A moment's shying, a sliding caracole of amazement and distrust, a crushing of knees, a lash of the chain-end, and that was all there was to that. Blue Murder had been ridden before. . . .

In the smithy, Camden sang as he pumped his bellows, filling the cave beneath the rafters with red. The air was nothing, the words were mumbo-jumbo, but they swelled his chest. His eyes, cast from time to time at his wheeling prisoner, had lost their look of helplessness and surly distraction.

Scared? He? No, no, no! Now that he wasn't any longer afraid of time, he wasn't afraid of anything on earth.

"Shy, you devil!" He wagged his exalted head. "Whicker, you hellion! Whicker all you want to, stud horse! Tomorrow they're going to get you, the numb fools! Tomorrow they can have you. I got you tonight!"

He was more than other men; he was enormous. Fishing an iron shoe from that inseparable apron pocket of his, he thrust it into the coals and blew and blew. He tried it and it was burning red. He tried it again and it was searing white. Taking it out on the anvil he began to beat it, swinging his hammer one-handed, gigantic.

So in the crimson light, irradiating iron sparks, he was at his greatest. Pounding, pounding. A man in the dark of night with a hammer about him can do wonders; with a horseshoe about him he can cover up a sin. And if the dark of night in a paddock won't hold it, then the dark of undergrowth on a mountainside will. . . .

Pounding, pounding; thinking, thinking, in a great halo of hot stars. Feeding his hungry, his insatiable muscles.

What he did not realize in his feverish exaltation was that his muscles were not insatiable. In the 30-odd hours past they had had a feast spread before them and they had had their fill. . . . More than their fill.

As with the scorching iron in his tongs he approached the stallion, he had to step over the nailbox he had stepped over 5000 times in the routine of every day.

His foot was heavier of a sudden that it should have been. This five-thousandth-and-first time, the heel caught the lip of the nailbox.

HE tried to save himself from stumbling. At the same time, instinctively, he held the iron flame in his tongs away.

There was a scream out of a horse's throat; a whiff of hair and burnt flesh.

There was a lash of something in the red shadows. There was another sound and another wisp of stench. . . .

When, guided by the stallion's whinnying, they found the smith next day, they saw by the cant of his head that his neck was broken, and they perceived that he, too, had on him the mark of a shoe. It lay up one side of his throat, and the broad of a cheek. It wasn't blue this time, however—it was red.

It took them some instants in the sunshine pouring through the wide door to comprehend this phenomenon. It wasn't sunk in by a blow this time; it was burned in, a brand.

Darred called them to look at the stallion behind the forge.

"Almighty God!" The words sounded funny in his mouth. They sounded the funnier in that they were the same ones the blundering smith had uttered when, staring uphill from his clever wreckage of the paddock fence, he had seen the mares striking sparks from the stones where the stallion struck none. And he, of all men, a smith!

"Almighty God!" called Darred. "What you make of these here feet?"

One fore hoof was freshly pared for shoeing; the other three hoofs were as virgin as any yearling's on the plains. Blue Murder had never been shod. . . .

they were biding their opportunity.

Where, one asks, did Daniels get his weapons? On this score former convict Watson says: "The guns that Daniels and Pardue used never came from no trusty. They came from a guard who worked on the night shift. You could order a gun or a knife or a saw or dope or anything else from him if you had the price or knew how to put together beaded bags. These bags sell for from $20 to $50. You get the materials from a factory and thread the beads in odd hours. This guard did a land-office business doing favors for money or bags. Daniels got his guns there and I could 've done the same."

Watson left the penitentiary last February. Even then, Watson said, Daniels had his weapons. Daniels waited seven months for the right moment. Then on October 1, at the noon hour, this erratic criminal, with his dreams of grandeur, his egotism, his memories of frustrations and slights like cankers in him, eluded his guards. Pardue, his close follower, joined him. They had three revolvers between them.

DANNY DANIELS, who believed he was the criminal peer of Gerald Chapman, who wanted to be "king o' the cons" and dreamed naively of a European crown he might purchase after a $100,000 bank job—Danny Daniels, soured comedian, who spent many a day in the dungeon on bread and water—who felt the guards were down on him and that his own mates disliked him and were blind to his criminal superiority—Danny Daniels, left flat by his pals when trying to rob a safe, and who had been driven out of the prison kitchen by a boy thief with a butcher knife—this same Daniels suddenly found himself a mob general, a captain of convicts, a king over life and death, while the prison chapel, the prison mess hall, the library and two cell-houses were going up in flames.

Three guards were killed as the riot got under way. Approximately 800 frightened convicts, with hands held high, fled to the recreation yard at the first hint of trouble. They didn't want to be part of a break captained by Daniels. About 300 other convicts were locked up in the cell house, where Daniels, with perhaps five confederates, took his stand. Lean, long-nosed Danny Daniels, with his sad tubercular eyes, had a dozen guards in captivity. Three guards were dead. Machine guns were cracking from the watch towers. There was no possible chance of escape unless they forced the Warden's hand.

Daniels conceived a bizarre plan. He would force the Warden to set him and his confederates free by threats to murder prison guards. He must have known that his plan was preposterous, that it would not be agreed to. He sent an emissary, demanding freedom for the riot ringleaders and two high-powered automobiles. He would kill the guards held hostage if the Warden refused. When an emphatic refusal came back, Daniels, with some show of mirth, stood up Guard Eeles, the prison executioner, against the wall. Daniels' rite of revenge was under way.

"YOU'VE killed a lot o' cons in your day," said Daniels, smilingly. "Now the cons are going to kill you."

He fired several shots and Eeles fell dead. His body was flung into the prison yard. Daniels again sent his demand for freedom to the Warden and was again refused. This time he stood Guard Wiggins against the wall.

"I hope you've been praying, Wiggins," he said, "because you're next."

He smiled in mock politeness.

"Now, Wiggins," he apologized, "I can't give you as many as Eeles. Ammunition's getting low. Please stand still, because we can only afford one slug."

He placed his revolver against Wiggins' temple and fired. The guard fell. He shot three other guards in the same cold-blooded fashion during that grisly night. He wounded a fourth, who later died. From time to time, amid the slaughter, he laughed. He shot and killed a convict known to be an informer, or stool pigeon. When Pardue, his lieutenant, wounded and in pain, asked to be put out of his misery, Daniels accommodatingly shot him. Toward morning the attacking forces added tear-gas bombs to their rain of rifle bullets. Artificial tears began to drop from desperate eyes.

Daniels called his surviving aids. He said the end was near and it would be foolish to fall into the hands of the screws (guards). They agreed with him. Convict Davis stood up and Daniels shot him through the head. Convict Reilly stood up and Daniels shot him through the head. Daniels muttered something then—a jest or a curse—placed his revolver to his own temple and fired. When he fell, the worst prison insurrection in American prison annals ended. And a frustrated criminal life that was the supererogation of social uselessness came to an end.

experiment proved a success. Still, there was room for improvement.

The step from children's parts to a tradition-breaking leading lady took Molly's breath away. Audiences and players knew her background, and she felt self-conscious. Kalich knew this, but he also knew the girl, and to give her a chance to get her ease and acquire polish for her roles he took her abroad. There was no doubt of the ultimate outcome. The girl was intelligent and would learn quickly. Meantime she had mastered Yiddish — a language unknown to her when she first went on the Jewish stage.

THE European tour was a triumphant venture and apparently a happy one for Molly. She played all through Central Europe, wherever there were Jews. Yiddish is an international language, differing only in local dialects. Italy and Palestine were the only countries to which she could not go. Italy, because the Jews there speak Italian; Palestine, because they speak only straight Hebrew. She has a standing invitation to go to the latter country if she will learn the language; otherwise she will not be permitted to play.

Vienna was the high spot of the trip. In that city audiences are quicker to appreciate an artist, and are more sympathetic. She tells of boarding a trolley car with the most popular tenor of the capital, and how, when the other passengers saw him, they all put out their cigarets and cigars—fearing the smoke would hurt his throat. And of how, during a very cold spell right after the war, there was rioting, and the discontented poor of Vienna went about snatching fur coats away from the prosperous owners. A member of the troupe had an old, threadbare coat with a mangy fur collar on it. The rioters held him up in a public square and started to make off with the dilapidated garment. He folded his arms on his chest and said:

"But I am an artist."

Immediately the coat was returned with profuse apologies. Oh, yes, Vienna is a sweet place for an actor.

Then, seven years ago, Molly Picon descended upon Second avenue at Kessler's Theater, and there she has remained. During this time her husband has continued to direct her and all her music has been composed by Joseph Rumshinsky. These three have had an enormous influence upon the Jewish stage. Chorus girls used to be women of forty, too elephantine to go through the paces required of them. Now those mature ladies are in retirement, and their daughters liven up the ensemble in Molly Picon shows. Where once there was wailing and weeping now there is laughter and cheerful music. So well has the innovation been received that, though a large part of its specific audience has moved out of the district, the theater continues to be a great success.

Lower Second avenue is no longer a Jewish residential district. Immigration laws have cut off new-comers, and many of the old inhabitants have prospered and gone to the Bronx, Washington Heights or New Jersey. It has, however, remained the Jewish White Way, and Israelites come from all over the metropolitan area to attend the theaters there—particularly Molly Picon's.

LAST summer Miss Picon was booked at the Palace for a week. There was trepidation among Second avenue playgoers, who feared that Molly was leaving them for Broadway. She promised that no matter what might be the outcome, she would return. And the experiment worried her, for Broadway and Second avenue are far apart. But the worry was wasted, and she stayed at the vaudeville goal three weeks—an accolade of no mean merit. At first her audience came from the East Side, to an appreciable extent.

"My friends from down here," she said, waving her hand over Second avenue, "came to the Palace saying they were not going to let the Gentiles make a flop out of Molly Picon."

They need not have feared. She'll be loved wherever she goes; and wherever that may be, she will always return to Second avenue, for the attachment is reciprocal.

Salvaging Wrecked Minds With Music

er, who had been committed to a Pennsylvania penitentiary for a crime of violence. An educated man, a man of culture, he found none among his associates who could "talk his language." He brooded, worried, began to lose his hold upon himself. Such a man might have gone mad. But in the violin he toyed with as a boy, he discovered a medium that held him together. A member now of one of Van de Wall's prison orchestras, he looks upon his instrument as the solace of the 10 long years that stand between him and freedom.

As discipline was aided in the madhouse by Van de Wall's music-making, so has it been helped in the penitentiaries. But Van de Wall is not strait-laced. He augments his music by stage performances, and in a woman's prison he feels that by giving a strange, undisciplined creature, a girl made miserable in her childhood by a tyrannical aunt, a chance to play Romeo, he kept her upon the safe side of the border line between sanity and that mental disease known as dementia praecox.

Psychologists have found that music sometimes results in a slightly increased heart beat, a faster coursing of blood through the veins, a stimulation in the functioning of certain glands. Van de Wall, while willing to bring the play or poem or any art expression to his work, believes that music makes the most universal appeal, opens up the recesses of the human soul more readily than any other medium, more thoroughly convinces the mundane man or woman that, for the moment at least, he is a different person. He points, as an example of the wide appeal of music, to his experience with an imbecile, suffering from a paralysis which slowly was taking toll of his whole body. This unfortunate creature, entirely oblivious to everything else, heard Van de Wall at the piano, and in his feeble way managed to beat a stick to the music's rhythm, a shadow of a smile crossed his face; it was one of the few times he evidenced any interest or realization of what went on about him.

Van de Wall believes that children should be introduced to some form of musical expression before life's problems confront them. He thinks that music is not only corrective—that often goes for the play, too—but that it is a fine form of prevention.

He doubts that very few young men, given the opportunity to understand the character of such a swashbuckler as Cyrano de Bergerac, and then told to go and interpret that fellow on the stage, would care very much about going on the streets and staging a hold-up for the excitement he could get out of it. And he doesn't believe that any amateur who had the chance to sing the Toreador's role in Carmen, for instance, would be moved to commit a commonplace bank robbery.

"We all want a little more than we have in our ordinary lives," he says. "We don't want our existence to be a routine of sitting around and looking at each other like clams."

In other words, society has not much need to fear the man who for a few minutes, ever so often, through the medium of artistic expression can convince himself that he's a hell of a fellow.

The VAMP of GAY VIENNA

Wherein a Musician Knows His Notes.

FRANZ SCHNITZEL was concluding the day's practice in his modest apartment on the Strudelstrasse. For the thirty-fourth and last time he would play his latest love song. He cuddled his violin under his chin, tightened the gadgets and sawed the opening strains. The violin whined like an expensive automobile shifting into second, and Franz' eyelids fluttered.

He was only a beer-garden virtuoso, but then he hoped for better things. Once his love song was sold, he assured himself, there would be no more worrying. He would pay the landlady her accursed 20 kronen and then—raus mit her. Thinking these things, he tucked his violin under his arm and hopped a cab for the Katzbrau in the Volksgarten at Turkenschanz.

The Katzbrau was one of Vienna's gayest cafes. Beautiful women in dazzling clothes smoked perfumed cigarettes. Handsome men were there, each with his shoes shined and a clean collar. An orchestra played lilting waltzes, but the master of ceremonies had not yet been invented.

As Franz took his place he gazed worshipfully at Bertha Ausgang, queen of the waitresses. She was his ideal. The way she juggled steins was a miracle—six in each hand. And such eyes! She went around with her lips half-parted, like heroines in the best magazine fiction. It was to her Franz dedicated his love song, and he hoped some day——

A brilliant company entered the restaurant. The central figure, a tall, proud personage, surveyed the scene through a glittering monocle. He wore a magnificent blue uniform, trimmed with gold braid, and had a merit badge for forestry on his chest.

"Must be the doorman at Schindler's movie theater," whispered the guests in awed tones. But they were wrong. The newcomer was Eric Schubert Fritz von Nietrauchen, Major in the Tenth Brigade of His Majesty's Imperial Flying Dragoon Guards.

THE party sat down at a conspicuous table. The Major produced a pack of cards and handed it to a Second Lieutenant, who removed the deuces and trays.

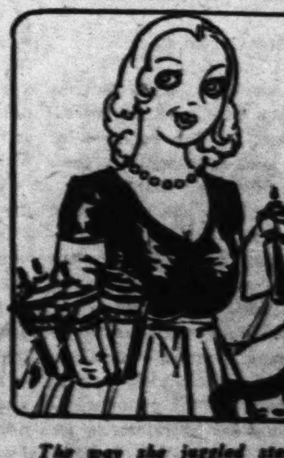
"We'll have beer all around," the Major informed the head waiter. "But, mind you, it must be served by that charming waitress, Bertha Ausgang, whose blonde beauty is famed even over the Carpathians. Otherwise, we go. Siest du?"

"Ach, ja" (oh, yes), said the head waiter. He scrambled around for Bertha, finally locating her, as might be expected, near the musicians' platform. He gave her a brutal shove, which sent her flying in the Major's direction. The Major seized her hand.

Instantly the orchestra was minus one first violin. With a cry of "Hound!" Franz rushed to the rescue. He led with his right and landed a short left jab to the Major's jaw. Nietrauchen only smiled.

"Just one thing remains to be settled," he said, "and that's the place. I suppose you'll agree to pistols at 30 paces? And we'd better make it for 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, as I have a matinee engagement beforehand."

Franz cleverly suggested meeting in the Prater. He knew of a one-way street there which wound through a dense grove of trees and figured he could make excellent time on it.



The way she juggled steins was a miracle—six in each hand.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the cafe closed—the orchestra was strictly union—and Franz and Bertha went out for a walk. Arm in arm, they strolled down to the bank of the Danube and watched the moon floating over the hydro-electric plant.

"It was rash of you to poke that guy," said Bertha. "He's the best shot on the continent."

"Yes," said Franz. "I guess this is our last night together. I know nothing whatever about pistols. Of course, I've been shot at a number of times—there's nothing especially new in that—but I've never gunned for anybody personally."

"Maybe he'll only wound you in the shoulder, or something," consoled Bertha. "I'd like to be there the best way in the world, but there's a millinery sale at Stadlau's Department Store."

The next morning Franz took his love song to a music publisher. The publisher hummed the tune, took out a handful of silver and gave Franz 20 kronen. He objected.

"That's all you get," said the publisher. "Schubert, Beethoven and them boys didn't get any more, and you don't stand there and claim to be better than them, do you?"

Twenty kronen was just enough to pay the rent. But why pay rent when death has a date with you? Franz went into a cigar store. "I'd like to bet on Jumping Julius in the fifth race at Innsbruck," he told the clerk. "Twenty kronen on the nose."

PROMPTLY at 5 o'clock the cortege assembled in the Prater. Major Nietrauchen was there with 14 seconds, his brother officers. But Franz' only companion was an old woman with steely eyes and a firm jaw.

"Where's your second?" demanded the Major.

"Right here," said Franz. "It's my landlady. She's vitally interested in the outcome of this scrap."

The referee marked off 30 paces and the lads faced each other. A handkerchief dropped. There were two sharp reports. The landlady fell, mortally wounded.

"My word, I've killed his second," said the Major, somewhat abashed. "I'll probably be busted for this."

Jumping Julius won and paid 35 for 2, so Franz and Bertha got married that evening.

Those who visit Vienna these days will find that Franz is generally recognized as the hottest orchestra leader in town.

He operates "Schnitzel's Sizzling Syncopaters," which has replaced the symphony orchestra at the Katzbrau. Moreover, he makes records and conducts a band over the radio in the Schmidt Glue hour.

"Yes, my dear," he tells Bertha, as they sit in their large home on the Gurtelstrasse, near the Rathausplatz, "it's all due to my song hits, 'The Vienna Roll,' 'They Call Him Danube Dan' and 'Gay Vienna Is Dizzy Now.'"

"I'm glad you quit writing music," says Bertha. "There's heavy sugar in this stomp proposition."

"Yes, indeed. Well, we have the war to thank. After I had enlisted in the band they asked me what instrument I played. I told them the violin, so, as might be expected, I was issued a saxophone."

THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

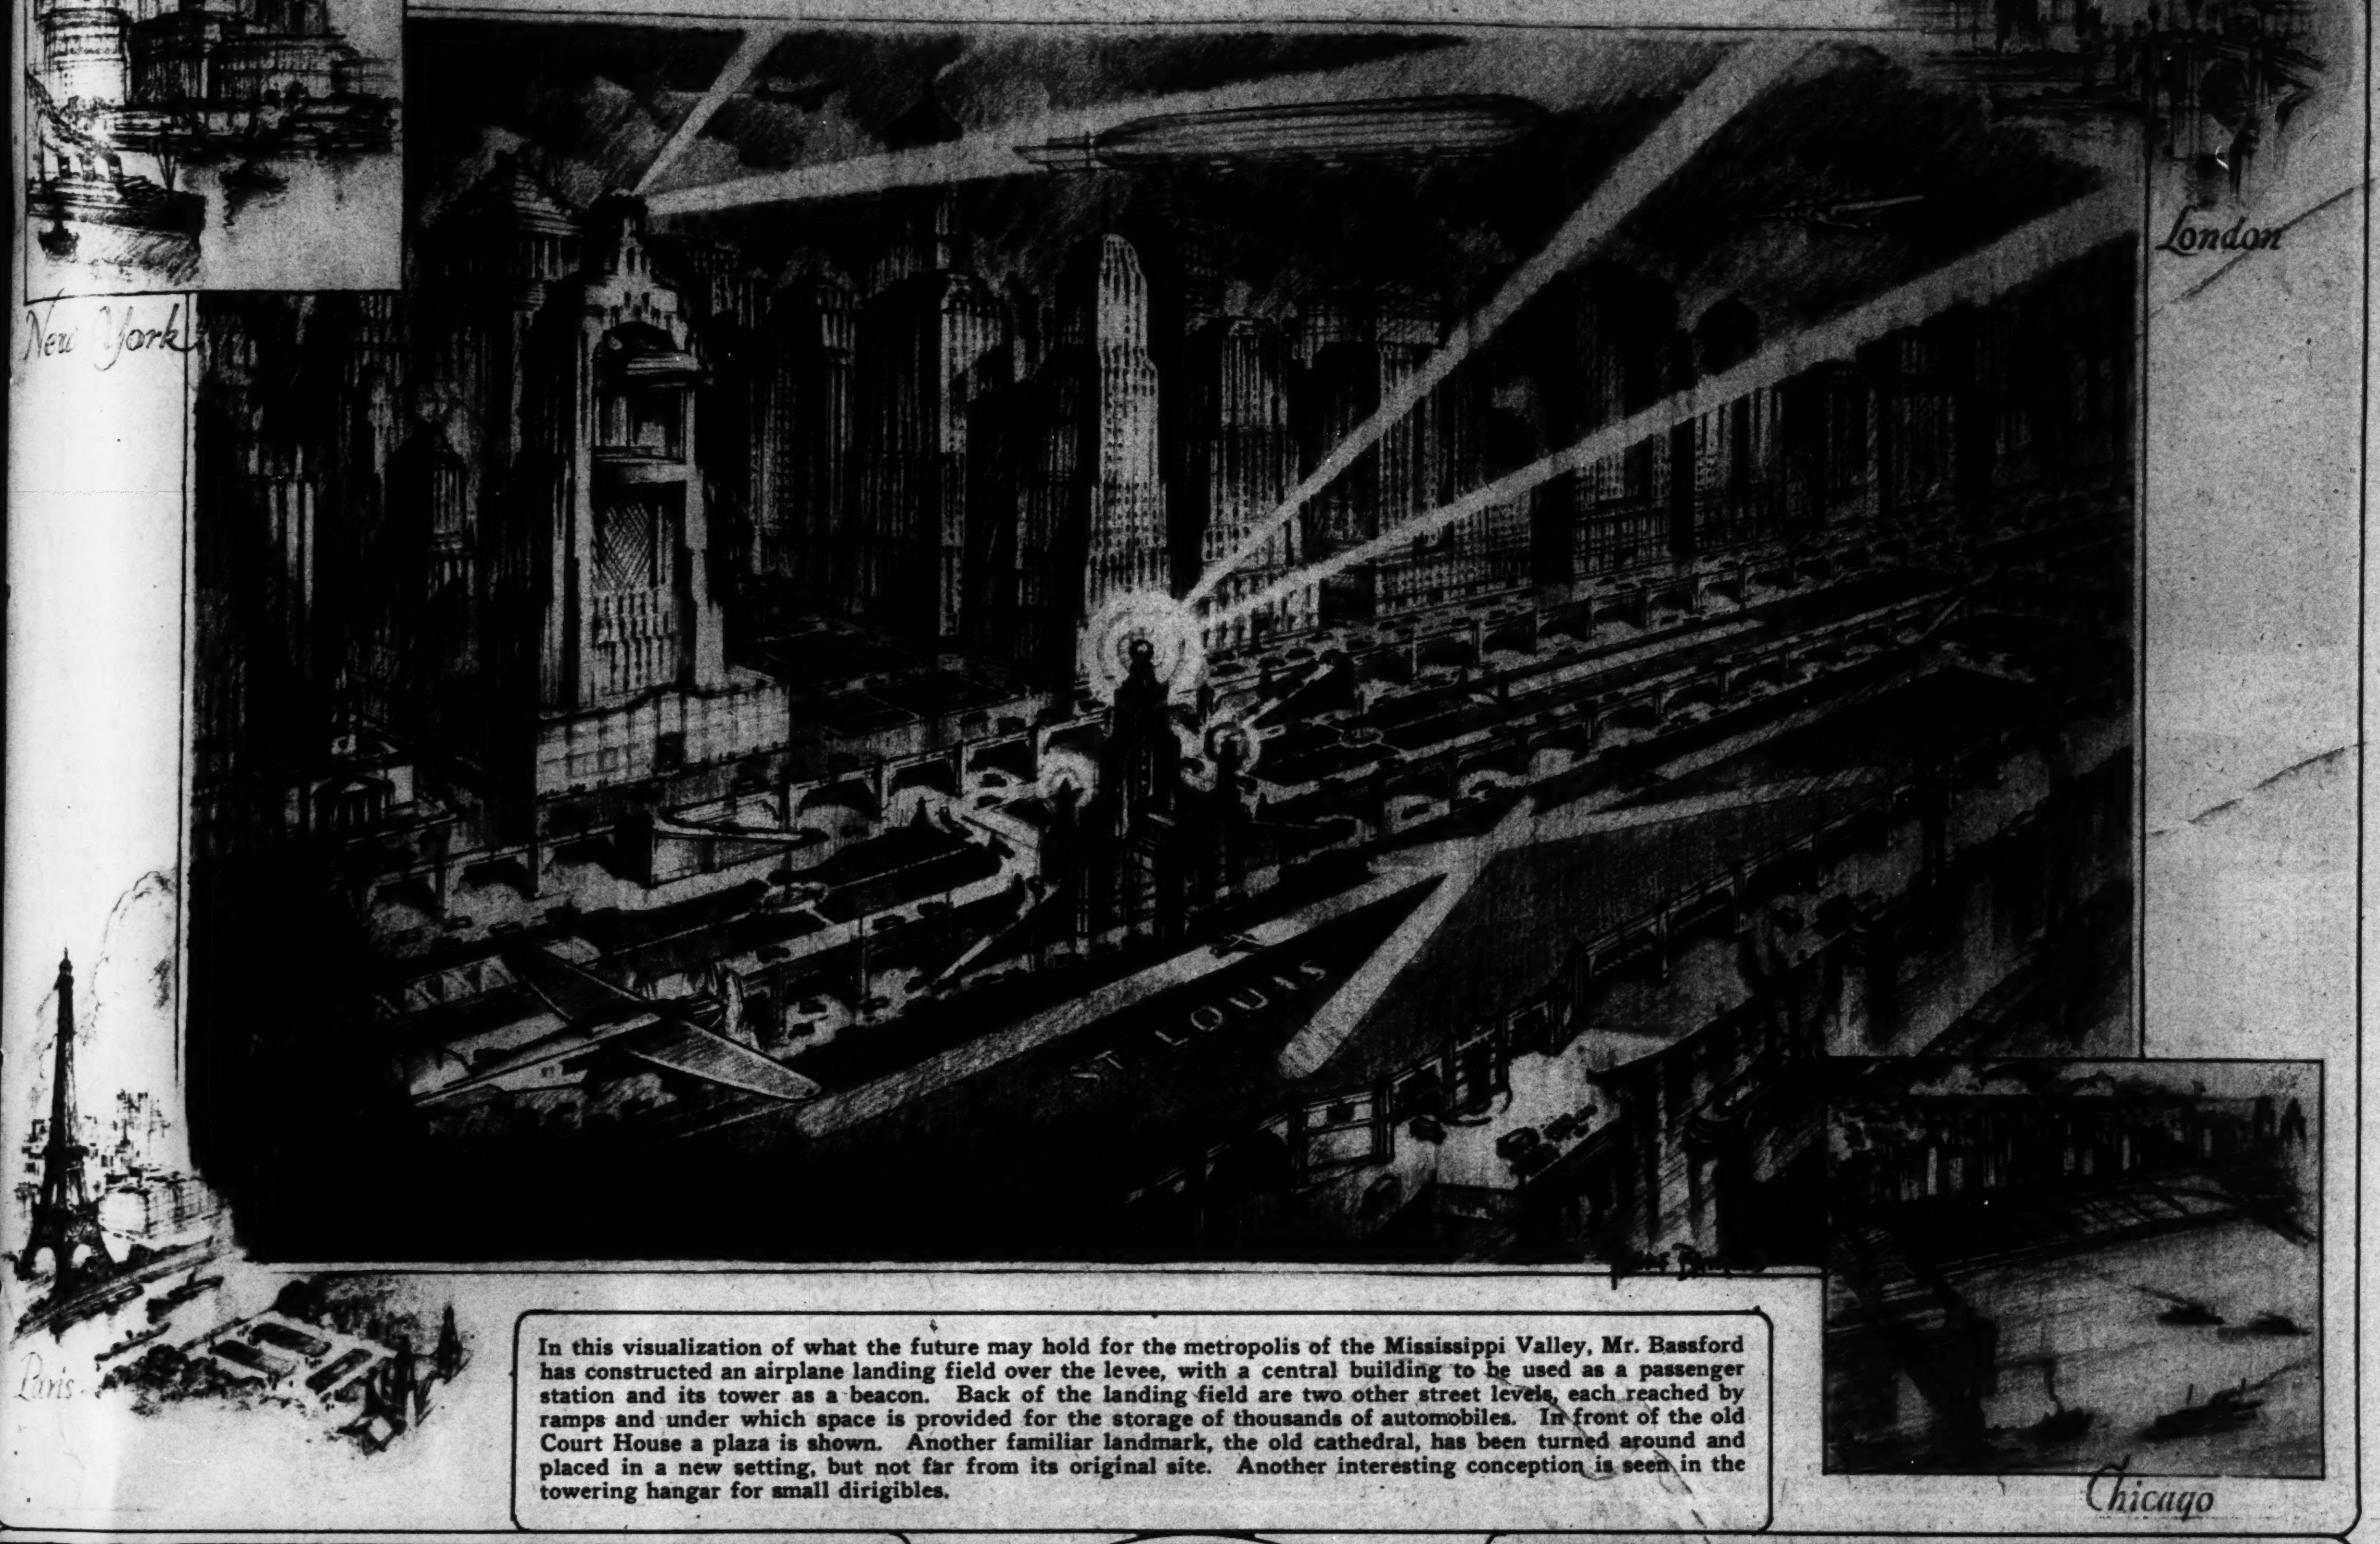
A VISION OF THE ST. LOUIS WATER FRONT

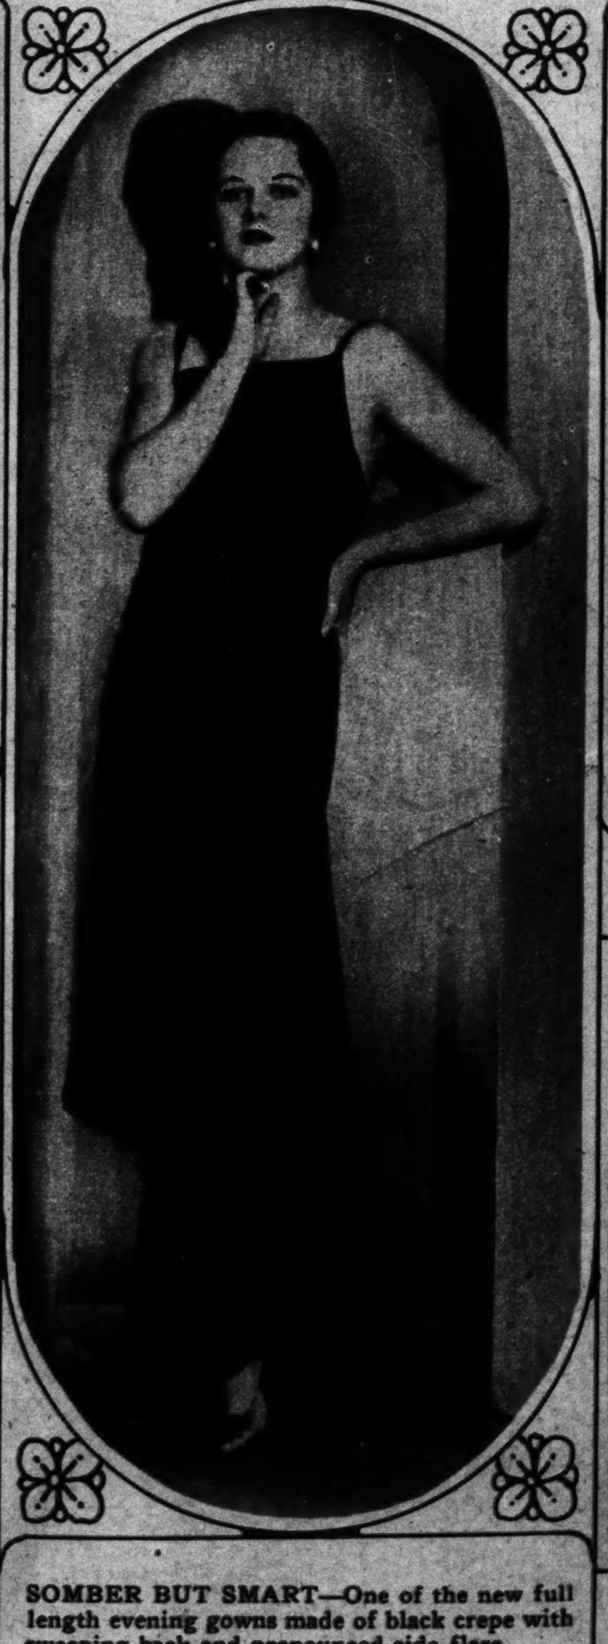
This picture, drawn by Wallace Bassford, was presented to the Chamber of Commerce by the Downtown Improvement Association at a recent meeting.



In this visualization of what the future may hold for the metropolis of the Mississippi Valley, Mr. Bassford has constructed an airplane landing field over the levee, with a central building to be used as a passenger station and its tower as a beacon. Back of the landing field are two other street levels, each reached by ramps and under which space is provided for the storage of thousands of automobiles. In front of the old Court House a plaza is shown. Another familiar landmark, the old cathedral, has been turned around and placed in a new setting, but not far from its original site. Another interesting conception is seen in the towering hangar for small dirigibles.

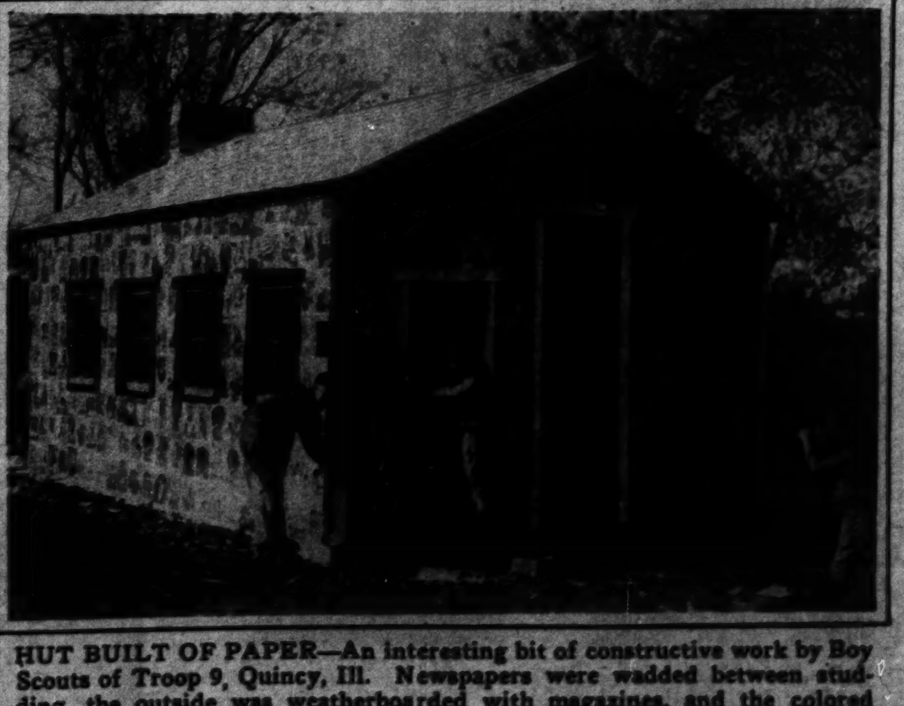
PRIZE-WINNING DRAFT HORSE—Baldy, a Clydesdale that was much admired at the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago early in December.
—Underwood & Underwood.

RUMMAGING AROUND FOR LUNCH—When there's not much to eat in the woods up in Ranier National Park, the black bears frequently make off with the refuse barrels from hotel kitchen or camp, as this one has done.
—Underwood & Underwood.

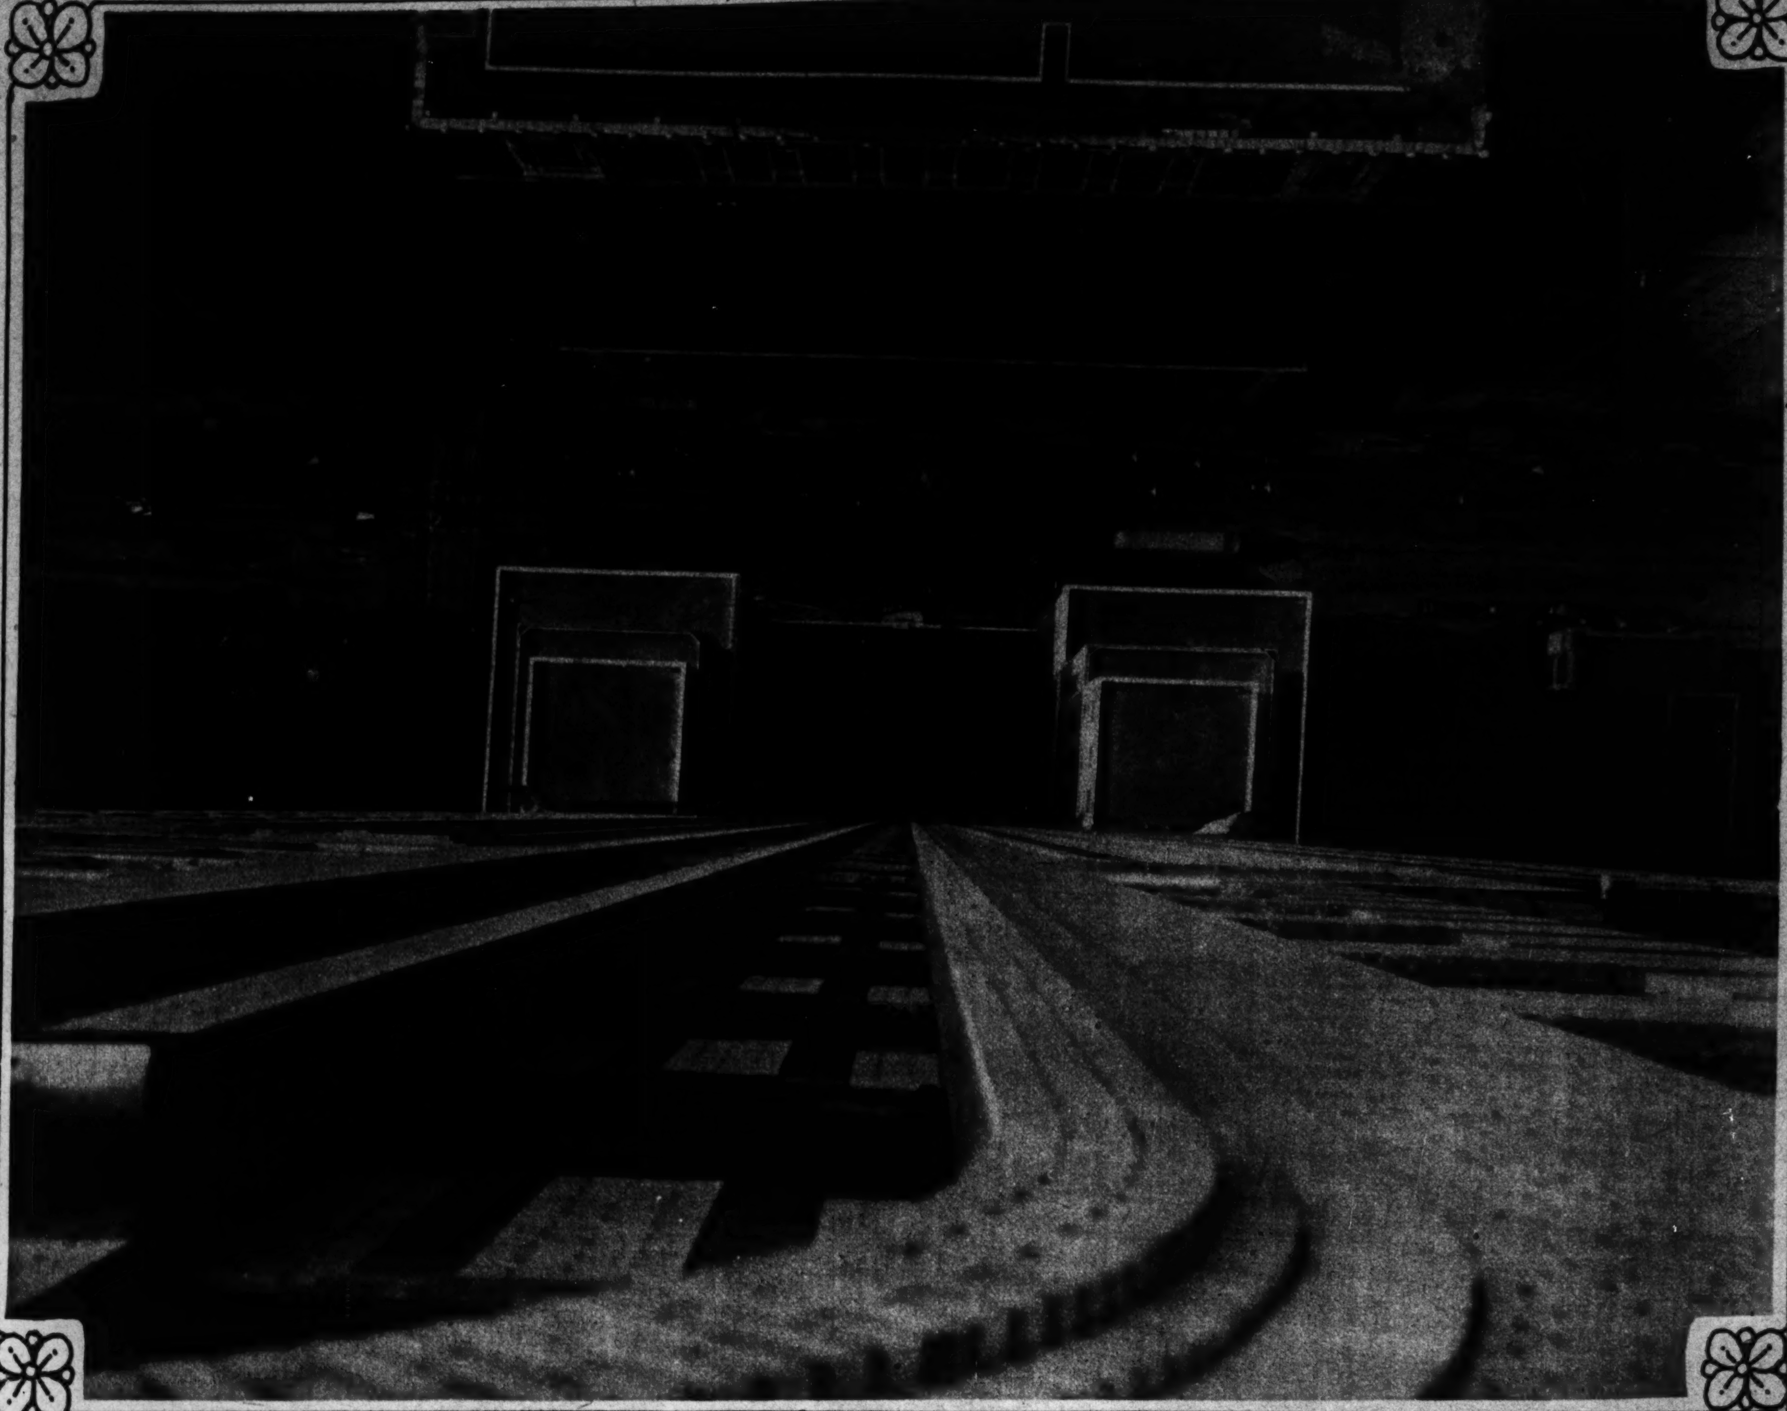


SOMBER BUT SMART—One of the new full length evening gowns made of black crepe with sweeping back and pronounced side flare.
—P. & A. photo.

"GIDDAP"—George Bernard Shaw, whose latest play is called "The Apple Cart," gets a present from an admirer of the drama which, by the way, pokes fun at the present scheme of government in England.
—International photo.



HUT BUILT OF PAPER—An interesting bit of constructive work by Boy Scouts of Troop 9, Quincy, Ill. Newspapers were wadded between studding, the outside was weatherboarded with magazines, and the colored covers varnished to make them waterproof. There is a fireplace of brick and stone.



EVER FEEL DIZZY? LOOK INTENTLY AT THIS PHOTOGRAPH—A view looking straight over the edge of the roof atop the sixty-seventh story of the new Chrysler Building, New York City. The street seems all of the 900 feet it is away from the camera lens. The Chanin Building, opposite, is no small structure itself.

QUEEN OF THE CHESS BOARD—Miss Sheila Gaunt, daughter of Admiral Gaunt of the British Navy, is champion of her sex playing with knights, bishops, castles and pawns.

Considered Europe's Greatest Stomach Specialist

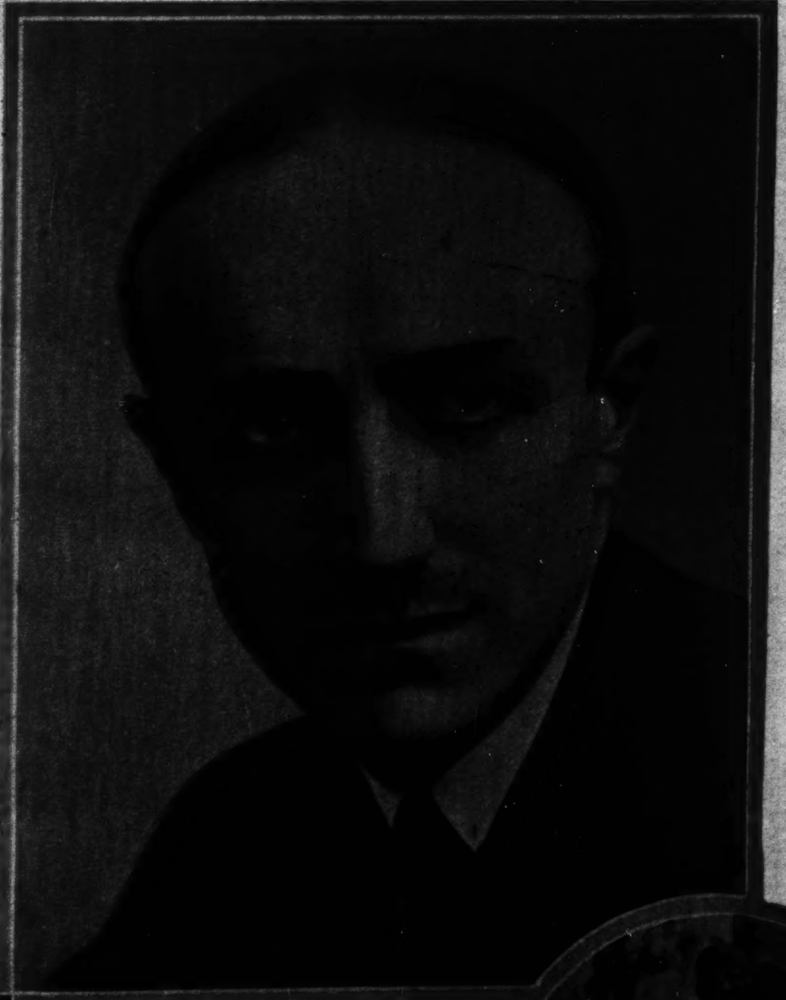
To cleanse intestines he recommends this simple Food . . .

The great French authority on the digestive tract, Dr. Delort, says:

"Yeast acts as a digestive cleanser. It reduces the power of germs. It retains its activity throughout the digestive tract, stimulating gastric secretion and encouraging the working of stomach and intestines. The action of yeast in skin disorders has long been known.

"The vitamin D now produced in fresh yeast by 'irradiation' brings about the deposit of calcium in the bones."

How easy it is—this modern way to health. Just eat three cakes of Fleischmann's fresh Yeast daily, according to the directions on the label. Every cake now contains two vitamins indispensable to health, vitamin B and the "sunshine" vitamin D. At grocers, restaurants, soda fountains.



DR. MAURICE DELORT of the St. Michel Hospital, Paris, is one of the younger leaders of the medical profession in Europe. His latest book is "Consultations on Diseases of the Intestine."

(RIGHT) "I could hardly finish my day's work," writes MRS. PAULINE STOWE of Worcester, Mass., "but since eating Fleischmann's Yeast my health has been perfect—no more indigestion."

"When I started my own restaurant," writes CHARLES STANLEY, of Stanley's Restaurant, 100 W. 32nd St., New York, "I missed my active outdoor life. Indigestion set in. My physician advised yeast. I soon returned to regular habits and my stomach gave me no more trouble."

What other World-Famous Doctors Say:—

GEHEIMRAT DR. CARL VON NOORDEN, of Germany, world authority on nutrition problems, says: "Yeast stimulates the digestive organs. Its results are outstanding."

DR. LORENZO CHERUBINI, Professor of Medical Pathology at the University of Rome, states: "Yeast performs the wonderful rôle of promoting both assimilation and elimination."

PROFESSOR DR. GUSTAVO PITTALUGA, vitamin expert and physician to the aristocracy of Spain, declares: "Yeast will banish constipation, renew appetite, aid digestion."

New Gifts for the Boudoir ...the Loveliest in America

(They're very reasonably priced)

THEY'RE just in from du Pont . . . a fascinating collection of the newest and smartest Lucite gift ensembles for the dressing table. In design they are worthy of a place of honor as true works of art, for they are the pick of scores created by leading style authorities. In texture they're so silken-smooth they might be made of ancient mellow ivory— though you never saw ivory in such magnificent colors. In utility, of course, they're "lifetime" durable . . . They're so new, so fine, so smart—and so luxurious for the moments of real luxury at her dressing table which every woman deserves—that you'd be justified in suspecting that you can't afford so exquisite a gift. But you can, look at the modest prices! Inspect them soon—for our collection is by no means unlimited.

Here is a set to bring refreshing color into the dainty boudoir of pastel tints and chintzes. The designer Nash has arranged the rich beauty of the tropical orchid against a perfect background of Springtime Green.

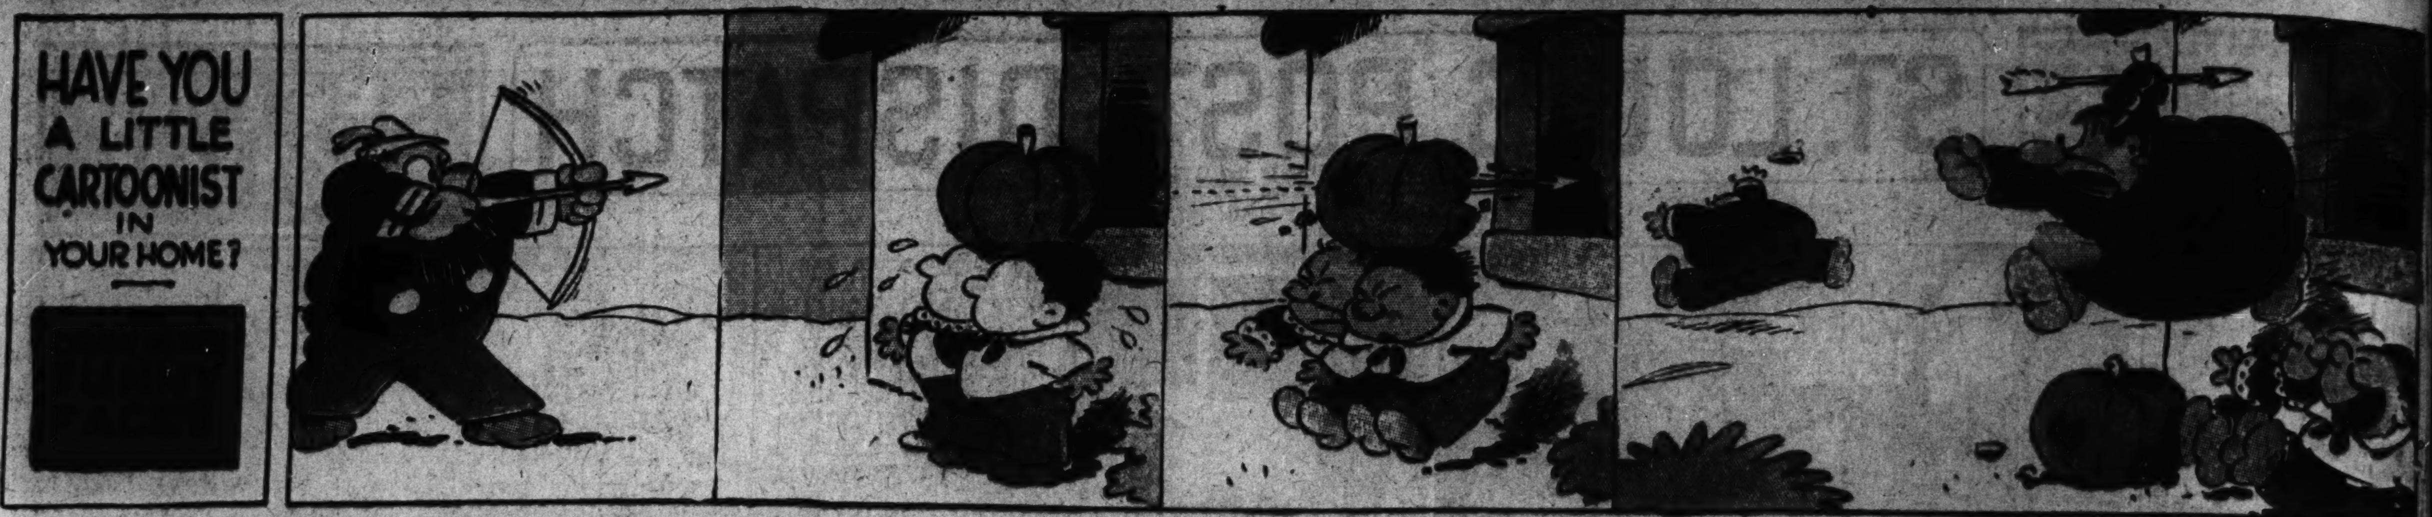
RESOLVED THAT THE UNDERSIGNED SHALL CEASE TO SPEAK, WRITE TO, OR THINK OF THE AFORESAID MARGY, UNTIL SHE SHOWS PROPER APPRECIATION OF OUR TRUE WORTH AND VALUE! SIGNED Arab BULL X HIS MARK
NOW, THAT'S RIGHT TO THE PERNT
WE HAVE ALL KEPT OUR PROMISE NOT TO SEE MARGY FOR A WEEK!
AND, BOY, IT SEEMS LIKE SEVEN YEARS!
I CANT HOLD OUT ANY LONGER, I'VE GOT TO SEE HER!
I CANT STAND IT ANOTHER MINUTE. LIFE ISN'T WORTH LIVING WITHOUT THAT SWEET BABY!
Registered U. S. Patent Office.
WE WILL JUST BARGE OVER AND SEE HER, EVEN HER ANGER WILL BE SWEET!
RIGHT OR WRONG, I STILL LOVE MARGY!
I HOPE SHE HASN'T FALLEN IN LOVE!
SHE MAY BE SORE BECAUSE WE HAVE KEPT AWAY FOR A WHOLE WEEK!
OH, HELLO, BOYS, I'M GLAD TO SEE YOU. I'VE BEEN AWAY AT A HOUSE PARTY FOR THE LAST WEEK!
LET'S THROW HIM OFF FROM THE HIGH PART OF THE BRIDGE!
HEH, LISTEN! YOU THOUGHT IT WAS A SWELL IDEA AT THE TIME!
YEAH! THE WATER IS MUCH DEEPER THERE!



HAVE YOU A LITTLE CARTOONIST IN YOUR HOME?

BOYS! Join the LYONSPORT AERO CLUB

Build Planes - wear this handsome winged emblem

The Greatest Gift That Santa Can Bring Any Boy

Boys! Here's what will bring you more fun on Christmas morning than anything you can think of. Think of this—you can become a "Pilot" in the Lyonsport Aero Club, a national organization of air-minded boys. You can wear the handsome winged emblem shown above. You can build model planes, Zeppelins, blimps, hangars, beacon lights, mooring masts, and all the other equipment for a complete model airport. You can learn the rules for managing a real airport and also for actually flying real planes and ships. Wouldn't that make you the happiest boy in town on Christmas?

Capt. Jack Bursey

This is Capt. Jack Bursey, famous ace in the World War, now Commander of the Lyonsport Aero Club. Tune in on radio station KMOX every week-day at 5:35 (Central Standard Time) and hear Capt. Bursey tell some of his thrilling war adventures.

Lyons METALCRAFT Construction Sets

Look at the picture (at the right) of "pilots" in the Lyonsport Aero Club having barrels of fun with their complete model airfield. You can have just as much fun if you once get started on a Lyons Metalcraft Set. Don't delay! Return the coupon promptly and ask Mother and Dad to help you get your first set for Christmas.

Read This Carefully

Lyons Metalcraft construction sets have made over a million boys happy. Every box contains a certificate which will credit you with a certain number of "flying hours." Look at the pictures of the sets and you will see how many credits each box contains. Two or three certificates will give you enough credits to bring you your "pilot's" winged emblem and also a special letter from Commander Jack Bursey. For full information about the Lyonsport Aero Club, fill in the coupon and mail it TODAY.

Captain Bursey Will Write You

Captain Jack Bursey, formerly an Ace in the World War, is now Commander of the Lyonsport Aero Club. He will answer your coupon with a special letter which will contain a splendid surprise. Go to your nearest dealer, but if he doesn't carry Lyons Metalcraft construction sets, write us a letter, tell us the number of the set or sets you want and enclose a post-office money order for the correct amount, together with the name and address of your dealer.
